Conservatives wage war on canal pact

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Conservatives started a major advertising and direct mail campaign Sunday to persuade Congress to reject President Carter's Panama Canal agreement.

"There is no Panama Canal!" stated a newspaper ad run by the American Conservative Union. "There is an American canal at Panama. Don't let President Carter give it away!"

Coupled with the advertising campaign was a move to create a lobbying coalition of diverse groups — similar to those which successfully defeated organized labor's common-site picketing legislation and a bill to provide public financing of Senate elections.

"On public financing, we put together a massive public relations effort generating grass roots support," said conservative fundraiser Richard Viguerie, "and we're going to do the same thing on the Panama Canal treaty."

FRAN GRIFFIN of the American Conservative Union said $20,000 already has been raised from letters to 100,000 conservatives. The money will be spent on newspaper advertising, which began Sunday, in Jackson, Miss.; Tulsa, Okla.; San Diego, Dallas, Salt Lake City, Cheyenne, Wyo.; Boise, Idaho, and St. Petersburg, Fla.

"The strategy is to start in the South because we think we can get most of our support there," she said. "We think the balance is going to rest on whether southern Democratic senators support us on this issue. We want to influence senators in those states."

Viguerie said "some labor union officials" are helping, and other conservative sources said appeals have been made to the maritime shipping industry, which would have to pay higher canal tolls under the new treaty.

CARTER'S CAMPAIGN to secure approval of the treaty moved into high gear last week when he sought and received support from former President Gerald Ford and ex-Sec. of State Henry Kissinger.

Under the treaty agreement — reached two weeks ago in Panama City — the United States would relinquish sovereignty over the canal at the end of the century, but an accompanying "neutrality pact" guarantees America's right to defend the canal from attack indefinitely.

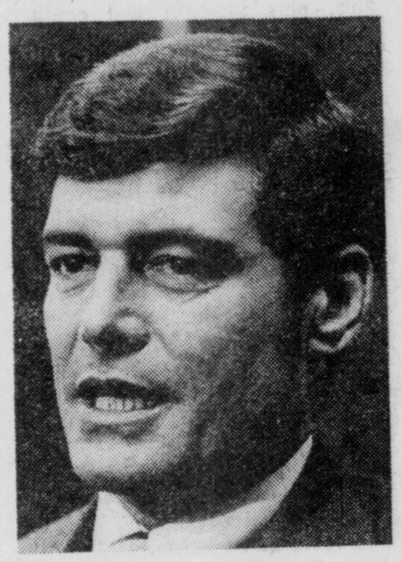

Before the pact takes effect, however, it must be ratified by the Senate.

Conservatives said they will oppose the treaty on grounds the canal is — and should remain — U.S. property, that Panamanian leader Omar Torrijos is too leftist, and that the canal is a strategic military waterway.

"It is interesting to note that General Torrijos is very friendly with another Caribbean dictator — Fidel Castro," said Young Republican Chairman Roger Stone.

New Hampshire Gov. Meldrim Thomson, a leader of the conservative coalition, said, "If we propose to remain a free people, we must retain at all cost and for all time the Panama Canal."

Crane labels Carter proposal 'schizophrenia'

U.S. REP. PHILIP CRANE

U.S. Rep. Philip Crane, R-12th, has blasted President Carter's proposed Panama Canal treaty as "moral schizophrenia," and is leading an effort to reject the treaty in Congress.

Crane, chairman of the American Conservative Union, has announced his opposition to the treaty, and is working through the ACU in a grass-roots campaign to pressure senators into voting against ratifying the treaty.

"What the United States has agreed to with the government of Panama is basically a very expensive giveaway to Panama's self-proclaimed leader,

Man holds police at bay 1 hour

by DANN GIRE
and DAVE IBATA

A 20-year-old Rolling Meadows man, allegedly high on drugs, held police from four departments at bay for an hour Sunday after trying to slash his mother with two broken pop bottles, authorities said.

Kevin Smith surrendered to Rolling Meadows Police Chief Lewis Case and other officers after he allegedly tried to slash his mother, Mary, with the bottles in their home, 4608 Sycamore Dr., at 4 p.m. The woman was not harmed.

Smith was charged with aggravated assault and taken to Walter Reed Mental Health Center, Chicago, for treatment.

ROLLING MEADOWS police were originally told that Smith had a gun and was barricaded in his home with his mother. Within minutes, police from Schaumburg, Arlington Heights and the Cook County Sheriff's police joined local officers at the scene.

Police surrounded Smith across the street from his home as he crouched behind a friend's car parked next to a wire fence separating Sycamore Drive from the on-ramp of Ill. Rte. 53 and Algonquin Road.

Brandishing automatic rifles, 12-gauge shotguns and 9 mm pistols, members of the Rolling Meadows special weapons and tactics team and other officers took up positions surrounding Smith, who remained on his knees near the car trunk.

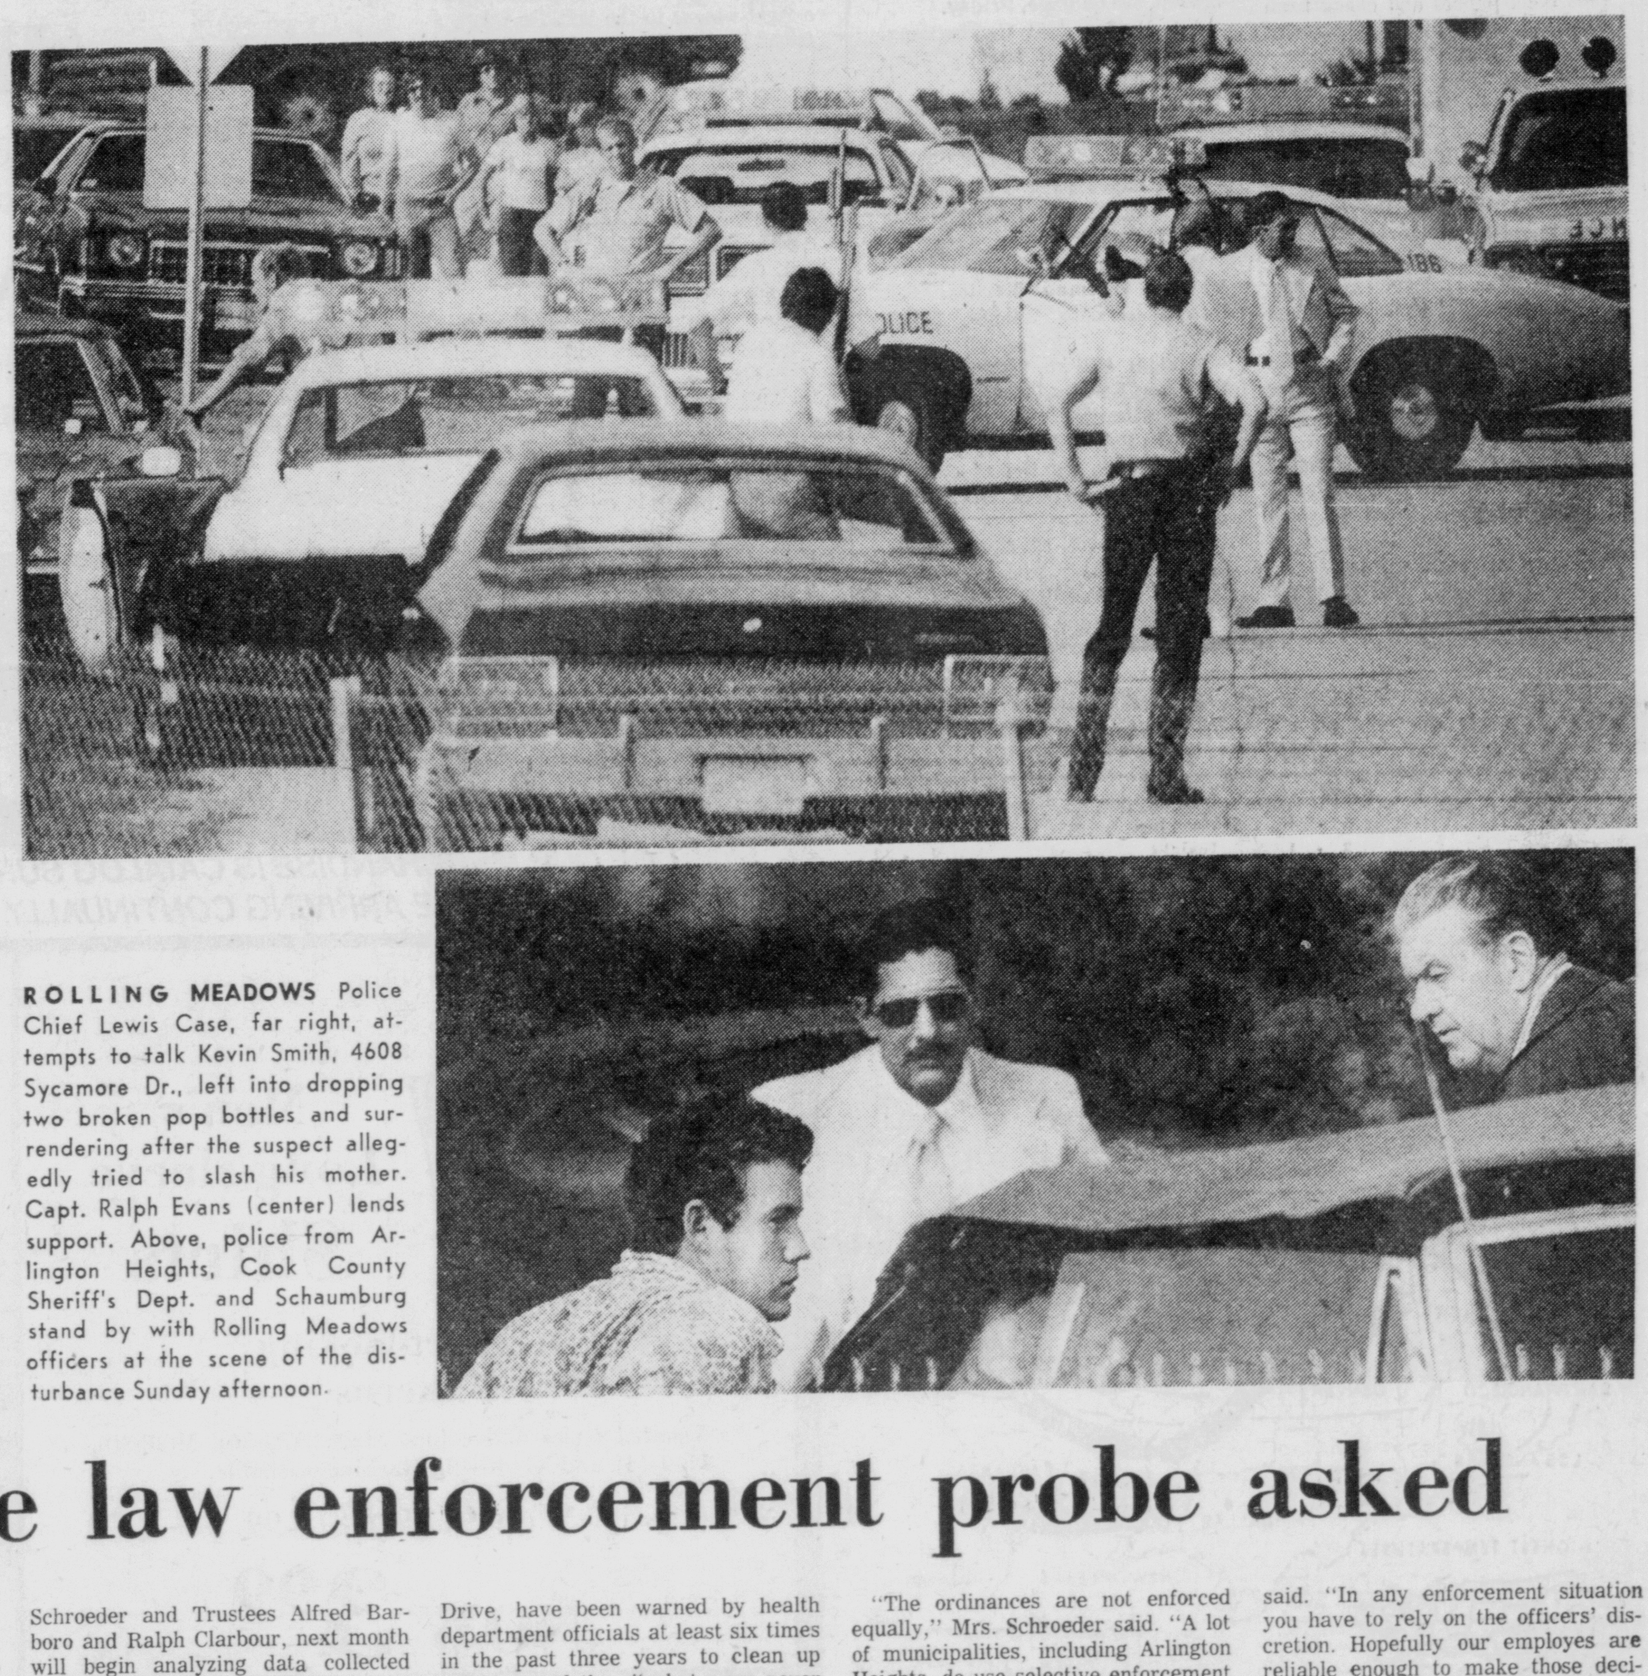

SWAT Commander Sgt. Charles Poellein and one of Smith's friends, identified by police as Pat LaFon, attempted to keep the suspect calm.

Smith dropped the two broken pop bottles and surrendered after Chief Lewis Case, Sgt. Charles Smith and Capt. Ralph Evans of Rolling Meadows convinced him to give up.

BEFORE THE surrender Smith told Case, "If I had my 9 mm (a pistol), I'd blow you apart," and, "You're not going to take me. If you take me, I'll take three of you with me."

At one point in the confrontation, Case told Smith to "give up. There

Selective law enforcement probe asked

by NANCY GOTLER

Acting on complaints of Arlington Heights residents, Trustee Madeline Schroeder has asked the village board committee to investigate alleged arbitrary enforcement of village laws.

Mrs. Schroeder has asked the village board's public health and safety committee to look into whether the police, fire, health, building and engineering departments fairly uphold village ordinances.

The committee members, Mrs. Schroeder and Trustees Alfred Barboro and Ralph Clarbour, next month will begin analyzing data collected from the departments.

MRS. SCHROEDER said charges of impropriety have been made by several residents who said they had been ticketed unfairly and questioned why code violations at a shopping center and office building resulted in warnings and not citations.

Managers of Pal-Grove Shopping Center, Palatine Road and Windsor Drive, have been warned by health department officials at least six times in the past three years to clean up trash around the site but were never issued a citation, William Mack, environmental health officer has said.

And Mrs Schroeder said, H. Myles Gordon was asked numerous times to erect shrubs or a fence between his office building at 121 S. Wilke Rd. and nearby residences but before complying was only warned, not ticketed, for the zoning code violation.

"The ordinances are not enforced equally," Mrs. Schroeder said. "A lot of municipalities, including Arlington Heights, do use selective enforcement to harass people they don't like or keep certain ordinances on the books as threats."

George Weinand, health department director, and Martin Munsen, building and zoning commissioner, disagree.

"There's the possibility for someone to feel he's been arbitrarily singled out in any confrontation," Weinand said. "In any enforcement situation you have to rely on the officers' discretion. Hopefully our employes are reliable enough to make those decisions correctly."

Munsen said, "If there's a problem and compliance cannot be gained by first notification a citation is issued and all ordinances are enforced equally."

But Mrs. Schroeder insists there is a potential problem.

Berkowitz story like tale of Jekyll and Hyde

by H. D. QUIGG

NEW YORK (UPI) — A fellow postal worker asked David Richard Berkowitz to dinner the night of July 30.

They normally ate at a nearby diner. David was partial to the diner's egg creams.

"No," David replied, smiling pleasantly, softly, politely. "I have something else planned."

Later that Saturday night, a man sat calmly on a park swing across from an isolated lane under the Verrazano bridge near the Brooklyn waterfront. He had his eye on a couple parked in a car across the street.

But the couple drove to the darker area of the street and the man's attention shifted to an old brown Buick, where two 20-year-olds on their first date were parked.

At 2:40 a.m., police would say later, the man got up from the swing, walked across the street under the brightness of a full moon and a street light. He approached the car.

THE MAN PULLED a .44-caliber Bulldog revolver from a plastic bag. He grasped the .44 with both hands, crouched in a military position, aimed through the open window on the passenger side and fired four times.

This "maniac" — this "Son of Sam" killer as police had taken to calling him — had struck eight different times in a 12-month period, the latest ambush attack coming on the weekend of the first anniversary of the first murder. Six were dead, seven were wounded.

Ten days later, David R. Berkowitz walked out of his Yonkers, N.Y., apartment and got into his car. He started the engine. Suddenly, he was surrounded by police, their weapons drawn.

The nice guy was arrested and charged as the ".44 caliber killer" on Aug. 10 in front of his apartment, ending the largest manhunt in New York history.

David Richard Berkowitz, 24, born Richard David Falco, was charged with second-degree murder in the death of Son of Sam's last victim, Stacy Moscowitz, and in the wounding of her date Robert Violante.

They were shot the night Berkowitz turned down a dinner invitation because he had "something else planned."

Indictments were returned or being prepared in the Queens and The Bronx, where the night-stalking Son of Sam killed four young women and one man and wounded six other young persons.

Even after his arrest and heavy news coverage of the double life of Son of Sam, those closest to Berkowitz could not believe what they had read and heard.

"David Berkowitz was a nice guy, a pleasant guy to work with, an excellent worker, definitely not the violent type," said Carlos Pacheco, 27, a fellow postal worker. "I could never picture in my mind that he was the guy police say is Son of Sam. I heard he'd been arrested, I was shocked for about an hour."

Berkowitz had a religious drive. Born and raised Jew, he became a Baptist. In Korea, he went on drugs but — again the duality — preached Christianity to his buddies, went to revival meetings instead of going out with them at night. He carried a Bible after leaving Korea.

One post-Korean army friend, Paul Billow, who served with Berkowitz at Fort Knox, Ky., in 1973-74, described him as a "Jesus freak — most of his social life consisted of revival meetings."

"He was deep-centered, very opinionated. I never contradicted him. And he was extremely religious."

TERRY PETERSON, who also knew Berkowitz in Korea five years ago, had a slightly different version of Berkowitz. He said Berkowitz used drugs but never drank and that he hated Korean women because prostitution there was common. He said Berkowitz filed as a conscientious objector and refused to carry a gun, even on maneuvers.

Berkowitz wrote from Korea to a friend: "One day me and Jesus talked, you know, the usual story. Anyhow we got to some big thinking."

In Korea, Berkowitz dramatically changed from a hawk to a dove, from a right-winger to the left. He wrote a friend in New York to support the Students for a Democratic Society: "Keep the movement moving on the home front, and I'll keep it moving here."

When Berkowitz, an adopted child, returned from Korea, he sought and found his natural mother, a cleaning lady in New York, and learned for the first time that he had a sister, who had not been put up for adoption.

HOW MUCH AN event like that would affect his personality is anybody's guess. As a youth, David was inclined toward temper tantrums. His adoptive parents were loving toward him, almost doting, and careful of his needs, according to acquaintances.

He was raised in middle-class neatness, in marked contrast to the mess of the apartment he was living in when he was arrested. A Washington Post photographer David Berliner, who was charged with trespassing when he entered the place, said:

DAVID BERKOWITZ

'The police had said it was messy and dirty. That was a generous statement. It looked as if it hadn't been cleaned in years, as if he had made a concentrated effort to make a mess."

The floor was strewn with army fatigues, how-to books, and Bob Dylan records. Above the bed, printed in red ink, was "Sam Carr my master." Nearby was: "Kill Sam Carr." Other messages were on the walls. Strewn about were newspaper clippings about "Son of Sam" murders.

Five other murder indictments are scheduled to follow the Moscowitz-Violante ones. But will the alleged Son of Sam ever get to trial?

WHEN ARRESTED, the pudgy man with the soft face flashed his vacuous smile and politely greeted arresting officers.

But when he pleaded innocent later, with his atorneys saying they would use insanity as a defense, he was impassive and unsmiling.

Now he its in hi

Now he sits in his spare room of the Kings County Hospital answering the questions of psychiatrists. Is this man of contrasts competent to stand trial and face a jury of his peers?

What does David see when he looks at Rorschach ink blots?

Does he see an angry dog? Or Korean prostitutes? Or a mother who put him out for adoption?

What goes on in the mind of the man accused of multiple murder? Perhaps David R. Berkowitz doesn't even know.

Senate panel to probe banking practices

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Senate Banking Committee Chairman William Proxmire announced Sunday his panel will investigate the "ethics and soundness" of banking practices in light of Budget Director Bert Lance's financial dealings.

Proxmire, D-Wis., said the investigation will delve into a number of areas — compensating and correspondent bank balances, loan collateral, over-draft policies, failure of bank officials to file reports on borrowings and business ventures, and varying interest rates charged different customers.

"The report of the Comptroller of the Currency on Budget Director Lance raises a number of serious questions about both the ethics and soundness of banking practices." Proxmire said.

HIS STATEMENT gave no indication that the Banking Committee plans to probe Lance's activities. The Senate Government Affairs Committee has scheduled the beginning of that investigation Sept. 7.

Though the Comptroller of the Currency said last week Lance's complex banking practices did not involve any criminal wrongdoing, Proxmire said the report raised a number of questions:

• Was there an understanding that Lance would get a loan from the Manufacturers Hanover Trust Co. of New York in return for Lance's bank — the National Bank of Georgia — leaving 20 per cent of the loan amount in the New York bank?

• Why were neither Lance's loan from Manufacturers Hanover Trust and First National Bank of Chicago fully collateralized or insured with pledged collateral?

• Why were overdrafts in Lance's account and that of his family in his own bank larger than the certificates of deposit on file with the bank and why did the accounts remain interest free for a considerable time?

• Why was Lance allowed not to report 50 loans to either the National Bank of Geaorgia or the Calhoun First National Bank while he was an officer of the banks?

• Why could Lance borrow large sums at the prime interest rate plus a small premium when such interest rates are not routinely available even to affluent borrowers with fully collateralized loans?

"These examples from the report indicate that present bank practices may give special advantages to bankers either from their own banks as insiders or from other banks with whom their banks have a correspondent relationship," Proxmire said.

"These practices go to the very heart of the ethical, efficient and sound conduct of the American banking system," he said. "Our committee will attempt to find out both how widespread these kinds of practices are and what regulatory and-or legal reforms are needed to end the abuses."

Vance to meet new Chinese leadership

TOKYO (UPI)—Sec. of State Cyrus Vance arrived in Japan Sunday en route to meetings in Peking that will give the Carter administration its first look at the new Chinese leadership and possibly open the way for establishment of formal diplomatic relations.

The Vance meeting, which is described as exploratory, comes at the close of China's 11th Communist Party Congress. The weeklong session in Peking put the stamp of approval on the leadership of Chairman Hua Kuo-feng and elected four party vice-chairmen.

It is believed the new Chinese lineup represents a policy that is going to emphasize technical progress, possibly at the expense of revolutionary zeal.

A KEY PHRASE in the closing announcement of the congress — "the successful close of the cultural revolution" — is thought to mean that China has settled its political turmoil and may now be prepared to look to the outside world for technological help.

But on the eve of Vance's arrival in Peking Monday, the Chinese Communist Party newspaper published an editorial charging the United States was "aggressive in nature" and "wants to dominate the world." The editorial did not comment derictly on the Vance visit.

The Vance talks represent the first direct, high-level contact between China's leaders and the new U.S. administration.

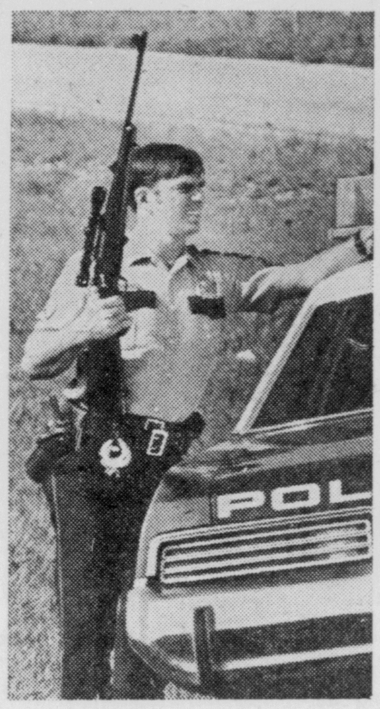

U.S. officials said Vance sent a list of discussion topics to Chinese leaders about two months ago, including the key question of normalizing relations between Peking and Washington.

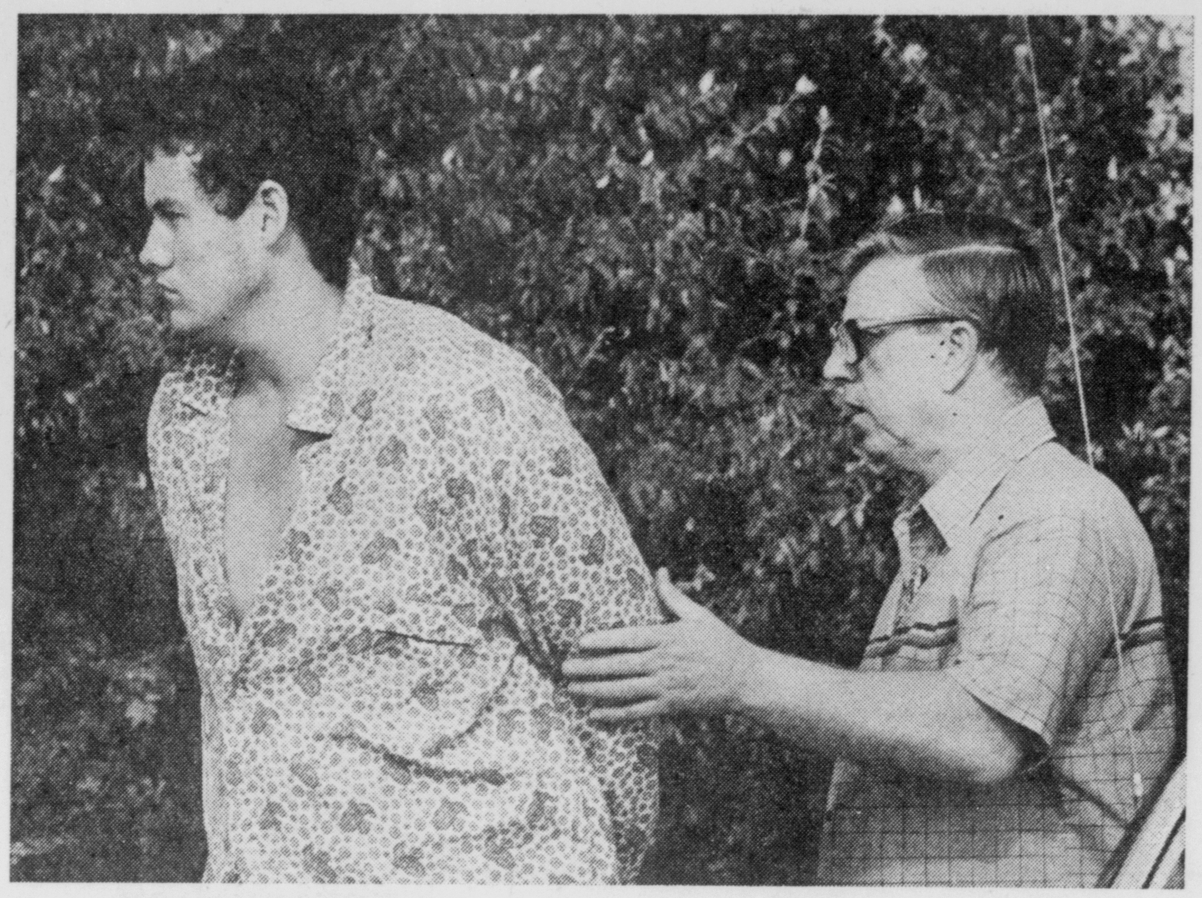

SENIOR U.S. officials said they do not expect this trip to reach any major conclusions. However, if the talks indicate that establishment of diplomatic relations is impossible under terms acceptable to both sides, it could signal an improvement in relations between the Soviets and Chinese.

Vance will spend four days in Peking. The only shceduled meeting is with Foreign Minister Huang Hua, but American officials expect he also will see other senior Chinese leaders, including Hua.

In addition to the possible establishment of formal diplomatic relations between Washington and Peking, Vance will lay out for the Chinese the main lines of American foreign policy, particularly in the Middle East and Africa.

They also will discuss technical problems, including the settlement of opposing financial claims as a result of the Communist takeover of China in 1949.

are men and guns all around you and we'll stay here until you do."

Smith reportedly answered, "I don't care. I'll take the three of you" referring to Sgt. Smith, Case and Evans.

Smith glanced nervously around to see the many armed policemen in the area. Most officers took positions behind cars. One patrolman armed with a 12-gauge shotgun rested in a ditch along the Rte. 53 on-ramp.

The three men spoke quietly with Smith, who occasionally shifted around on his knees near the car trunk.

SGT. SMITH, one of the men who took the suspect into custody, said police have had previous encounters with Smith, but would not elaborate. Police said they had just spoken to Smith Friday in connection with an armed robbery in Palatine but filed no charges against the man.

"I have talked to (Smith) before so I kind of knew him when we talked with him," Smith said. "I just kept talking to him and trying to keep his mind off things. He was on something."

After the surrender, Smith who is about 6 feet, 4 inches tall was led by police to a waiting ambulance.

He was taken to Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights, where, under guard, his stomach was pumped to remove excess drugs, police said.

The incident caused a major traffic jam in the area. Both on and off ramp traffic to Rte. 53 was blocked off by police. Cars on the freeway were backed up several miles before the confrontation was finished.

Elvis fans still flock to king's resting place

MEMPHIA, Tenn. (UPI) — Thousands of Elvis Presley fans wandered about the grounds of the cemetery where his body lies and stood helplessly i front of his hilltop mansion Sunday, swapping memories of the rock 'n' roll king they adored.

Thin yellow ropes and watchful security guards kept the curious 30 feet from the four columned mausoleum where Presley's coffin was sealed Thursday.

Many of the fans were making their second or third visit to see the only memorial, at present, to the singer, who ended an era with his death at the age of 42 Tuesday.

"That really doesn't look like a place Elvis should be," said Cindy Vogelsang of St. Louis, as she and her husband and 2-year-old son sat on a grassy grave plot across from the magnolia-shaded mausoleum.

"To me his being in there with 300 other people pulls him down. He should be set off. He earned it," she said.

Many of the others who, like the Vogelsangs, had driven all night and traveled from places such as Vestal, N.Y., Drumright, Okla., and Erwinville, La., stood about in the heat in clusters, solemnly recounting the greatness of the man whom they called the king.

"I think he should be in a museum with all his clothes he used to wear in his shows," said Gary Patterson, of Drumright. "I think people are here from all over the country and I know they will keep coming. He needs to be in a place all his own."

The sea of flowers which had blanketed the front of the mausoleum during the funeral services Thursday was gone and only a few brought small floral arrangements to lay within the boundaries of the cordoned off area.

These were picked up almost immediately by souvenir-hunting mourners who also plucked blades of grass and limbs from the trees surrounding the mausoleum.

Police said they also had problems with some of the fans who scaled the walls of Presley's mansion, four miles away, in efforts to get a memento.

The gates to the hilltop mansion were opened during the weekend to allow hundreds of fans to stop by the home to take pictures, but police said they were closed Sunday.

Billy Carter says he's subject of discrimination

People

Diane Mermigas

• Billy Carter, in an interview released Sunday, said the federal government is discriminating against him because he is the President's brother. Carter complained to U.S. News and World Report magazine about the audits being made by the Internal Revenue Service on his peanut warehouse, farm and service station at Plains, Ga. "I don't think we've had full-fledged audits except with Jimmy as President," he said. "I don't mind them checking Jimmy's, but I think they've discriminated against me because I'm Jimmy's brother."

On another matter, Carter said an Occupational Safety and Health Administration inspector complained that the fire extinguisher at his Plains servcie station was "too high off the ground and was supposed to be only three feet." A measurement showed it was 3 feet, 2 inches off the ground, Carter said, and "I told him, 'hell, I'm not going to move it down 2 damned inches.' "

5 killed in tornado near Mattoon

MATTOON, Ill. (UPI) — A tornado ripped through the Lake Mattoon area south of this central Illinois community Sunday, killing at least five persons and injuring about 55 others, authorities said.

The state police confirmed five persons were killed and estimated approximately four homes and 45 mobile homes were destroyed in an area one-half mile wide and one-qcarter mile long.

Pat Jenkins, supervisor at Sarahbush Lincoln Health Center in Mattoon, identified the dead as Joseph T. Fitzgerald, 19, Chicago; Dewey A. Mananion, 59, Chicago; Mrs. (Caroline) Stanley McCulloh, 36, Fairbury; and Mrs. (Rosemary) Wayne Corban, 50, Pontiac.

She said the hospital was expecting another body to be brought in later. "They really have not cleared the whole thing yet," she said.

MRS. JENKINS said 55 persons were injured, 20 seriously and four critically. The four in critical condition were transferred to a trauma unit in Champaign.

The state police also said the twister caused extensive crop damage in an area one-mile wide reaching from Windsor, Ill., to the Lake Mattoon area, with partial damage to some outbuildings.

Mattoon police officer Charles Applegate said the tornado touched down in the Coles County area at about 1:30 p.m. and hit the Prahl Trailer Court and the New Hope Camp for retarded children. However, no children were injured, superviser Jenkins said.

Jim Shadwick, communications officer with the Civil Defense office in Mattoon, said the retarded children were taken home Saturday and were not in the camp.

"It is a total disaster," Shadwick said of the area. "It is mostly mobile homes in the area. Most of the mobile homes were destroyed. There's quite a bit of tree damage. Crops were completely flattened."

HE SAID the mobile homes were "completely blown away. They were torn into small bits and distributed two to three quarters of a mile away." Cumberland County Sheriff's dispatcher Dan Dunn said there was "extensive property damage" in the area.

Canal pact danger to U.S.: admiral

WASHINGTON (UPI) — To retired Adm. Thomas Moorer, the acid test for the new Panama Canal treaty is "Will it work in wartime?"

Moorer, former chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, said the test must be applied to any diplomatic agreement, and he indicated he does not think the new canal pact passes muster.

"I have yet to see any solid justification advanced as to why the United States should willingly sacrifice the strategic advantages afforded to us by our possession of the Panama Canal," he said.

The treaty, which must be ratified by the Senate before it takes effect, would dismantle the Canal Zone and give Panama control of the waterway by the year 2000.

STRONG OPPOSITION is being mounted to the agreement, and in testimony before the House Merchant Marine Committee last week, Moorer attacked the accords from a military point of view.

He also questioned whether the current Joint Chiefs really support the agreement, though they have publicly endorsed it.

Moorer, who retired in 1974, said, if the canal is to become permanently neutral as the new accords require, the United States would not be able to close it to enemy shipping in wartime. That could lead to encirclement of the United States by hostile powers, he said.

The State Department disagrees with Moorer's assessment. In a fact sheet on the new agreement it said, the United States will retain access and rights to military installations necessary to defend the canal through 1999.

Carter plan 'schizophrenia': Crane

Gen. Omar Torrijos," Crane said.

"THE NEW treaty not only surrenders our sovereign rights and jurisdiction over the canal, but we are handing over our canal to a repressive military regime which has no more right to govern Panama than it has to our canal," Crane said.

Crane cited the Carter administration's professed dedication to human rights and said the proposed treaty does not guarantee the canal's neutrality.

"What we are being told is that Panama has accepted an indefinite role for the United States in defending the canal after the expiration of the new treaty in 1999," Crane said.

He said, "What we have not been told is that this guarantee of neutrality is not and will not be included in the treaty itself with Panama, but rather is a separate so-called 'protocol statement' that will be deposited with the Organization of American States."

Crane said he also was disappointed that former President Gerald Ford approved of the new treaty, though Ford had pledged in his 1976 campaign platform to reject any "diminuation of America's sovereign rights over the Panama Canal."

Voyager 2 OK after shaky start

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI)—The Voyager 2 space probe to the outer planets was sailing toward giant Jupiter Sunday, apparently functioning well despite a shaky start that had scientists worried it might be a failure.

Voyager was launched from Cape Canaveral Saturday morning and its control taken over by Jet Propulsion Laboratory here after it separated from its launch rockets.

One of the major problems was an apparent failure of the boom that holds the television cameras and science instruments to deploy fully after separation.

"ENGINEERS now believe it is within a very few degrees of full deployment, if not fully deployed," a JPL spokesman said Sunday.

The spacecraft is one of two to be aimed at the outer planets of Jupiter, largest in the solar system, and Saturn in a continuing search for knowledge of the origins of the planets. It was designated "Voyager 2" although it was launched first.

Voyager 1 is to be launched Sept. 1 on a faster trajectory and should encounter Jupiter four months ahead of Voyager 2, early in 1979.

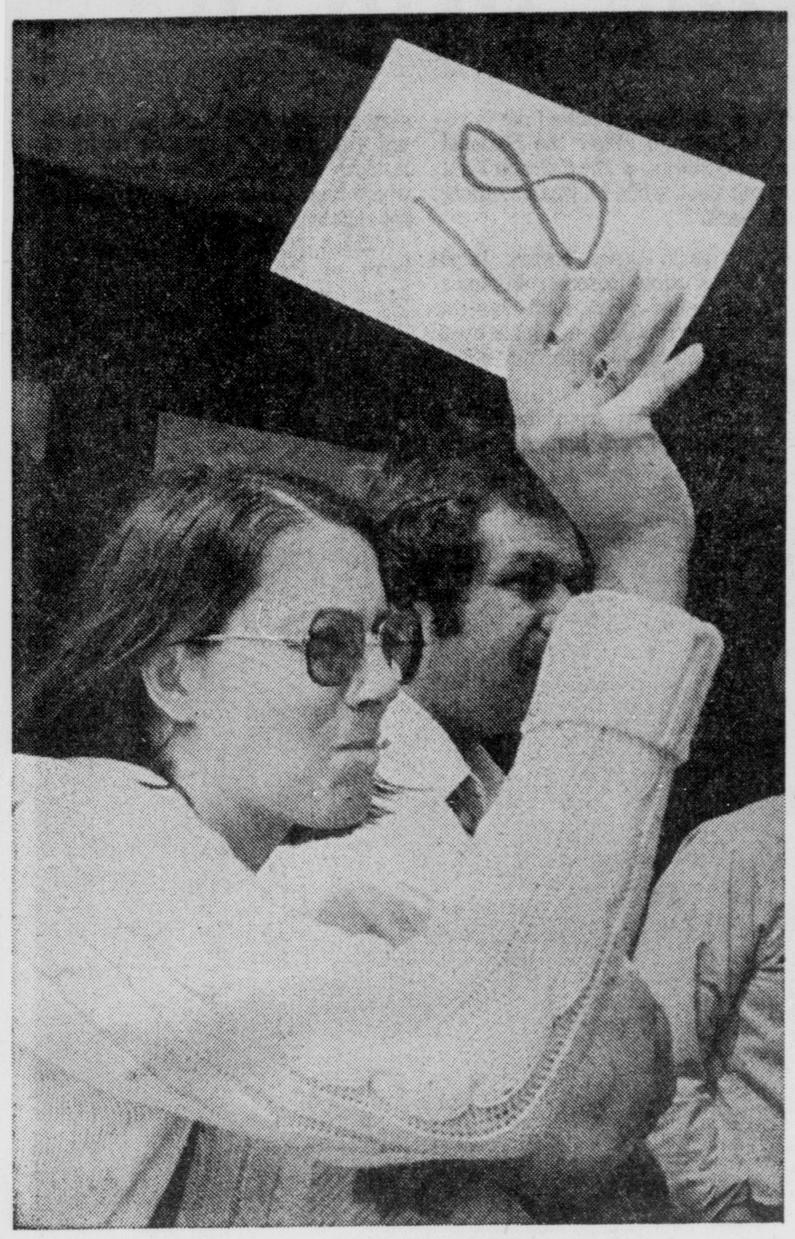

Shortly after separation the space probe unfolded, but indications received on Earth were that one of three gyroscopes malfunctioned, a computer memory was faulty and the science boom did not deploy.

PROGRAM OFFICIALS met at Cape Canaveral Sunday to determine whether the problems with Voyager 2 would force a delay in the scheduled launch of Voyager 1. The launch would be delayed if the Voyager 1 spacecraft has to undergo further tests.

"Two of the three problems which came up yesterday during launch have diminished somewhat," Alan Wood of JPL said.

"The faulty computer memory is being checked today. There may have been a rough launch," he said, "but it's a very accurate one. It's on an excellent trajectory and we have to do only a minimum maneuver next week or so to bring it close on the target point of Jupiter.

"The science instruments that are on are all working normally," Wood said. "But there is practically no data because the channels are being used for engineering to analyze the problems."

GOING ONCE, going twice . . . Those words filled the air Saturday at the Barrington Square Mall in Hoffman Estates during an antique auction. Spouting the familiar phrase was auctioneer Ron Albert, who tries to sell an old mirror. Dubious distinction for state's drivers

Illinois' 6 million drivers share the dubious distinction of leading the nation in traffic accidents, but National Safety Council figures indicate Massachusetts motorists may be the worst on the road. The NSC reported Illinois drivers were involved in 551,892 accidents last year — almost one per minute — and more than any other state in the union. Texas, with 468,596, was second. NSC statistician Alan Hosken pointed out, however, Illinois statistics cover all accidents with at least $100 property damage, while some states such as Massachusetts report only accidents with $200 or more in property damage.

Insurance figures show a Boston driver must pay about $839 a year — one of the highest rates in the country — to insure a medium-sized car with a $200 deductible clause. A central city driver in Chicago pays about $525 a year for a $100 deductible policy.

Fair manager ponders new job

Illinois State Fair Manager Nick Stone said Sunday he is considering taking a job with the State Department of Conservation as the head of a federally funded youth corps conservation program. Stone, who was at first reluctant to talk about the position, said later, "I have been offered a job with the Department of Conservation to be statewide coordinator of the Youth Conservation Corps program." Stone said he had discussions with the Department of Conservation in June but talk of a possible switch in jobs had been put "in the deep freeze" until after this year's fair, which ended Sunday. Stone said he expected to make his decision on whether to take the DOC job by January.

Area homeowners fear big tax hikes

Some 500,000 northwest area homeowners may face huge property tax increases in the next few weeks like the ones that spurred North Shore residents to talk of a taxpayers revolt. The Cook County Assessor's office will begin this week to mail out cards announcing quadrennial reassessments for the half-million homeowners in northwest city and suburban townships. Many homeowners in the already reassessed northeast quadrant were hit with sudden hikes, some as high as 300 per cent.

James L. Tobin, president of National Taxpayers United of Illinois, said he received seven more speaking invitations this week, most from northern communities. "Based on what's already happened in the north suburbs, I expect most of next year's assessments to jump 20 to 100 per cent," he said. Officials in the office of Assessor Thomas Tully refused to confirm or deny whether the next batch of taxes would go up as dramatically as those in the northeast quadrant.

Arson suspected in Chicago fires

Two persons were killed in two suspected arson fires during the weekend in Chicago. Pedro Ferguson, 20, was charged with the murder of a man identified by the Cook County Medical Examiner's office as William Antzak, 68, killed Saturday night in a boarding house fire on the South Side. Police were investigating the possibility that Ferguson set other fires in the area early Sunday. In a North Side apartment fire, Sammy Diaz, about 40, was pronounced dead of smoke inhalation after firemen discovered him unconscious in his bedroom. Although no evidence of arson was discovered, investigators said arson was suspected.

Mills doesn't remember Tidal Basin

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Wilbur Mills, now a crusader against alcoholism, says he does not remember the Tidal Basin incident which led to his plunge from power or his stroll onto a burlesque stage with striptease dancer Fanne Foxe.

At one point, the former congressman said, he suffered memory blackouts so frequently he "would get up in the morning and read in the paper that I had been at the Oval Office the day before with President Ford. Yet I would have absolutely no recollection of being at the White House."

Wilbur Mills

He said he also failed to remember meetings of the House Ways and Means Committee, of which he was chairman.

MILLS AND HIS wife, Polly, talked about their personal battles against alcoholism in an interview published in Parade Magazine Sunday.

"I have absolutely no recollection of the Tidal Basin incident," said Mills of the night Miss Foxe jumped into water near the Jefferson Memorial and their relationship became public. Nor does he remember visiting her at a burlesque house in Boston in 1974, where he even called an impromptu news conference.

"How much more insame could I have been?" he said.

"At one time," Mills said, "I thought the buzzards had me and I imagined the sun was completely hidden by thousands of buzzards, all trying to get me."

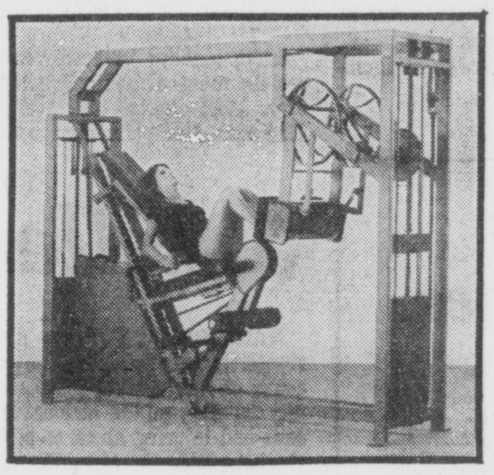

BUT MILLS SAID not even those events convinced him he was an alcoholic suffering from delirium tremens. And after a drying-out stint at Bethesda Naval Hospital, he said, he did not drink for two weeks but then "decided that I had to prove I wasn't an alcoholic, that I could drink safely."

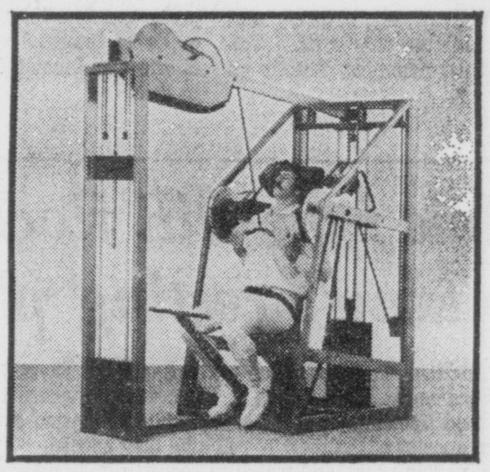

"On Feb. 13, I went to the liquor store, bought two quarts of 100-proof vodka and drank them both. I was back in the hospital within 24 hours. When I woke up, I was convinced."

Mills now attends daily meetings of Alcoholics Anonymous with his wife, Polly, who says she also was an alcoholic. He says he has not had a drink since Feb. 14, 1975, and is confident he is winning his fight.

Mills said early signs that a person should get help are when "you find yourself drinking regularly, getting into a habit finding you need a drink, things like that . . . "

Elections bill may shorten terms of April winners

by LUISA GINNETTI

Mayors, village presidents, municipal clerks and city treasurers elected in April will have their four-year terms cut in half if a bill now awaiting Gov. James. R. Thompson's signature is not amended.

The technical quirk, which would require all mayors, village presidents, clerks and treasurers to run for four-year terms beginning in 1979 is part of the consolidated elections bill passed by the General Assembly in the closing days of the June session.

One intent of the bill is to have all village presidents, mayors, clerks and treasurers elected in the same odd-numbered years. However, State Sen. David J. Regner, R-Mount Prospect, Senate sponsor of the bill, said the wrong years were written into the bill.

REGNER SAID THE bill should say that all village presidents, mayors, clerks and treasurers up for election in 1979 will serve two-year terms so all these officials will run for four-year terms in 1981. Trustees and aldermen are not affected by the bill.

"Technically, the way the bill reads now, those elected in 1977 would have to run again in 1979," Regner said. He said that if the bill is signed into law by Thompson as expected, he will introduce legislation in the fall session to correct the dates.

"I've already talked to the sponsors of the bills and some Democrats about it," he said. If the bill is signed and an amendment fails to pass in the fall, however, the shortening of terms will take effect.

If the governor signs the bill and it is not amended in the fall, affected municipal officials would have to file suit to get the law changed, Regner said. "They certainly would have a justifiable lawsuit," he said.

SIXTEEN OFFICIALS in the Northwest suburbs would be affected if the legislation is not amended in the fall.

Among those elected in April and affected by the bill are Arlington Heights Village Pres. James T. Ryan, Palatine Village Pres. Robert J. Guss and Village Clerk Carolyn Bracci, Hoffman Estates Village Pres. Virginia Hayter and Village Clerk Helen Wozniak, Mount Prospect Mayor Carolyn Krause and Village Clerk Donald W. Goodman, Des Plaines Mayor Herbert H. Volberding, City Clerk Eleanor Rohrbach and City Treasurer Ewald A. Swanson, Elk Grove Village Pres. Charles Zettek and Village Clerk Eleanor Turner, Wheeling Village Pres. William Hein and Village Clerk Alberta Klocke and Inverness Village Pres. Russell V. Puzey and Village Clerk Sandy Johnson.

Most local officials were unaware of the bill which threatens their terms and said it should not be signed as it now reads.

"It sounds like a real mess," Palatine Village Pres. Guss said. "From my end of it I know we ran for four years, we took oaths for four years, the electorate elected us for four years and for someone to wipe it out like this is just unreal."

GUSS, WHO WAS elected to his first term as village president in April, said the bill should be redrafted and not signed by the governor.

Arlington Heights Village Pres. Ryan said he was aware of the amendment but believes the governor should veto the bill.

"I think it would be a serious mistake to sign it," Ryan said. "When mistakes are made they should be recognized as such and corrected."

Hoffman Estates Village Pres. Hayter said she has been aware of the problem with the bill for some time.

"That's what happens when you've got 4,500 bills going," she said. "Everybody jumped on the bandwagon because they called it consolidation. It doesn't bug me (that her term may be shortened) but what bugs me is the fact that they just didn't listen.

"THEY'RE GETTING me mad and usually when people get me mad I go after those jobs," Mrs. Hayter said.

Regner said he is not in favor of an amendatory veto of the bill in which the governor could refuse to approve only that part of the bill dealing with the terms of office and agree to enact the remaining portions of the bill.

An amendatory veto would send the entire bill back to the legislature for an override vote, a situation which Regner wants to avoid.

"Too many people were against the bill and it would just start the whole battle over again," he said. "I would rather do it (correct the bill) by amending it in the fall."

THE ILLINOIS Municipal League in its Aug. 8 newsletter to member communities has urged municipalities to encourage the governor to veto the entire consolidated elections bill.

In addition to altering the terms of mayors, clerks and treasurers elected this year, the bill specifies that in even-numbered years, primary elections will be in May and general elections in November. In odd-numbered years, primaries would be in March, all school park and municipal elections in May and non-partisan referendums in November.

The bill would also transfer control of municipal elections from the hands of local village and city clerks to the county clerk's office.

Police arrest 5 at youth party

Palatine police Saturday night broke up a party of 300 youths and arrested five of them on charges ranging from curfew violation to mob action and unlawful use of weapons.

Police said they broke up a drinking party of 300 youths, ages 15 through 22, which had overflowed a house and spilled out into Linden Street near Palatine Road at 10:30 p.m. Saturday.

After receiving complaints from neighbors, eight Palatine policemen moved in to break up the gathering, while police units from Arlington Heights and the Cook County Sheriff's Police and forest preserve rangers stood by, police said.

Those arrested were Vincent Maher, 19, of Park Ridge; Vincent D. Caccionoce, 17, of Hoffman Estates; John P. Faflik, 18, of 1418 W. Thomas St., Arlington Heights; and two 16-year-old Palatine boys, police said. Investigators had no address for Caccionoce.

Police charged Maher with mob action and resisting arrest, and Caccionoce with unlawful use of weapons, after he allegedly left the party and threatened patrons at the nearby Jack-in-the-Box Restaurant at Northwest Highway and Palatine Road with a steel bar.

POLICE ARRESTED Faflik on a traffic warrant for Arlington Heights; one 16-year-old after he allegedly threw a beer bottle at a police squad car; and the other juvenile for curfew violation.

Maher, Caccionoce and Faflik were released after they each posted $100 bail on $1,000 bonds. Maher and Caccionoce were ordered to appear Sept. 15, and Faflik Sept. 28, in the Arlington Heights branch of Cook County Circuit Court.

The juveniles were turned over to their parents to await action by the juvenile division of the Palatine Police Dept.

House 'settlement' cost protection hit

The government has fallen down on its job of protecting American consumers who spend $7 billion each year for the "settlement" costs associated with buying and selling a home, a Ralph Nader group charged Sunday. "The purchase and sale of a home is probably the most important consumer transaction undertaken by the average American," the group said in a letter to Housing Secretary Patricia Harris. Yet, it said, HUD has only three people working to keep down excessive settlement costs and the staff is "crippled by its small size."

Buyers and sellers of homes — in a "painful and unnecessarily expensive" process — spend more than $7 billion a year on real estate brokers, title companies and others who sell services needed to close a housing deal, the Housing Research Group said. The group, part of Nader's Center for the Study of Responsive Law, said the 1974 Real Estate Settlement Procedures Act requires HUD to find ways to end abuses in the field. But HUD currently is not even collecting basic information to make the law work, the group said.

Mossler estate claims to be heard

A judge Monday will hear claims by two adopted children of the late millionairess Candace Mossler that they were disinherited because their mother suffered from delusions they wished her harm. Attorney John Holloway, representing Daniel ~~and~~ Christopher Mossler, filed the petition last week with Probate Judge Pat Gregory, who will decide the disposition of the $20 million Mossler estate. A third adopted child, Martha Mossler Meredith, also was disinherited but has chosen not to contest the matter.

Mrs. Mossler was tried and acquitted on murder charges in the death of husband Jacques Mossler more than a decade ago. She died last fall at 62 of a drug overdose in a Miami Beach, Fla., hotel. Mrs. Mossler had filed a 1968 will providing for equal division of her estate between six children, three of them adopted. But in 1975 she filed an amendment disinheriting the three adopted children.

Miner assessment plan to be eyed

A proposal to assess miners $30 a month to replenish skimpy union health funds until the current coal contract expires will be introduced at the United Mine Workers International Executive Board meeting here Monday, District 17 Vice President Cecil Roberts said Sunday. Roberts said the proposal has the support of board members from his own militant Charleston-based district as well as their counterparts from District 29 in the southermost region of West Virginia. "If there's a roll call vote, that's a substantial number," said Roberts. He was not certain how many of the 24 IEB members would endorse his idea.

Board members from across the U.S. and Canada began traveling to West Virginia Sunday in preparation for the session they hope will help halt the two-month-old wildcat strike that has idled some 90,000 miners in five states.

Mafia crime prober 'executed' in Sicily

A police colonel who specialized in investigating Mafia crimes for almost a decade was gunned down by a four-man "execution squad" while strolling with a friend near Corleone, Sicily, a Mafia capital, police said Sunday. The gunmen, who pulled up in a car, killed both Col. Giuseppe Russo, 49, and elementary school teacher Filippo Costa, 50, as they walked in shorts and sweaters on a sultry Saturday night at the Ficuzza woods holiday resort. For seven years Russo had headed the anti-Mafia division of the elite state Carabinieri police in Palermo. He was granted a temporary leave of absence six months ago after telling friends he wanted to open a small business.

Police threw out a dragnet to creck on all known Mafiosi on the western tip of Sicily but, as always, were having trouble finding anyone who would even admit witnessing the double slaying. Police said one man, whom they refused to name, told them he saw a car with four men circling the square in which Russo and Costa were strolling near their holiday villas. The car slightly bumped a child and the driver got out to check. He child was not injured and the car resumed its prowl. As Russo turned his shoulders into the breeze to light a cigarette, one man stepped out of the car and shot him in the back of the neck with a heavy caliber revolver, the witness said.

U.S. objections nixed by Israel

The Israeli government Sunday rejected as "unjustified" U.S. objections to the establishment of new Jewish settlements in the occupied West Bank of the Jordan River. State Department Spokesman Hodding Carter said last week the United States feels Israeli settlement in occupied territories violates international law as well as blocking progress toward peace. "The government expresses its sorrow at the unjustified statements from the State Department spokesman," a cabinet communique said.

"Israel does not accept and cannot accept the argument that Jewish settlement in the land of Israel is illegal. The government restates that settlement is not and will not be an obstacle to negotiations toward peace," the communique said.

Delegates meet to end apartheid

Delegates from more than 60 countries, including America's outspoken U.N. Ambassador Andrew Young, gathered in Nigeria Sunday for a U.N. conference aimed at helping South African blacks "eradicate apartheid." U.N. Secretary General Kurt Waldheim opens the five-day meeting Monday in a show of support for black Africa's fight to end official segregation in the white-ruled subcontinent. Zambian president Kenneth Kaunda, Guyana Prime Minster Forbes Burnham and Norwegian Premier Odvar Nordli are among the heads of state scheduled to attend the conference, officially called the World Conference Against Apartheid. Twenty other nations sent representatives of cabinet rank.

Young headed the U.S. delegation. Earlier this year he attended a similar U.N.-sponsored gathering in Maputo, Mozambique. On a stopover in Frankfurt Saturday, Young said he was going early "to get some sense of the mood of the conference." The only Rhodesian nationalists invited were Joshua Nkomo and Robert Mugabe of the militant Patriotic Front. Their group recently was recognized by the Organization of African Unity as the official representative of blacks in Rhodesia.

Ethiopia orders total mobilization

Admitting serious losses to Somali insurgents for the first time Ethiopian strongman Mengistu Haile Mariam ordered total national mobilization to fight major wars on two fronts, Radio Addis Ababa said Sunday. Ethiopia reported its war-planes shot down two more Smoali MIG-21 fighters and claimed aerial supremacy over Mogadishu's squadrons. Mengistu said the encirclement of Ethiopia has "turned into an open invasion" in both the northern province of Eritrea and the southeast Ogaden Desert. He ordered a total mobilization of manpower and resources, ending a 30-minute speech to the nation with the chant: "Everything to the battlefront. Revolutionary motherland or death."

He also announced the second major army reshuffle in less than a month as heavy fighting raged for the sixth straight day around the major Ogaden strongholds of Dire Dana and Harar.

High court changes noted

Slight busing would pass: judge

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — The judge who ordered massive busing to desegregate Louisville area schools in 1975 says the U.S. Supreme Court's approach to school desegregation has changed enough in two years that only minimal busing would be required if the Louisville case were coming before the high court now.

U.S. District Court Judge James F. Gordon, whose order requiring busing of more than 22,600 students was met with violent resistance in its initial stages, said the present Supreme Court probably would be satisfied with the desegregation of only two schools instead of the 160 now involved in his busing plan.

"If the Louisville case was coming before the Supreme Court now, I think my original finding would have been upheld," Gordon said.

"THE SUPREME Court as then constituted (in 1975) felt there ought to be countywide remedies. They have, in my judgment, changed their course of movement on desegregation . . ."

Gordon said he originally wanted to use busing to desegregate only two schools that were found to be operating under policies of deliberate segregation.

That plan was rejected by the U.S. 6th Circuit Court of Appeals at Cincinnati, which ordered Gordon to come up with a plan to desegregate all schools in Jefferson County, the nation's 18th largest school district.

The Supreme Court earlier this year refused to hear an appeal of Gordon's countywide busing plan. However, a recent high court ruling in a Dayton, Ohio, desegregation case narrowing the scope of busing prompted school board lawyers from Louisville to seek a rehearing of their appeal.

GORDON SAID the difference of one justice on the Supreme Court and the timing of the Louisville case made the difference in whether the busing plan used to remedy segregation was countywide or strictly limited.

"It's hard to explain to people that that's how the system works," he said. "The Supreme Court changes its approach as it develops the law."

The judge, whose busing plan is entering its third year, said he does not expect "any problems" when Jefferson County schools open Aug. 30. Officials said they expect about 113,000 students for the 1977-78 school year, compared with about 129,000 students when busing began in September 1975.

Gordon said law enforcement authorities were well-prepared to deal with any renewal of violent protests, but said he felt there would be none since the community had learned to accept the desegregation plan.

"I think it's been very successful," he said. "There's been a minimum of white flight compared with other cities like Memphis where they've had busing.

"The emotion and passion has been depleted enough that very few people are going to sell their house and get a new job somewhere else just over busing.

Militants block Spanish-French line

MADRID, Spain (UPI) — Hundreds of Basque militants Sunday blocked traffic at the Spanish-French border, hoisted their red-white-and-green nationalist flag and streamed across a bridge 50 yards into France to demand the release of a jailed guerrilla leader.

The demonstration capped two days of violent street protests and a car-bombing campaign aimed at freeing a Basque separatist imprisoned in Marseilles, France, and reportedly growing weak from a three-week hunger strike.

The young militants marched onto the Saint Jacques Bridge at the northern Basque town of Irun and lowered the Spanish and French flags, the national news agency Cifra said.

IT CALLED the confrontation with border police "tense."

French police in the town of Hendaye said an estimated 800 Basques crossed over the bridge chanting anti-French slogans. The demonstrators hurled the French and Spanish flags into a river, they said.

Some 50 French officers met the marchers near the border and asked them to return to Spain, the police said. They complied and there was no violence.

Spanish officials said the demonstrators marched 50 yards into French territory but returned to Spain and left the scene within an hour. They said traffic was quickly restored.

On Friday and Saturday nights, Spanish riot police fired smoke bombs and rubber bullets at thousands of leftists marching on the French consulate in San Sebastian.

The demonstrators scattered but later built make-shift street barricades, slashed city bus tires and broke the windows of several banks.

THE CLASHES injured more than two dozen persons, including a 19-year-old girl who is in danger of losing her right eye, local hospitals said.

In another outburst of violence, at least 10 cars bearing French license plates were set afire on Spain's northeastern coast in Catalonia, police sources said.

A group calling itself the "Red Guerrillas" claimed it burned 20 French cars in the region as a warning to Paris for arresting "the Basque patriot and revolutionary Migeul Angel Apalategui."

Apalategui, a leader of the separatist guerrilla group Basque Homeland and Liberty, was arrested several months ago. Madrid has asked for his extradition on charges of kidnaping and other violent crimes.

His brother said Apalategui has become very weak and can hardly speak because of a hunger strike he began July 31.

Skyjacking suspect sets fire to jail cell bedding

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — A skyjacking suspect arrested after diverting a passenger jet by threatening to blow up a bomb in an airsickness bag set fire to six mattresses in his jail cell Sunday. Jailers said he "wanted to commit suicide and was cold."

Sheriff's deputies at the Salt Lake County Jail said Jerry R. Mills, 36, Escondido, Calif., set the fire in a "quarantine" cell where he was being held without bail after surrendering to the FBI.

Jailers extinguished the fire. No one was injured.

"He said he wanted to commit suicide — and was cold," said a jail spokesman. "He's back in solitary now, without even a bench to sit on."

MILLS BOARDED Western Airlines flight 550 from San Diego to Denver Saturday night and, after takeoff, allegedly called a flight attendant and said he had a bomb.

He demanded that the plane, with 24 passengers aboard, fly to Salt Lake City.

"I surmise he just wanted attention," said Grant Murray, spokesman for Western Airlines.

"We wondered how anything could have gotten through San Diego security. He just didn't have anything. He had a white paper bag, a barf bag we call it."

Fifteen minutes after the plane landed in Salt Lake FBI agents persuaded Mills to release the 24 passengers. After another quarter-hour of negotiations over the plane's intercom system, he freed the crew of seven and surrendered.

I'm no danger, says would-be Ford assassin

ALDERSON, W. Va. (UPI) — Convicted would-be presidential assassin Sara Jane Moore says she isn't dangerous enough to be housed in the new maximum security section at the federal women's prison here, Newhouse News Service reported Sunday.

"I'm not a danger to myself or any other inmate," Miss Mooore, 47, said in the copyrighted story. "I've not complained about my sentence at all, and I don't deserve to be in maximum security, cut off from the rest of the world.

"I've never been abusive or destructive. I don't even cuss," she added.

AFTER SPENDING 18 months in a Terminal Island, Calif., prison, Miss Moore was recently transferred to Alderson. She arrived several days after Lynette "Squeaky" Fromme, who was also convicted of trying to kill President Ford in 1975.

"Do you know why the government built this maximum security area?" Miss Moore asked her interviewer. "Just to house Squeaky and me, that's why."

Miss Moore said she and Miss Fromme, whom she once described as "insane," have "nothing in common." When they run into each other in the halls of the prison — they are housed on the same floor — they just "wave and say hello."

BORN IN Charleston, W. Va., Miss Moore was an aspiring actress who married four times (twice to the same man) and became both a member of the radical left and an FBI informer.

Although she is serving a life sentence for the attempted assassination, she said she is not a threat to society.

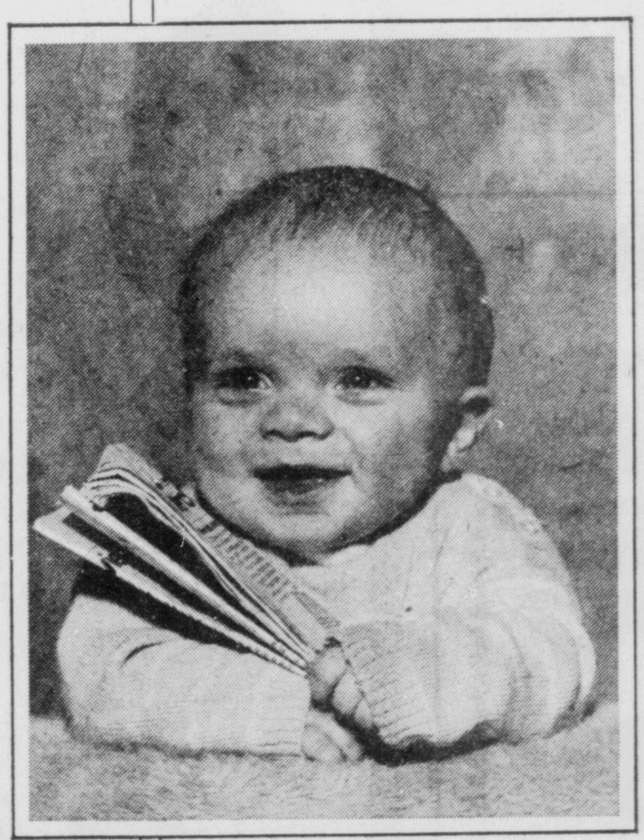

"Would I grab a gun and head to Washington and shoot President Carter?" she said. "Absolutely not. But that's what the government thinks.

"But I must be doing something right if the government considers me dangerous," she laughed.

The assassination attempt "had nothing to do with Gerald Ford, the person," she said. "The target was not the individual, but what the government stood for and what it does to its own citizens."

Puerto Rico: no answer in U.N. debate

BY R. M. SORGE
A news analysis

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — The United Nations is not about to decide the political future of Puerto Rico, though the island's major political factions have brought their grievances against the United States to the world body.

A score of Puerto Rican politicians speaking last week at a four-day debate of the 24-nation U.N. decolonization committee all said their present relationship with Washington is unsatisfactory and smacks of colonialism.

That was about all they agreed on. Otherwise, their views roughly matched the lines their parties took in last November's elections: many wanted full statehood, others associated status with the United States and some outright independence.

AT THE END of the debate, Cuban Ambassador Ricardo Alarcon presented a resolution spelling out his country's longterm commitment to Puerto Rico's right to "self-determination and independence."

The committee deferred a vote on the resolution until Sept. 1 or 2, ostensibly on grounds some of its members had to attend this week's antiapartheid conference in Lagos, Nigeria.

But the real reason was that it was divided, not only over the Cuban resolution but on the entire issue of Puerto Rico's status. All members — even the Cubans — felt more negotiations were necessary.

Diplomatic sources indicated intensive consultations will take place within the next 10 days.

ALARCON WAS confident he had the votes to pass the resolution, which urged Washington to let the Puerto Ricans decide their own future and demanded an end to the island's "colonial situation." It also sought the release of five nationalists jailed since the 1950s for terrorist attacks on U.S. officials.

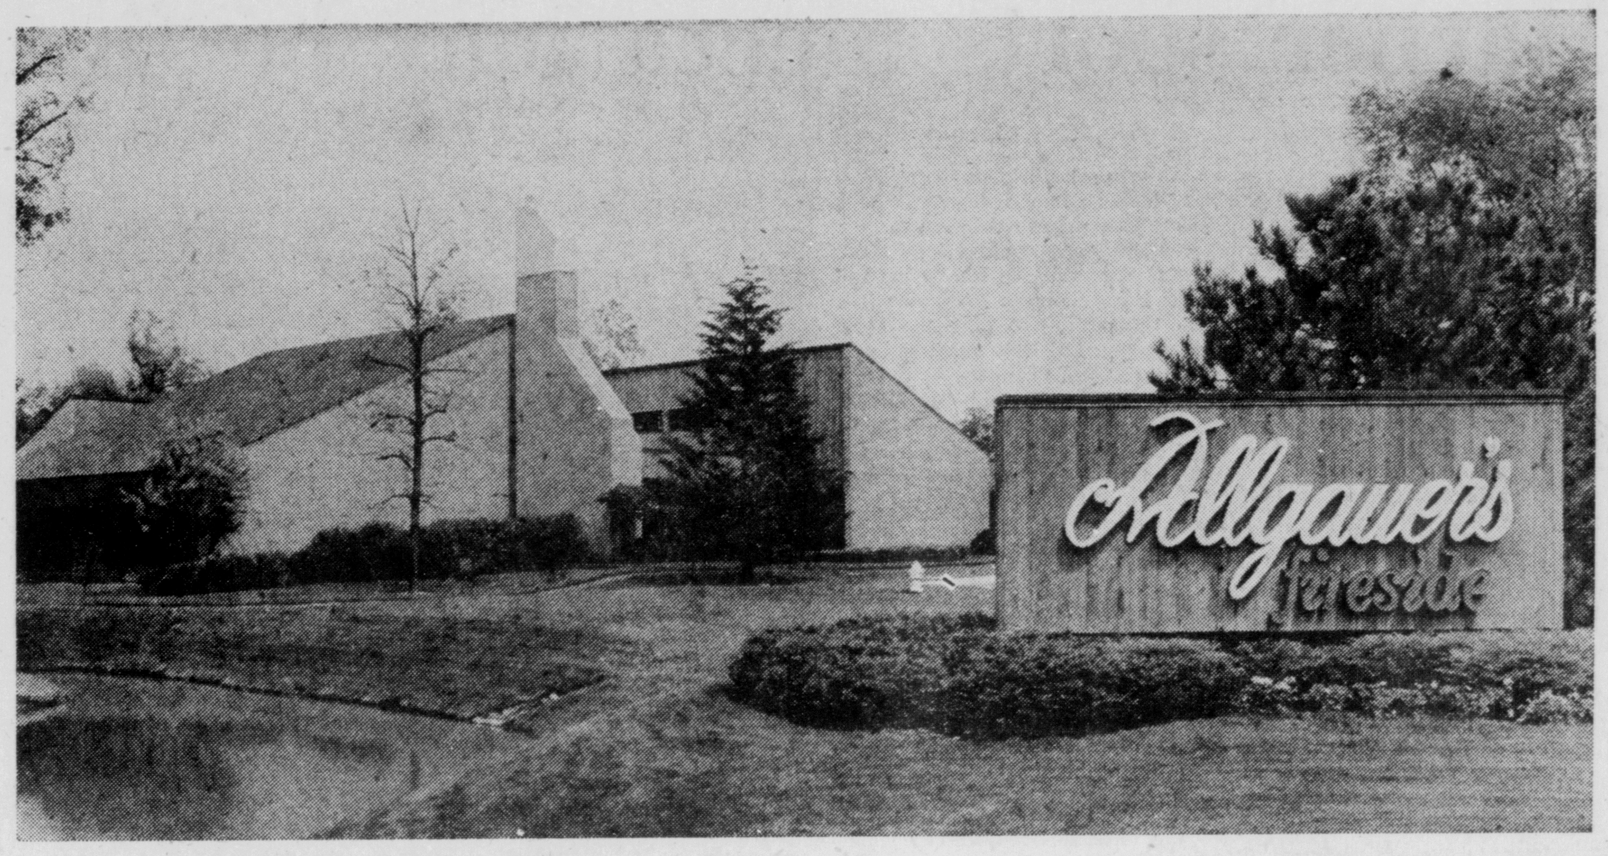

Informed sources estimated the measure would have been adopted 12-8 with four abstentions. In practical terms, such a split vote would likely have hardened the U.S. attitude of ignoring the committee and settling the Puerto Rican problem on its own.

On the other hand, Washington informed the committee on May 17 its policy "is based on complete acceptance of the right of the people of Puerto Rico to self-determination."

The consultations in the next 10 days will be focused on this point and seek to work out a compromise decision to promote negotiations for an acceptable Puerto Rican referendum that may be several years away.

U.S. diplomats privately have agreed the situation is "in a state of evolution."

Whatever the committee decides will have little impact on Puerto Rico's immediate future beyond putting the case further into the international limelight.

ALLGAUER'S FIRESIDE Inn may lie in Prospect Heights, but its advertising will say Northbrook. The restaurant has agreed to drop its disannexation suit against the city if it can still advertise as being located in Northbrook.

Businesses agree

Northbrook—excellent is thy name

by DEBBE JONAK

What is in a name?

Apparently quite a bit, at least as far as some of the businesses on Prospect Heights' east side are concerned.

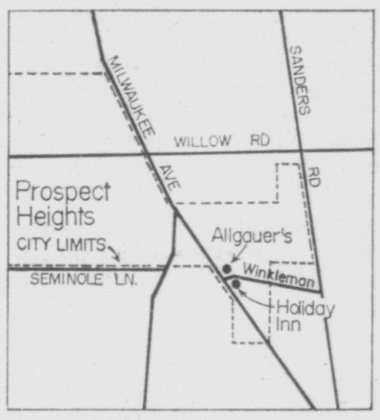

Allgauer's Fireside Inn, the Holiday Inn and Preiser Boarding Kennels, all in the 2800 and 2900 blocks of Milwaukee Avenue, have agreed to drop their disannexation suit against the city — but only if they can continue to name Northbrook as their place of business in advertisements.

A PUBLIC HEARING on a proposed settlement between the city and the businesses tentatively is scheduled for Sept. 12.

The agreement also would provide Holiday Inn and Allgauer's with several zoning variations and assurance that the city does not intend to levy property, employe, parking, entertainment or room taxes.

If signed by both the city council and the businesses, they would drop a suit filed in Cook County Circuit Ct. 14 months ago for disannexation from Prospect Heights.

The suit was filed several months after Prospect Heights incorporated Jan. 31, 1976.

"NOTHING AGAINST Prospect Heights," Frank Allgauer, owner of the Fireside, said. "But Northbrook is better known."

Northbrook has gained fame throughout the years because it has produced many U.S. Olympic skaters, he said.

It is a more recognizable name than the recently established Prospect Heights.

There also are monetary reasons, Allgauer said, explaining more than $50,000 is tied up in signs, matchbooks and literature which say Northbrook.

"IT IS NOT intended to impune or slight Prospect Heights," a spokesman for Holiday Inn said. "It's just fear of the unknown. We have spent a lot of time and money in associating in the public's mind with Northbrook.

"People get a mental image of a place. They think of Allgauers and Northbrook."

Holiday Inn has been associated with Northbrook since its opening more than 10 years ago, he said.

The spokesman said he realized the city council is not too happy with the businesses' desire to advertise as Northbrook residents.

As the city becomes more widely known, he said. "It may very well be that the advertising emphasis changes."

"THE MAYOR'S struggled quite valiantly to get that changed," he said.

Regardless of which town is used in advertising, Prospect Heights will get the sales taxes, he said.

"We hope in a few years that they will realize Prospect Heights is a reality and is a nice place to be associated with," Ald. Christina Carlson said.

Ald. Edward Bryant agreed, saying, "Northbrook is better known as a prestigious suburb than Prospect Heights. But give us a chance. We're a new suburb."

Ald. Fredric Olds, echoing Bryant's and Mrs. Carlson's sentiments, said while he would prefer they advertise as Prospect Heights, he understands why they want to stick with Northbrook.

"They have a large stake in the use of Northbrook — matches, menus," Olds said. "I'm not about to say someone has to throw those out. My personal opinion is someday they'll drop Northbrook and say Prospect Heights."

Presidential yacht owner wants furnishings back

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Missing furnishings from the presidential yacht Sequoia, which was sold this spring as part of President Carter's no-frills campaign, have all been returned to "proper government hands," an official says.

Some items, like the upright piano Harry Truman and Richard Nixon played, have wound up at the Camp David, Md., presidential retreat.

Other usable "government-owned" furnishings such as clocks, barometers, life-saving equipment, linens, dishes and deck furniture were taken from the yacht before it was offered for sale, said W. L. Gulley, director of White House military operations. They were distributed to Navy ships, a Naval museum in Washington and other American facilities, he said.

RHODE ISLAND businessman Thomas Malloy, who bought the 104-foot ing $2 to each person who wants to view it in Providence, R.I., said he will discuss with lawyers whether the government breached the sales contract.

The prospectus stated only "some furnishings" would be removed, he said, and the government broke its word by literally stripping the vessel.

But Gulley suggested Malloy's chances of getting items back are "absolutely nil."

"I don't think there's much public sentiment to turn over usable government property to Malloy so he can charge admission to people to see them," he said. The yacht — built in 1925 for a New Jersey industrialist and bought by the government in 1931 — was auctioned off this spring after Carter decided its $800,000-a-year upkeep was too high.

MALLOY DID GET some yacht furnishings, including a king-sized presidential bed — so big he said the government couldn't figure out how to remove it — a dining room table without chairs and some built-in items.

Gulley said the boat was cleaned out in winter and restocked each spring in time for the boating season, often with items on loan from other government operations.

For example, he said, a picture of George Washington will be returned to the White House curator's office, which lent it to the Sequoia. Lifesaving equipment, on loan from the Coast Guard, also was returned. Dishes used by presidents on the yacht were rotated with the regular White House service and are now back in everyday use — some at Camp David, some at the White House.

Farm laborers attacked by Rhodesian terrorists

ODZANI RIVER JUNCTION, Rhodesia (UPI) — Black terrorists swept onto a white farm and attacked a group of black farm laborers enjoying a Saturday night beer session, shooting and burning to death at least 16 men, women and children, police said Sunday.

A security official said the raid was an attempt to frighten black workers off white farms.

Police Det. Peter J. Kok told correspondents brought by Rhodesian military transport to this farm near the Mozambique border that 15 others were wounded, some critically.

IN THE SHADE of a tree, surrounded by pots, pans and half eaten food, lay the bodies of the massacre victims. Some, like one pregnant woman, were riddled with bullet holes. Others, including children, were almost completely charred.

Two miles away, in the harsh bush, troops discovered an eight-year-old girl who had dragged herself away with a bullet wound in the leg. She was hospitalized.

Kok said two separate gangs of terrorists staged the attack, with one hurling grenades and firing at the house of estate owner Maraus Sleigh while the other raided the laborer's compound about half a mile away.

At the compound, workers, their families and friends from neighboring farms were having a beer-drinking session.

KOK QUOTED survivors as saying the 10 to 20 terrorists dragged families out of brick huts and set fire to the thatch roofs.

"Fortunately a lot of the workers escaped into the cotton fields and the bush," he added.

But those who failed to get away "were herded together and shot at point blank range."

Sleigh, a 49-year-old South African who has farmed in Rhodesia for the past 24 years, said, "I just couldn't imagine that people could do a thing like this.

"People were just crawling around. Some were dying. Some were already dead. We could hear people screaming over in the cotton fields. It was just terrible. I could hardly do anything."

A WORKER WHO manageed to escape said the terrorists had told the laborers "we should leave the farm. That's why we were beaten up."

Kok said black labor on other farms in the eastern Rhodesia area had been intimidated into fleeing but relations between the Odzani farm workers and Sleigh were "exceptionally good."

While the compound was being raided, the other terrorist band of about 10 men fired Communist-made automatic rifles and hurled grenades in an attack on the white brick farmhouse.

But the grenades went over the roof and few shots hit the house.

The farm is located 17 miles north of the city of Umtali, where Prime Minister Ian Smith made a campaign appearance last week.

KOK SAID security forces picked up the tracks of the killers, who are believed to have escaped into the nearby Makoni tribal reserve.

The Zimbabwe African National Liberation Army, the military wing of Robert Mugabe's Zimbabwe African National Union, operates in eastern Rhodesia.

It was the first attack of its kind since terrorists last December mowed down 27 black workers in front of their wives and children at a British-owned tea estate in eastern Rhodesia. Survivors said the workers had been warned to leave the estate.

Harper sports mecca may be finance millstone

$12 million bond helps foot bill of sports center

How can Harper College build a $5.9 million physical fitness center when it expects to have trouble covering $15.8 million in operating expenses next year?

Northwest suburban taxpayers solved that problem two years ago, when they passed a $12 million bond referendum package for Harper.

Nearly half of that package was earmarked to allow Harper to build the physical education complex without the usual 75 per cent financing from the state. The state twice has refused to finance the building because state boards traditionally give low priority to physical education facilities.

That trend is changing, and Harper is hoping to recoup some $4 million of the $5.9 million cost of the physical fitness center.

BUT THAT MAY take years, and continual delays would swell the construction costs. So for now, local taxpayers are shouldering the entire cost of the building. That translates into $3.30 on a tax bill for a house assessed at $10,000 equalized valuation in 1976, with the individual tab declining each year until the bonds are retired in 1986.

But that's just the cost of building the center and outfitting it with about $224,000 of fixed equipment.

As for the upkeep and the price of mobile equipment such as weight machines and volleyball nets, Harper officials aren't quite sure where the money will come from.

They expect the normal tax levy in the college's site and construction fund to cover some of those costs. But they also expect to charge user fees for members of the commnity who patronize the center.

by RENA WISH COHEN

It's been called a trend-setting physical fitness complex that will be a mecca for the Northwest suburbs.

It's also been criticized as an extravagant sports palace that is the last thing Harper College needs when college officials are complaining about classrooms and the need to start building a second campus.

The truth about the $5.9 million physical fitness building that is beginning to take shape on Harper's Palatine campus may lie somewhere in between. But the complex will be a palace by most standards — a spacious 97,600 square feet that will house:

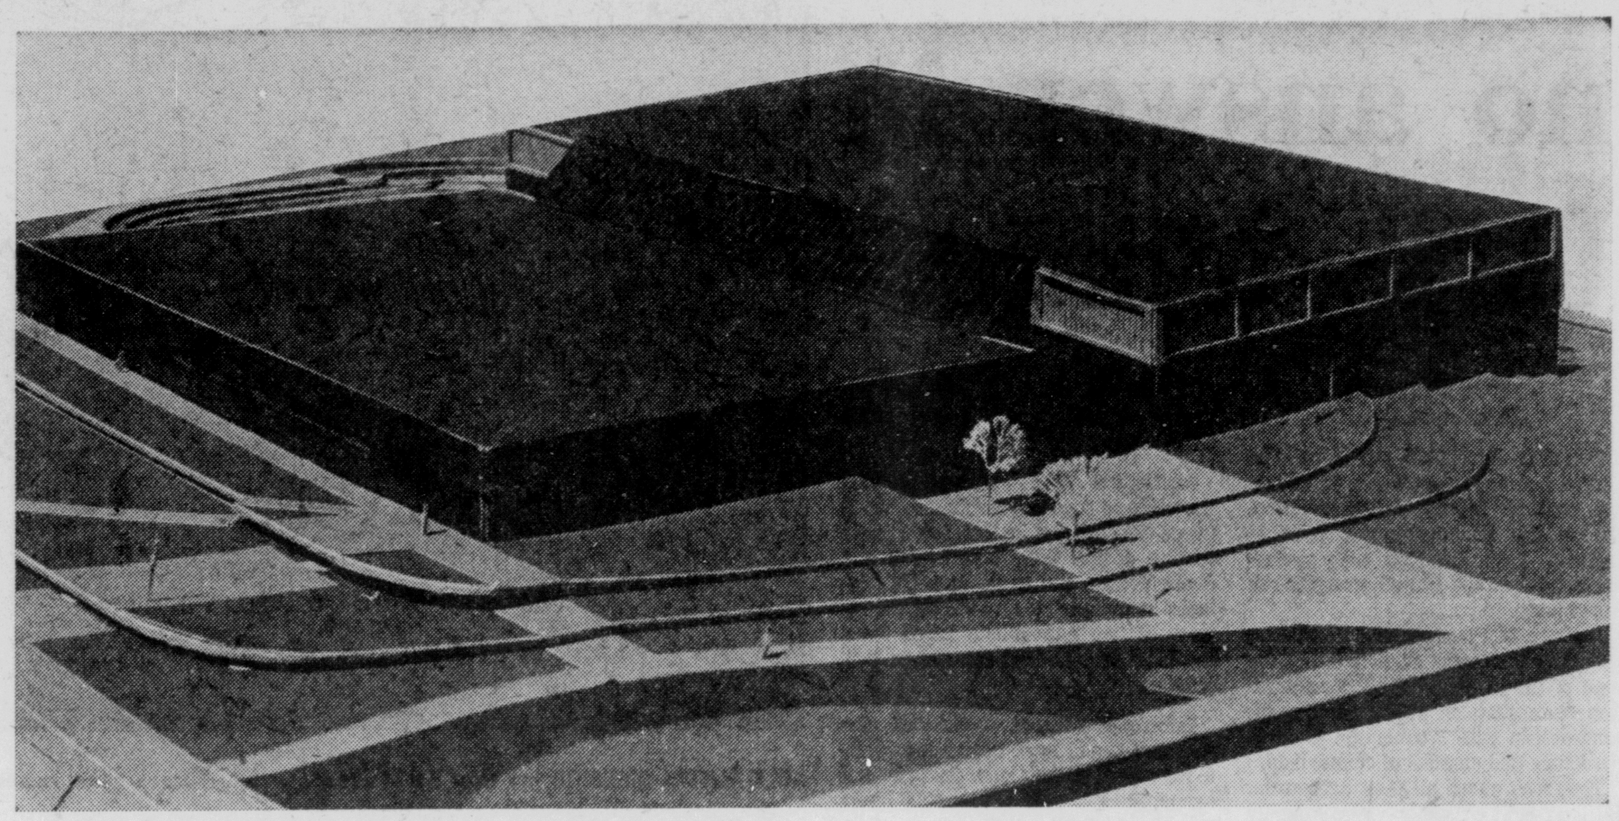

- A gymnasium with a 10-mile track, a seating capacity of 2,700 and a network of netting that can divide the room into four playing areas.
- A swimming pool that can be converted from yards to meters with the move of a partion.
- Handball and racquetball courts, mat rooms and a dance studio.
- A special stress-testing laboratory for diagnosing and teaching about cardiovascular conditions.

BULLDOZERS have begun to clear the way for the building, which is expected to offer its first classes in January 1979 — six years after a fire destroyed the old horse stable that held Harper's early physical education programs.

The old barn wasn't much, but since it burned in 1973, Harper College Pres. Robert E. Lahti says the college has had to "lease, scrounge, beg and borrow" the space for sports in one building on campus and in area high schools and park districts.

It's an arrangement that has discouraged many a sports enthusiast.

Enrollment in physical education classes has dropped from about 1,200 before the fire to about 600 per semester today. And Harper has lost about half the 100 students, who, before the fire, were enrolled in the pre-professional physical education program — a transfer curriculum that offers the first two years of training for future gym teachers and coaches.

When the Harper College Physical Fitness Center is complete in 1979, it will be open to students and community sports enthusiasts.

HARPER OFFICIALS expect that physical education enrollments will increase when the fitness center opens.

But they also have bigger plans for the new building, the 13th in the campus' 20-building master plan.

It will be the home of the country's first community college program for cardiac exercise technicians and leaders — the people who rehabilitate cardiac patients and screen high-risk persons to prevent cardiac complications.

That's why it will have a treadmill, exercise bicycles and all the machinery necessary for a working knowledge of the field.

IF FEASIBILITY studies prove there is a market for community college training in recreational leadership, the fitness center also will start turning out people trained to supervise tennis clubs, park districts and other recreational programs.

And Harper officials expect to throw the doors open to the community — probably for a fee.

"If you look at the role of a community college, community usage of facilities is quite important," says Shirley Munson, chairwoman of the Harper Board of Trustees. "So many times there are fantastic high school facilities that the public can't use. This will fill that need."

PERHAPS THE only need the new physical fitness center will not fill is Harper's greatest one right now — a space to take the strain off classrooms designed to fit 10,000 bodies, but today forced to squeeze in about 19,000.

But it is the fitness center that Harper has the money to build. Harper trustees have long considered a space for jogging and tennis just as important as an area for Harper's academic and vocational programs.

As Trustee Robert Moats said recently, the rationale goes back to a line from the 1st century Roman poet Juvenal:

"A sound mind in a sound body."

Soviet satellite to bring back U.S. research

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Seven American biological experiments — launched with fruit flies and rats — are expected to return to Earth Thursday in a Russian satellite.

The experiments were sent into space Aug. 3 in the Cosmos 936 craft from Plesetsk Base in the Soviet Union.

The spacecraft, a modified Vostok of the type that Yuri Gagarin flew in 1961 in the first manned orbital flight, is to parachute to a soft landing in Siberia.

The mission is the second in which American life science experiments have flown in a Soviet biosatellite as part of a cooperative effort between the two nations to learn more about how space affects people, animals and plants.

AMONG THE items placed on board were containers of fruit flies and 30 rats.

In addition to American scientific apparatus Cosmos 936 carried experiments from the Soviet Union, Czechoslovakia and France. Scientists from Bulgaria, Hungary, East Germany, Poland and Romania will participate in post-flight processing and study of the biological specimens.

American scientists will travel to Moscow to take part in the initial processing of the experimental materials at the Institute for Biomedical Problems, then return them to the United States for futher study.

The first such Soviet-American biosatellite mission occurred in 1975 when four U.S. experiments flew in a Cosmos mission.

THE NATIONAL aeronautics and Space Administration carried out a great deal of biological research in the Skylab space station in 1973 and 1974 and in earlier unmanned biological satellites.

NASA plans to resume biological research in space on its own in the space shuttle rocket plane scheduled to start flying in orbit in 1979. Russian scientists are expected to participate in those missions.

The American experiments in Cosmos 936 are managed by scientists at NASA's Ames Research Center, Mountain View, Calif.

The U.S. scientists participating come from Ames; the Veterans Administration Hospital, Syracuse, N.Y.; Children's Hospital Medical Center, Oakland, Calif.; Veterans Administration Hospital, Seattle; University of San Francisco; University of Southern California Medical Center, and the Jet Propulsion Laboartory, Pasadena, Calif.

Tankers dock at Valdez; oil loading expected today

VALDEZ, Alaska (UPI) — Seven empty tankers, each costing $1,000 an hour to maintain, waited Sunday for the trans-Alaska oil pipeline to pump enough crude into storage tanks so loading could resume for the first time in nearly a week.

"We have to have adequate cargo and we're gradually building it up," said a spokesman at the pipeline's southern terminal. "We'll probably start loading again early this morning."

The oil flow, averaging better than 500,000 barrels per day, was resumed Saturday following a four-day shutdown, the seventh since the pipeline went into operation in June.

DURING THE shutdown, officials of Alyeska Pipeline Service Co. ordered a modification in the drainage system along the entire 800-mile pipeline route.

"It was a good system environmentally, but safetywise it was not a good design," said Jack Turner, head of the Interior Dept.'s pipeline office in Anchorage.

The latest shutdown occurred Aug. 15 when three drain valves were left open accidentally at Pump Station No. 9 south of Fairbanks, spilling 30 barrels of crude oil in a pumphouse.

Once the oil flow resumed, it took pipeline workers several hours to "pack" the line and bring it up to full pressure. At Valdez, the thick crude was pumped into huge storage tanks, which had to be partially filled before loading could start again.

SITTING EMPTY at a terminal berth waiting for a cargo of 430,000 barrels of Prudhoe Bay oil was the Overseas Alaska.

A Coast Guard spokesman said six more ships were at anchorage in Prince William Sound waiting their turn. They included the Exxon New Orleans, Overseas Chicago, Prince William Sound, ARCO Prudhoe Bay, Manhattan and Mobile Meridian.

"That's the most I've ever seen anchored out there," said the Coast Guardsman.

Oil company executives estimate each ship costs about $1,000 an hour to maintain at anchorage or moorage, whether empty or loaded.

Alyeska and federal officials continued to study the "human error" factor which was blamed for several accidents that caused costly shutdowns since oil was first pumped into the pipeline at Prudhoe Bay on June 20.

Beware of dirty tricks, Soviet vacationers told

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Communist Party daily Pravda sent a warning Sunday to all who would shed the pressures of urban life for a peaceful vacation at the sea or in the mountains:

Beware of dirty tricks.

The Newspaper took a look at the services and resorts offered to Soviet vacationers and found some people encountered more aggravation getting to and from their vacation spots than they would if they had stayed home.

"From young pioneers to pensioners to scientific workers to miners, south to north, north to east, some want to go to foggy places and others to the tides of the Black Sea," Pravda said.

"GOOD LUCK to all of them. They can fly or take a drive or take a train or walk. There are a lot of tourist routes. Enough for everyone. And now a word about dirty tricks."

Take for example, Pravda said, a new telephone service offered by the railway system. Just dial a number and a robot answers and your tickets are delivered on the same day, according to the guarantees.

But that's not how it worked for the Kortikov family of Moscow.

They wanted to go to Odessa, but it took two days of round-the-clock assaults on the telephone to get the tickets.

"The robot with the woman's voice told them, urrg, urrg, urrg, wait one minute please, and hung up," Pravda said. "The next call, they got oohs and aahs for 45 minutes then the line fell silent."

The telephone attempt failed miserably, according to Pravda, so the family sent a friend to the train station to pick up tickets. After a day-long wait at the station, the tickets were received.

SOME TOURISTS have even greater problems once they reach their destination.

One group traveled from Leningrad to the Vinnitza region after purchasing tickets through a travel bureau that promised them "a number of excursions and pictures of memorable places."

They were to stay at a haven called Oak Woods, which offered "separate rooms with all of the possible conveniences," including "high caliber food."

"The excursions in reality appeared to be more modest and dull than those which were promised," Pravda said. "And only half of the excursions promised were actually realized."

To make matters worse, Pravda said, the tourists called in a local medical team "to evaluate the high caliber food" to make sure "it was edible by human beings."

And adding insult to injury, Pravda said, on the way home thieves made off with the coats of two of the tourists.

The Accepted Influence in the Northwest Suburbs

200 years at the same location.

Maybe folks were a little skeptical about taking stock in America 200 years ago.

We were young. At war. With no experience.

And who knew if we'd ever pay back the money?

Well, 200 years have passed. And the U.S. government has always paid in full. To the penny.

Now that's not a bad record.

In fact, you might say we're now a pretty well-established outfit to do business with.

So join the Payroll Savings Plan and save with today's Bicentennial issue of Series E Savings Bonds. It's easy. It's automatic.

And it's safe. After 200 years, you know we're here to stay.

Now E Bonds pay 6% interest when held to maturity of 5 years (4% the first year). Lost, stolen or destroyed Bonds can be replaced if records are provided. When needed, Bonds can be cashed at your bank. Interest is not subject to state or local income taxes, and federal tax may be deferred until redemption.

Take stock in America.

A BEER AND A good cigar are all George Hornberger needs to enjoy the 100th Schwaben-Verein picnic in Buffalo Grove this weekend.

FRIENDS RAISE their glasses in a toast during the 100th Schwaben-Verein picnic this weekend in Buffalo Grove. The festivities were started by German settlers who wanted to preserve old traditions in the new world by recreating the Cannstatter Volkfest, which had been celebrated for the crop harvest in Southern Germany.

German heritage preserved in the beat of the polka

German polka music was blaring loudly from the outdoor loudspeakers.

Nick Keiling dug into his pocket and fished out a quarter for his son to go spend.

The boy plays soccer. Keiling likes that. Sports are good for a boy. He likes them to participate, and he enjoys watching them.

The boy also knows about his heritage. Keiling saw to that.

THAT'S ONE REASON he has been taking his family to the Schwaben-Verein picnic every year for the last five years. That's one reason he took them out to this year's picnic at the organization's Buffalo Grove grounds during the weekend.

The festivity was started to preserve German traditions in the new world by recreating the Cannstatter Volkfest that for centuries had been celebrated for the crop harvest in southern Germany.

Even though that purpose had been declared with the organization's first picnic at Ogden Grove in Chicago, in 1877, it still plays a major part in the celebration.

The majority of the information in this year's "Fest-Programm" was written in German. A few of the people who flocked tothe Schwaben Verein site on Weiland Road south of Pauline Avenue wore traditional German garb.

Most of the people spoke with thick German accents while watching the soccer matches and in between sips of beer and bites of 30-cent Schwaben pretzels. Some were speaking the native tongue.

"I grew up with three languages, and I enjoy all of them," Keiling observed. "I don't see any reason why we shouldn't keep this up."

He is 50 years old. For all his life, he has lived in an ethnic neighborhood on Chicago's Northwest side. It is populated, he said, by Poles and Germans and Swedes, a mixture of people all proud of their background.

His parents were immigrants, he said, and that enriched his childhood, but they did not immigrate from Germany. They immigrated from Romania in the early 1920s.

But his blood lines flow back to Germany nonetheless. His grandparents had immigrated to Romania from Germany.

THE PAST, HE said, has not only given him an appreciation of his heritage, but an open mind toward others.

It has, he admits, been an appreciation of the past that some people have not seemed to share in recent years. But that, Keiling said, is changing.

"A lot of young people are interested lately," he said. "You don't have to be prejudiced about it. But it's good to know where you came from.

Which is one reason he is among Schwaben Verein's 1,400 members. And one reason he has been attending the organizations' annual picnics each year sice the group opened the grounds at Buffalo Grove in 1972.

Groucho honored at rites

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Relatives and close friends gathered Sunday for a private family memorial service for comedian Groucho Marx at the home of his son, Arthur. His long-time companion, Erin Fleming, said a "party" might be held in his honor later.

A family spokesman said Marx's remains would be cremated as 'The greatest of all the clowns" had instructed. The Groman mortuary said the body was still there.

Only a little more than a dozen persons were expected Sunday at the family gathering and it appeared Miss Fleming might not be among them.

The 37-year-old red-haired former Canadiam showgirl had been embroiled for months with Arthur Marx in a legal battle over converatorship of Marx's estate.

MISS FLEMING, who had been almost constantly at Marx's side for the past seven years until he suffered a broken hip in a fall at his home last March, evaded questions about whether she would join the family or whether she had been invited.

But Miss Fleming said that "dozens" of show business associates of the comedian had contacted her and suggested that they "have a party with lots of laughter the way Groucho would want it."

"Groucho specifically insisted that he wanted no tears when he died and would have no funeral," she said. "He detested funerals. He thought they were detestable and barbaric.

"I went with him to funerals of old friends during the past several years and it took him days to get out of a depression over them. He told me, 'None of that for me, kid. You take care of it.' " of MISS FLEMING said the gathering at the Marx home was a "reception."

Marx, who was in failing health for months, died Friday at Cedars of Sinai Medical Center of pneumonia at the age of 86. He had been hospitalized since June with pneumonitis, a mild form of the lung ailment.

Marx was listed in fair condition until last Thursday when his vital signs became unstable. He died the next evening.

Groucho, whose real name was Julius, was born in New York City in 1890. With three of his brothers, he began a touring vaudeville act and eventually moved to Broadway and then Hollywood.

GROUCHO, with a stooping walk, dancing eyebrows, a sly leer and ever-present cigar, became a legend in show business before age and ill health forced his retirement.

His last months were marked by a bitter battle for conservatorship of his estate, estimated at between $2.6 million and $6 million.

Nat Perrin, an old friend of the comedian, was named temporary conservator last April and soon asked to be relieved, partly because of the enmity between Marx' son, Arthur, and Erin Fleming, Marx' companion and manager for seven years.

In July, Arthur's son, Andrew, 27, was named conservator in a compromise between Miss Fleming and Arthur Marx. But by that time Marx was hospitalized for the third time this year and becoming increasingly unresponsive.

"I DON'T THINK he would like for people to see him as he is now," Perrin said. He would usually respond only with grunts and nods but would become occasionally aware and his wit reappeared in flashes.

Visitors said, however, most of his comments were too racy to be related.

Marx, the master of the ad-lib and one-liner, once said, "I hope they bury me near a straight man" but had stipulated that he be cremated.

Show business greats eulogized the comedian, calling him a "giant" and "the greatest of all the clowns." "There is consolation at least that the body of his work remains," Steve Allen said.

On his 82nd birthday, a friend recalled, Marx was asked how he would like to be remembered.

His reply: "Alive. If not that way, then dead."

Groucho, flanked by brothers Harpo, left, and Chico, left instructions to be cremated.

Marx and brother, Harpo, appear in Hollywood for the opening of a 1933 movie.

Schaumburg Mattress Factory

THOUGHTS on a MATTRESS

For almost five years our little mattress factory has been doing an ever increasing business by attracting the astute, intelligent customer with the experience to recognize the difference between some so-called "discount" or "sale" price and a top quality product at a low price.

And we would like to emphasize one point — this is a FACTORY — not a "Factory Outlet" or "Factory Closeout Mart" or some other rip-off of just another retail store. We actually make our mattresses and box springs right here before your very eyes.

Our mattresses and box springs are made with top quality materials and specifications that have been proven over many years. Our prices are based on the cost of the materials that go into each product that we make. And we know that when you compare quality for quality, our prices are very, very low.

I guess that is why so many customers who have shopped all the so-called "sale" priced mattresses in the area come back and buy ours.

Incidentally, our service is excellent, too.

Acrobatic elephants were a "big" draw at the Combined Counties Police Assn. circus in Wheeling.

Show goes on as circus moves to another town

Circus days came to Wheeling during the weekend, when the Combined Counties Police Assn. hosted the Carson & Barnes circus at Heritage Park.

The curcus, of Hugo, Okla., played four days in Wheeling as a fund-raising event, said Jerry Meese, CCPA spokesman.

THE CIRCUS WAS one of 30 shows the CCPA is sponsoring in the Chicago metropolitan area. The show packed up after its last performance Sunday night, and moved on to its next date in Harvey.

The 350-member circus offered all the trappings: clowns, daredevil acts, exotic animals and not-so-exotic sideshows.

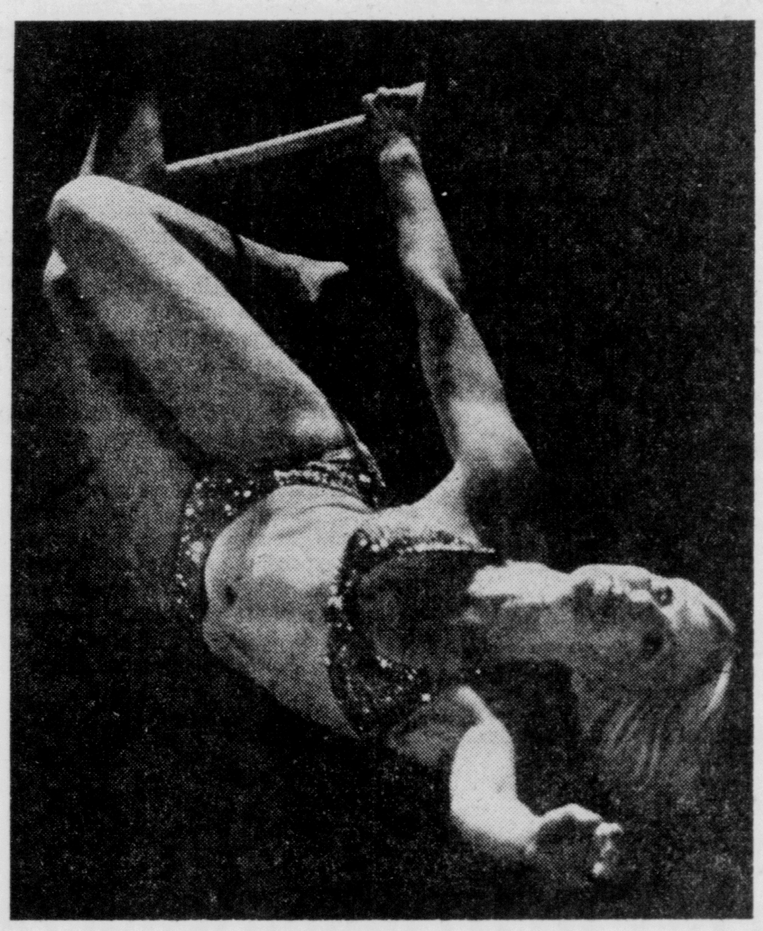

HOWEVER, the Wheeling engagement did not go without mishap.

An acrobat, Catalina Wilson, 30, of Laredo Tex., lost her grip on a trapeze bar and fell 15 feet to the ground Thursday as 3,000 underprivileged youngsters, looked on.

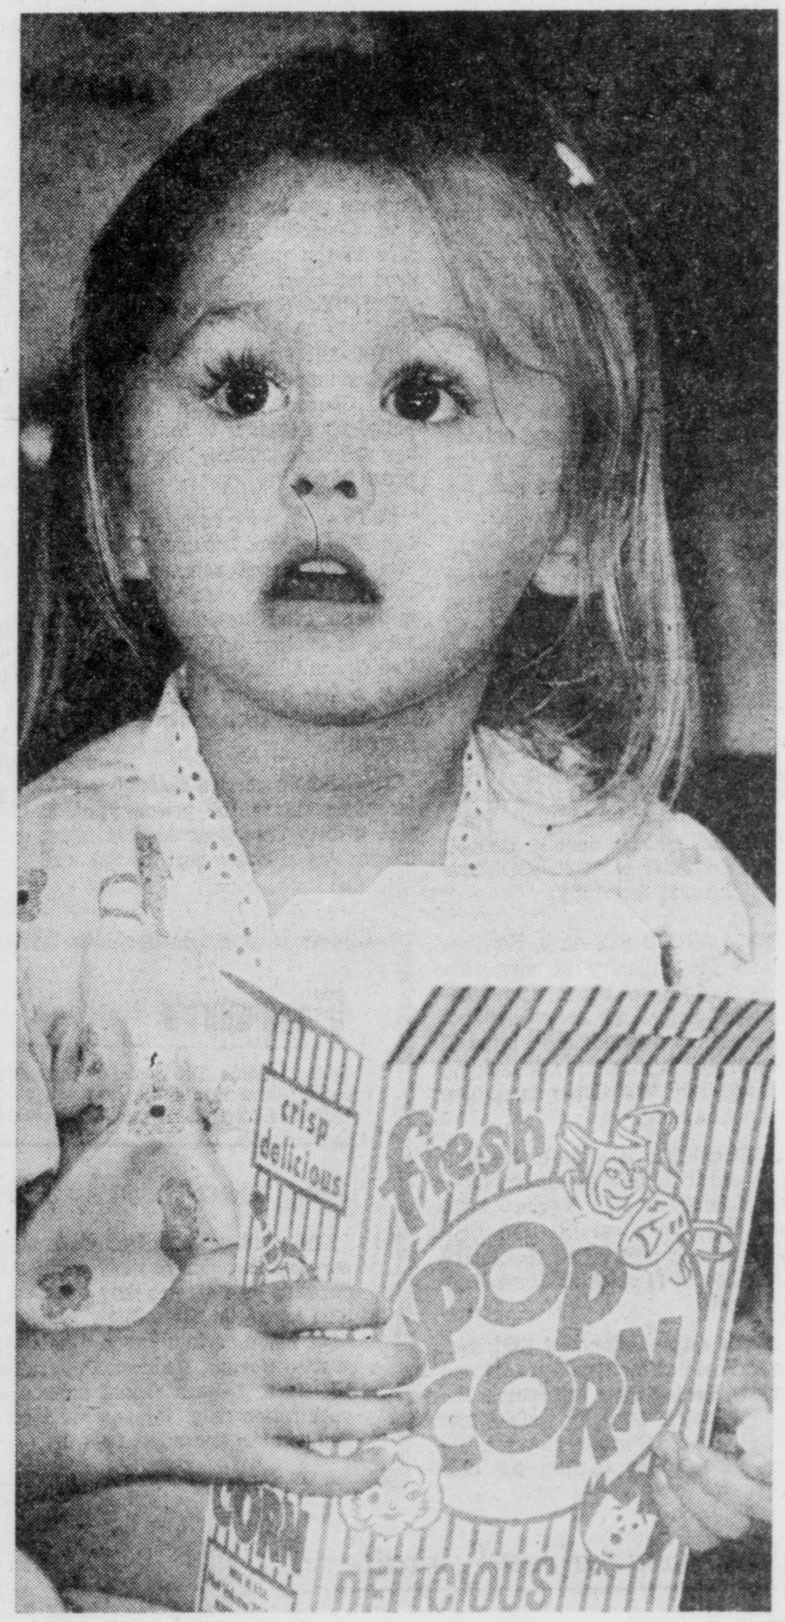

Ms. Wilson was taken to Holy Family Hospital, where she was treated for minor back and neck injuries and released.

But the show must go on for the people at Carson & Barnes, who must continue to meet the schedule of two-to four-day performances during their 42-week tour.

CCPA paid in advance for the shows, and all gate receipts will go to the organization, Meese said.

She flies through the air.....

Heather Surber, 2½ of Wheeling, is awe struck.

War criminal escapes from Italian prison

BONN, West Germany (UPI) — Former members of Heinrich Himmler's SS helped Nazi war criminal Herbert Kappler escape from an Italian prison, the newspaper Bild am Sonntag said Sunday.

"The flight was planned and prepared by former members of the SS," the newspaper said. "One of them, an Austrian, was an officer of the SS Security Service in Rome during the war."

Kappler, 70, was a colonel in the SS, the fanatical elite guard of the German Reich, and served as Nazi police chief in Rome. He was sentenced to life imprisonment for the murder of 335 Italian hostages.

KAPPLER AND his wife traveled to Germany from Italy by way of Austria after his escape last Sunday, Bild am Sonntag said.

Anneliese Kappler, a 53-year-old lay medical practitioner, smuggled her husband out of a Rome military hospital where he was being treated for cancer. She wheeled a wardrobe trunk in which he was hidden out of the hospital under the eyes of Italian guards.

Bild am Sonntag, a West German national newspaper, gave no details of the escape plot or of the aid reportedly given by former SS members to Mrs. Kappler.

After the escape, Italian authorities said Odessa, an organization of former SS men that often has been accused of helping top Nazis escape from justice, could have been involved.

KAPPLER AND his wife have not been seen sinc the escape. They are believed to be hiding in Soltau, a north German town where Mrs. Kappler's father had been a Nazi Party leader.

Soltau Mayor Jochen Rothardt said he has not seen them. "I know only that the exertions of the escape took a lot out of him and his condition is very serious," he told Bild am Sonntag.

"For the people of Soltau and for me, Kappler neither a hero nor a model," Rothardt said. "He is an old sick man who has a right to peace and quiet and a right to vanish from the headlines."

West German authorities have ignored formal demands for Kappler's return because the federal constitution bars any extradition of Germans to foreign nations.

Tax levies cause tax hikes later

1977 can fairly be called the year of the BIG TAX.

And for that reason, village boards and city councils must look long and hard at every penny in the tax levy ordinances they are adopting.

Tax levy ordinances passed today will determine how much taxpayers will pay next August. At a time when residents are protesting tax bill increases of 50 to 300 per cent, it is incumbent on officials to make sure their budgets are as taut as fiscally possible.

We commend the Village of Palatine for being able to pass a tax levy ordinance that is expected to reduce the village's tax rate by 5 cents per $100 assessed valuation next year.

The City of Des Plaines has decided to take a second look at a proposed 13.5 per cent tax rate increase tonight. If there is a way to reduce or eliminate that increase the city aldermen should find it.

The City of Rolling Meadows votes tomorrow night on a tax levy ordinance that is expected to increase the local tax rate next year by 8 cents per $100 assessed valuation.

Rolling Meadows residents, like taxpayers everywhere, have a right and obligation to ask if every cent is really needed to run city government.

Elk Grove Village has passed an ordinance that officials say will hold the line on the tax rate, and that is good news.

The dubious honor of the biggest anticipated local tax increase belongs to Arlington Heights. The village board a week ago passed an ordinance that is expected to raise the village rate 27 per cent.

A major part of the increase is devoted to a flood control project that Arlington Heights embarked on several years ago. It is an expense that residents could anticipate.

Operating expenses and an addition to the Arlington Heights Library, approved by referendum, also pushed up the village tax rate. So did fixed pension costs for village employes.

But it is no longer enough to simply say that local tax increases are "inevitable." The combination of rising local rates and property reassessments is devastating, as residents in Wheeling and Palatine townships discovered this year.

Next year, Maine, Elk Grove, Schaumburg and Hanover townships will be reassessed. What citizens and local boards do now will determine whether there will be a replay of the Cook County tax protest next August.

A case of local heroism

It all happened quickly, just like it's supposed to.

John Cozzi Jr. who saw his father in trouble, called on 3-yr.-old training in mouth to mouth resuscitation to save his father's life.

The younger Cozzi, 14, administered the aid to John Cozzi Sr., 45, after his father collapsed from a bleeding ulcer. The boy continued to give mouth-to-mouth resuscitatiion even after he feared his father had died.

The elder Cozzi was rushed to Rush - Presbyterian - St. Luke Hospital in Chicago where he is recovering from the attack. Without his son's aid, doctors said he might be dead today.

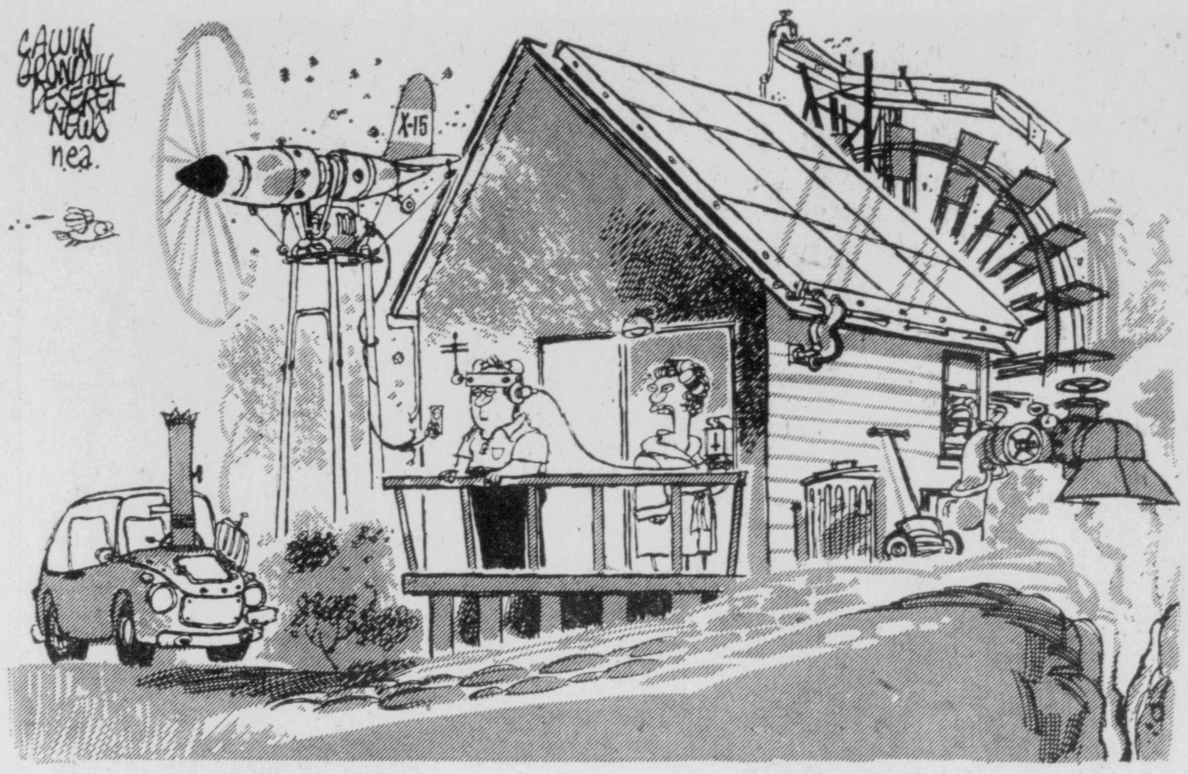

Young John admits he was frightened, that he was afraid he would "goof up" the resuscitation effort. But he still acted promptly.

Since the incident, the youth has said he would like to take more first aid training to learn how to administer cardio-pulmonary resuscitation, the technique which can help heart attack victims.

If anyone can attest to the value of first aid training, it's young John Cozzi.

Easter Rebellion heroes sought death for lost cause

Jim Bishop

Men speak of the Easter Rebellion as though it was a holy day. It wasn't. The blood of 1,300 Irishmen curled around the cobbled stones of Dublin. They were brave men and dead.

Night had fallen and it was Jim Connolly's turn. He crouched, half propped against a prison wall, watching gangrene walk up his shattered leg. He was a big man, this Jim Connolly. He did not ask the British warden for a pain killer. Nor would he accept one.

It was a time for Connolly to die. And a time for reflection. The Irish had fought English rule for 700 years. It seemed propitious to seize the Dublin post office while the English king was busy fighting the Kaiser. It seemed that way.

JIM KEPT HIS thoughts to himself. Two soldiers with rifles stood outside his cell watching the pain gray the features of the prisoner and sink his eyes in darkness.

All the good men were dead. Connolly knew that. The time was Easter Monday, 2 a.m. A chill breeze curled around the bars in the window and touched Connolly's hair. The British sent a clanging ambulance to fetch Mrs. Connolly and a priest.

Jim had been the commandant-general. He had led the uprising. A sniper's bullet had fractured his ankle. "Is there no hope at all?" Willy O'Brien had asked. Connolly slapped his friend on the bark. "None whatsoever," he said cheerfully.

THEY LASTED SIX days, Few understand the gallantry of men who wish to die in a lost cause. The women kneeled before the action started. They could not dissuade their tattered men with the big safety pins holding lapels together. They knew these men would not be back.

The British had used an entire division to crush the revolt. Fifteen thousand disciplined men against 1,300 safety pins. They carried Jim Connolly from the post office to Liberty Hall. A boy of 14 shielded Jim's body with his own.

It was a marvel, Connolly said, that they had held on for six days cold and sleepless, honing their wit against the inevitable. Mrs. Connolly walked into the cell. So did Father Aloysius. He seemed too young to Jim for confession. Some men expect a Father to be a father.

Connolly's daughter Nora wept. "Well, Lillie," Jim said casually, "I suppose you know what this means?" Mrs. Connolly knelt and buried her face in the woolly blanket that covered his chest. "Don't cry," he whispered. "You'll unman me."

THE BRITISH OFFICER was almost sympathetic. "Time is up," he said. Connolly propped himself. He pulled his daughter to him and kissed her wet face. "Nora," he said. "I'm proud of you."

The women were escorted out of the cell. The soldiers brought a stretcher. The young priest remained at Connolly's side. They carried the prisoner in the dark to Kilmainham jail. It was here, in another cell, that the attractive Grace Gifford married Joe Plunkett a few breaths before they shot him. Even the Irish do not understand the Irish.

The soldiers carried Connolly on his stretcher out in the prison yard. It was a dirty deed best done at night. There was a chair next to the wall under the pale saffron of a shielded light. Jim set his good foot into the earth so that he could sit straight up.

He had made his last confession to the boy. He had extreme unction. Father Aloysius had a final question. "Jim," he said softly, "would you pray for the men who will shoot you?" Connolly gave it thought. Then he nodded. "I would always pray for men about to do their duty," he said.

THE FIRING SQUAD faded in the musty darkness. Joe Plunkett's blood had enriched this condemned soil. And others too, men of courage who refused to flinch. The officer unsheathed the sword. He saw Connolly's lips moving, so he held the sword up. No flash of light spun from the blade.

It was close to dawn. The victors did not want the prisoner to see the bright bands of hope, the symbol of a messiah risen from the dead. Nor did Jim. If it must be done let it be done in darkness.

His lips stopped moving. The young priest backed off into the blackness. His lips began to move as Connolly's stopped. The officer's words were muttered softly. Jim looked straight ahead. He had no smile for them. No final cry for freedom.

He did not hear the uneasy chatter of the rifles. Others outside the walls heard them. And vowed never to forget big Jim or his cause . . .

'Don't bend park rules'

I agree wholeheartedly with your editorial on not ignoring park rules.

How long will people like Lloyd Meyer be allowed to use a position like park district commissioner to their advantage?

Mr. Meyer had a hardball diamond fenced and lighted at Recreation Park for his American Legion team. This park has very little open park land for area residents to use.

Thomas Thornton, director of parks and recreation, told me over the telephone that the entire park board suspended the 11 p.m. curfew for Mr. Meyer and the American Legion team he coaches. How considerate of the board! And the game only went until 3 o'clock in the morning.

As a tax paying resident of Arlington Heights, I resent the park board bowing to Mr. Meyer's every whim.

If Mr. Meyer has an obvious conflict of interest, he should not be a member of the park board.

Is this 3 a.m. baseball game an example of what our park board has in store for area residents with its 3-day Indian powwow the last weekend of August?

Tax hike causes

While I share the chagrin of my fellow villagers at the recent real estate tax increases, I take a morbid interest in the reaction of the taxpayers throughout Cook County as well as the reactions of the press.

The newspapers and radio broadcasts have carried vivid descriptions and scenes of the indignation meetings against the dis-appropriation efforts of the political taxers. However, I have so far failed to find any serious editorial comment, either for or against this tax-mugging. Nor have I seen any reference to the basic causes, except in a modest statement hidden away in paragraph three of the very able "Straight Talk About Your 1976 Property Tax Bill" in the Wheeling Township Quarterly Report mailed to every taxpayer. With admirable clarity, Assessor Marshall P. Theroux says "voters in some areas passed referendums approving increases in the amount of money those taxing bodies can spend." This sweet understatement has probably gone unnoticed by most recipients of the report.

We only have to walk past our library to see an example of what Mr. Theroux means. with costly steel beams floating through the air that resemble the building of the Sears Tower, the passer-by gets a view of a boondoggle which we sorely needed, just like Hawaii needs pineapples.

If today there were a referendum vote on a proposal to pave all classroom floors in ourschool districts with oriental rugs at a cost of $10 million, 10 per cent of the electroate would show up to vote and approve the expenditure, 90 per cent would not bother to vote and a couple years from now 100 per cent of those entitled to vote would be howling their heads off because of increased taxes.

Teamster reformers plan to PROD union leaders

Martha Angle and Robert Walters

In Washington

Washington has more than its share of professional reformers, most of them idealistic college graduates who purposely shunned a "traditional" career in favor of promoting a cause. But Paul Poulos is different.

When his fellow reformers were going to graduate school in the 1960s, Poulos was driving trucks in his native New York City. When others were organizing public interest law firms in the early 1970s, Poulos was hauling freight in southern Florida.

"I've been involved in trucking, in one fashion or another for the last 18 years," says the soft-spoken, 39-year-old Poulos, who also has been a member of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters for virtually his entire adult life.

IT WAS AFTER he moved from New York to Ft. Lauderdale, Fla. that Poulos became outraged over substandard working conditions in the trucking industry and the failure of his union to aggressively pursue its members' rights.

"The abuses were much worse in Florida than in New York," recalls Poulos. When he insisted upon compliance with safety regulations and refused to drive unsafe trucks, he was dismissed by his employer for failure to follow instructions.

Poulos then began a full-scale campaign against what he calls "barbaric" working conditions — drivers required to take defective rigs on the road, meet delivery schedules which weren't modified when the speed limit was cut from 65 to 55 miles per hour, then turn the trucks around for other grueling runs without adequate rest or sleep.

As a result, Poulos was "blackballed" from working at virtually every freight terminal in South Florida. When he sought reinstatement, the Teamsters offered little help. "The union in no meaningful way handled my grievance," he recalls.

IN EARLY 1975, Poulos contacted PROD, a Washington organization formed following a 1971 conference of over-the-road truck drivers and dedicated to the twin goals of improving working conditions in the industry and bringing democracy to the union.

Poulos has just moved to Washington to join PROD as a fulltime field organizer. His arrival comes at a time when the insurgent organization has started to build a record of major accomplishments.

In recent years, PROD won a $36,000 award for a Cleveland driver who opposed the union on the issue of driving overloaded rigs and a $40,000 back pay award for a Winston-Salem, N.C. driver who refused to drive an abnormally dangerous rig.

It secured $3.5 million in strike benefits unlawfully withheld from Teamster members and successfully petitioned federal regulatory agencies for improvements in truck noise limitations, tire standards and maintenance regulations.

DISENCHANTED teamsters members have, in the past, organized isolated rank-and-file reform efforts in Ohio, Pennsylvania, New Jersey and elsewhere — but never before has an insurgent group had both a full-time staff and national base.

PROD's dues-paying ($20 per year) members now number about 4,000, a miniscule number compared with the almost 2 million men and women who belong to the Teamsters, the nation's biggest union.

But PROD already has made its mark. At the Teamsters mid-1976 convention in Las Vegas, union President Frank E. Fitzsimmons became so irked by the rebels' needling that he blurted out a blunt rejoinder:

"For those who would say that it's time to reform this organization, that it is time that the officers quit selling out the membership of their union, I say to them: Go to hell."

PROD is going no such place. Instead, it's going into the big cities — Chicago, St. Louis and Atlanta — and into the smaller communities of the nation's heartland — Effingham, Ill., Cape Girardeau, Mo. and Ft. Wayne, Ind. — to organize and seek new members. Fitzsimmons and the Teamsters have not heard the last of Poulos and PROD.

Son of Sam—front page vs. fair trial

Charles B. Seib

There is, we are told, tension between the Constitution's First Amendment and the Sixth. The right of the press to be free sometimes confilcts with the right of an accused person to a fair trial.

Belief in that tension is at the heart of the myriad moves by judges to restrict press coverage of trials. It also lies behind efforts to devise rules governing such things as pretrial publication of a defendant's criminal record or confession and prejudicial statements by police or lawyers in the case. The purpose always is to guarantee the prime ingredient of a fair trial — an impartial jury.

The free press-fair trial issue was explored in two vastly different ways recently. In Chicago, an American Bar Assn. committee tried to settle on new standards of conducts for lawyers and judges and, by extension, the press. And in New York the press was covering a sensational crime in its customary way — all out.

THERE WAS a strong aroma of the courtroom at the Chicago session. Although it was called to hear press comment, speakers were mostly lawyers representing media organizations.

Such matters as whether the phrase "serious and imminent threat" was more desirable than "clear and present danger" were considered. The Supreme Court's Nebraska gag order decision, which discouraged judicial prior restraints on press coverage but which seems to have encouraged judges to close their courtrooms to press and public, was mentioned often.

So was the Sheppard decision, under which the press is still doing penance for misbehavior two decades ago.

One came away from the hearing convinced of the good intentions of the A B A committee, but wondering whether it wasn't slighting the public's right to be informed in its desire to keep judges happy.

ONE OF the few news representatives to speak was John McCormally, editor and publisher of the Burlington (Iowa) Hawk Eye. He reminded the committee that the Sixth Amendment calls for not only a fair trial but a public one. As an editor, he said, his role is to make it possible for his readers to attend a trial vicariously. "Anything you do to limit or inhibit my ability to do that, limits their enjoyment of that constitutional right," he said.

Meanwhile, in New York the press was exploiting "Son of Sam" murders. The war between the tabloids, the Daily News and the Post, was being fought in the old tradition, and hundreds of thousands of extra papers were sold.

The News was capitalizing on the special relationship that had grown up between the killer and its columnist, Jimmy Breslin. One front page banner headline read: "Breslin to .44 Killer: GIVE UP? IT'S ONLY WAY OUT."

The Post, not to be outdone, responded, also on the front page with "An Open Letter to Son of Sam" urging him to give up — to a Post reporter, of course. A classic the day after the arrest of David Berkowitz was the news banner: "Sam Tells Cops: GIRLS WOULDN'T GO OUT WITH ME."

An exchange between the New Yorker magazine and Breslin on the Son of Sam coverage is must reading for news business buffs. In the issue published just before the arrest, the magazine charged that the press had transformed the killer into a celebrity, possibly encouraging him to strike again. It also charged that the press had created a public and official hysteria that "will make a fair trail of an accused killer nearly impossible."

It zeroed in on Breslin, criticizing him for publishing a letter purporting to be from Son of Sam and implying that Breslin might have planted in the killer's mind the idea of an anniversary murder.

Firing back, Breslin said that the police not only had verified that the letter he received was indeed from Son of Sam but they wanted it published. He said that before writing the column attacked by the New Yroker he had talked to police officials and a criminal psychologist. They made suggestions, he said, but he "decided to forget what everybody had suggested and write the column my own way."

He took issue with the New Yorker's assertion that some other journalist might have withheld the letter. Not only did the police want it released, he said, but "every cell in your body tells you that this letter was news. . ."

AND THERE is the crux of the argument between the ivory tower and the newsman at the front. It was news, said Breslin, and he printed it. Just as Berkowitz's incriminating statements after his arrest were news and were printed.

In fairness to the press, it should be noted that coverage was not totally unrestrained. The New Yrok Times and the Daily News knew that police had obtained fingerprints from a Son of Sam letter but they didn't print it. Also, the Daily News said no when it was offered, for a price, a tape of a conversation between Berkowitz and a lawyer.

I left the Chicago hearing convinced that the American criminal justice system — specifically the jury system — is more robust than lawyers and judges think it is. I hoped they would take to heart two quotations read during the hearing. The first is from America's past; the second from the world's present.

JAMES MADISON said in the Federalist Papers: "A popular government without popular information, or the means of acquiring it, is but a prologue to a farce or a tragedy, or perhaps both." And Alexander Solzhenitsyn said it "The Gulag Archipelago": "Publicity and openness, honest and complete, that is the prime condition for the health of any society." The Son of Sam episode also produced a quotation that should be passed along. A.M. Rosenthal, executive editor of the New York Times, was talking to a Washington Post reporter about the Son of Sam coverage.

"While it is not our job to conceal terrible things from the public," he said, "we have to face in our conscience the question of whether we are reporting these things or capitalizing on them."

In those three quotations you have it all: An open society's absolute need for a free flow of information, unfettered by rules written by lawyers or anyone else. And the need, just as pressing, for the media to act in good conscience and with a deep sense of their responsibilities.

Desert war threatens new state

by PIERRE BAYLEU

DJIBOUTI (UPI) — The desert war between Ethiopian and Somali forces has caused economic chaos and is threatening the very existence of the Republic of Djibouti, Africa's newest and tiniest state.

The war has slashed into the republic's slender income, brought its port to a virtual halt, deprived its citizens of fresh vegetables and even stopped their favorite pastime — chewing khat, a mild narcotic plant.

The conflict is lapping ever closer to Djibouti's own borders and diplomats are fearful it might eventually engulf this strategic state on the Horn of Africa.

WHEN DJIBOUTI achieved independence from France June 27, it was already potentially one of the world's most unviable states, politically and economically.

An arid volcanic outpost of 8,000 square miles and less than a quarter of million people, Djibouti's only asset is the railroad.

The 485-mile Addis Ababa-Djibouti railroad, jointly owned by Ethiopia and France, snaked from Djibouti port through the blistering Ogaden desert high into Ethiopia's central mountains to the capital.

It carried 60 per cent of Ethiopia's imports and exports until Somali insurgents in early June severed the line in at least five places. They have kept it closed since.

IF THE EFFECTS on Ethiopia were serious, they have been devastating on Djibouti.

Earnings from the railroad are the biggest single source of income for the territory and its closure will cost Djibouti about $500,000 a month.

Port officials estimated the loss of the rail link could result in at least a 50 per cent drop in the port's activities and hundreds of dockworkers and rail workers idled.

Last year the rail line carried 650,000 tons of goods bound for Addis Ababa. But bales and boxes are now piled high in Djibouti's marshaling yards waiting for the trains to run again.

SEVERAL TRANSPORT companies already said they were on the point of bankruptcy.

A weekly supply of 40 tons of fresh vegetables from Ethiopia was halted by the fighting. A limited supply of fresh fruit and vegetables is now being flown in from France and Kenya, but all produce sells at grossly inflated prices in a city where prices were already among the highest in the world.

The situation even resulted in a government clampdown on the consumption of Khat, chewed by millions of persons throughout Africa and the Middle East and producing a mildly soothing effect. Five tons of the plant were flown daily from the Ethiopian town of Dire Dawa — currently under siege by the Somalis.

The Ethiopian government planes on this route were requisitioned by Addis Ababa to fly troops and khat was then banned when the sudden loss of supply resulted in vicious black market dealings.

The line's closure has had a less traumatic effect in Ethiopia itself.

THE GOVERNMENT managed to shift much urgent traffic from the railroad and moved it by heavily armed road convoy to the northern port of Assab. Military supplies from the Soviet Union coming via South Yemen were shifted on an air shuttle to Addis Ababa, according to diplomatic sources.

Still, the effects were being felt in the capital of Addis Ababa.

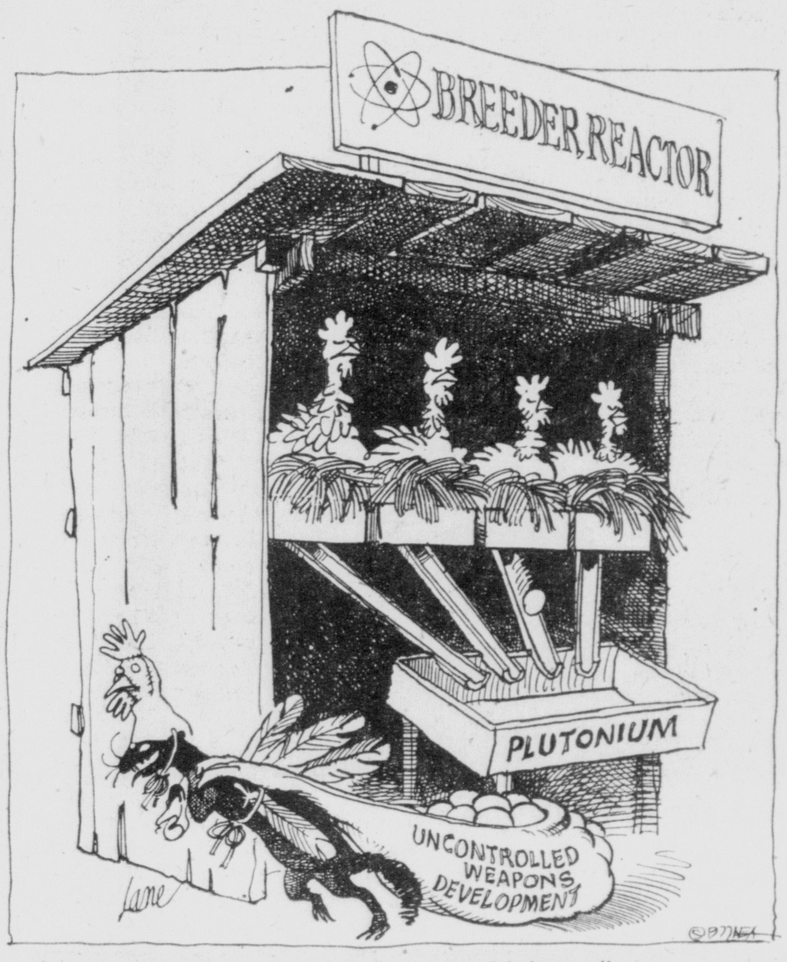

Gasoline rationing was tightened even further, prices of imported goods shot up by as much as 300 per cent and even the price of the local staple food, tef, rocketed to record levels.

It is unlikely the Ethiopians could repair the road and keep it open against insurgent attacks in the near future — exacerbating the plight of this state.

RECENTLY THE fighting itself swirled dangerously ever closer to Djibouti borders.

Ethiopia several days ago said its troops killed 550 Somali insurgents only a few miles from the common border in one of its most significant victories since the desert war erupted last June.

Diplomatic observers feared the war could eventually spill over into Djibouti itself — a place the Somalis have long coveted because the bulk of the population is ethnic Somali and Ethiopia desires for economic and strategic reasons.

"Nobody here but us chickens."

Only courage survives tragic California fire

by MURRAY OLDERMAN

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. — Charlie Davis was not one of the lucky ones. He owned a custom five-level home high up on Camino Verde that he had practcially built for himself over a period of five years. It would be worth, if it were still standing, conservatively $150,000.

Charlie, a police lieutenant who has been on the Santa Barbara force for 22 years, was no more than 20 feet away and watched, helplessly, as his house burned to the ground in the tragic, devastating conflagration that hit the Rivera section of the city this summer.

Two hundred homes were leveled.

"I FIGURE," said Charlie, "it's kind of fate. Like an earthquake." If Charlie's bitter at all, it's at "those damned CBers" who cluttered up the canyons the night of the fire and almost prevented him from escaping with his life on the clogged, narrow roads.

Miraculously, in a blaze that could total $40 million in damages when possessions are included, there were no fatalities. More than 1,100 firemen fought the blaze, and there were 208 injuries reported, from smoke inhalation to slight burns and many eyes damaged from flaming debris. But all were relatively minor.

The fire took freakish turns as it whipped along on the heels of a "Sundowner" wind that reached gusts of 70 miles per hour, swirling in and out of canyons in the hills above the city. Normally, at this time of year, the wind blows toward the mountains and away from the city. But on this night, the wind blew toward the ocean and at one point came within a mile of downtown Santa Barbara, threatening to wipe out the entire city. It has scared hell out of the residents because the area, as well as all of California, remains bone dry. And another fire of equal massiveness could recur.

"AT ONE TIME," says city fire chief Rich Peterson, "I felt there was no way it wouldn't go to the Pacific Ocean."

So the danger remains, fed by some mentally sick pyromaniacs who regularly drop arson devices — a favorite is a lighted cigarette stuck into a book of matches — into the bone dry shrubs and long grass that snake down the ridges and canyons sloping toward the coastal city.

Already wiped out, because a young carpenter named Scott Sheldon had the misfortune to lose control of a kite which snared in high tension wires, creating sparks that set the hills afire, are such beautiful and affluent areas as Barker Pass Road, Sierra Vista Road and Las Alturas Road. Expensive homes along their winding access ways were leveled with the intensity and thoroughness of an atomic blast.

IRONICALLY, there were inexplicable miracles. Five substantial residences have nothing left but concrete slabs, twisted metal and a naked fireplace. But a sixth, on the same route of the blaze is untouched. Along Sycamore Drive an aluminum boat is consumed, its hull melted and grotesque. But the camper to which it was hitched doesn't have a scorch mark.

Today, still you see pople who had lived there sifting, semi-dazed, through ashes, lucky to retrieve a door knob.

Roger Horton wasn't one of the lucky ones, either. His house at 1589 Sycamore Drive, which had been in the family two generations, was completely blotted out. And with it, all the memories of his childhood there.

"At one point," says Roger, "I stood on the roof with a friend. We had a garden hose, but we lost water pressure; it was hopeless.

"AND HOT? I HAD A freezer outside that survived the fire, I opened it up the next morning, and there was a frozen spinach souffle inside, completely cooked."

Some people fought desperately and vainly to preserve their homes. Charley Butler dipped a coffee can into a toilet to try to get water to fight the blaze.

David Taylor stood on his house all night long, spraying flames with a fire hose. The figures went through his mind. He had $56,000 in fire insurance and carred a $44,000 mortgage on the 1,600 square foot house. That would leave him $12,000 to rebuild a property that in today's market would sell for $125,000.

"Get away from my house, you - -," bystanders recalled hearing Taylor yelling as light from flames danced on his face. "Get away from my kids' swing!"

THE MEN WHO actively fought the fire felt danger.

"You don't know if you're going to get your ass out or not," says Bill Patterson, the county fire chief who saw more houses burn up in one night (200) than he had in 30 years as a career fireman in southern California.

"The city is shocked," says city chief Peterson. "There's a feeling: 'What went wrong?' "

The victims, materially, were almost uniformly caught short without adequate insurance coverage. One preliminary guess had the average loss per home at $100,000 beyond the insurance coverage of $65,000, because values had spiraled upward dramatically in that desirable area.

COUNTY CHIEF PATTERSON feels some lessons may have been learned from the devastation:

- Legislate against wooden roof shingles on homes unless they're specially treated — they are highly flammable, and fly off in all dirtctions, sprtad fire to other homes.
- Clear the brush around homes to create a fire break and recommend the use of certain types of shrubbery which are more fire resistant.
- Monitor the types of structures built, though no clear pattern has yet emerged as to the types that best withstood the fire — at the conflagration's peak intensity, every type of building went.

INDIVIDUALLY, those who went through the experience learned. David Taylor, who helped save his house by standing on the roof with a hose, is going to buy a gas-operated pump. That's to tap his private reservoir — the 5,000 gallons in his pool. Also, he'll have goggles for protection against flaming cinders. And he'll have his own length of fire hose.

The fire also poses a future danger in that it stripped the hills and ravints of so much vtgetation that when the rainy season comes, there is the threat of precipitous mud slides which could wash away homes that did survive the blaze.

Mostly, the remembrance of the holocaust of July 26 is intensely personal. Chief Peterson remembers driving through Circle Drive in Sycamore canyon at the height of the blaze and seeing a man on the roof with a garden hose. In the driveway were his wife and children.

"THE WIFE WAS pleading. "Get down. You're going to kill yourself. Let's get out of here." The man refused.

She turned to Peterson in the fire chief's car and said, "Make him come down."

"Hey, lady," the chief answered. "I'd have to fight him to get him off that roof."

The man stayed. So did his house. One of the lucky ones.

Violent role puzzles many

Weapon-toting women lead German terrorists

by WELLINGTON LONG

BONN, West Germany (UPI) — Seven years ago, a woman fired a shot in German guerrilla warfare for the first time.

Now half of the urban guerrillas wanted by Federal Criminal Police on suspicion of murder, bombings, bank robberies and associated crime are women.

Writers and psychologists puzzle over the leading and violent role women play in the urban guerrilla movement, and the fact that most of them come from upper middle class families.

SUGGESTED explanations range from sexual dependency on male guerrillas to revolt against the family. But even the authors of these suggestions admit they are only guesses. The women themselves say they are in political revolt against a system they consider repressive.

In the most recent case, Susanne Albrecht, daughter of a wealthy Hamburg lawyer, led a man and another woman into the home of banker Juergen Ponto, her father's close friend and a man who always had considered her as a goddaughter.

She handed him a bouquet of red roses just before the man with her opened fire on Ponto. Police say one of the two women, perhaps Miss Albrecht, also fired at Ponto. Ponto was killed.

Ulrike Meinhof, a left-wing journalist who abandoned husband and two children when she turned to violence, opened the terrorist era on May 14, 1970, when, assisted by two other women, she shot a guard in West Berlin to free Andreas Baader, then in jail for arson.

MRS. MEINHOF acted because of disappointment with the lack of results achieved by the leftist "Anti-parliamentary Opposition" which set out during the late 1960's to reform West German society.

Early in 1968, Mrs. Meinhof told an interviewer that fellow leftwing intellectuals "have gone far enough in their theory to know that armed action is necessary for the revolution but they are afraid to take the step."

She broke the impasse by forming the "Red Army Faction" and by personally leading the shooting raid that freed Baader.

Germany's urban guerrillas then became known as the Baader-Meinhof gang.

THE WOMEN ON the federal criminal police's wanted list now include Ingeborg Baz, for bank robbery, Gabriele Kroecher-Tiedemann, convicted in 1973 of the attempted murder of a policeman, suspected of one or two killings during an attack on OPEC headquarters in Vienna in 1975, and Angelike Liuther, suspected of bank robberies and of participation in the slaying of West Berlin Judge Gueter headquarters in Vienna in 1975, and von Drenkmann.

Also, Juliane Plambeck, also suspected of participation in Drenkmann's murder; Astrid Proll, sought for participation in the attempted murder of policemen, Ingrid Siepmann, convicted bank robber, Angelika Speitel and Sigrid Sternebeck, both wanted for suspected complicity in Ponto's murder, and Inge Viett, sought for participation in bank robberies.

Misses Kroecher-Tiedemann and Siepmann were serving sentences in a West Berlin prison in 1975 when they were exchanged for Peter Lorenz, a West Berlin politician kidnaped by other urban guerrillas. Miss Veren a Becker was on the wanted list until May, when police in the southern city of Singen arrested Guenter Sonnenberg on suspicion of participation in the April murder of Federal Prosecutor General Siegfried Buback.

Miss Becker also had been released from prison in exchange for Lorenz. At the time she was serving a six-year sentence for helping to plant a bomb at the British Yacht Club in West Berlin. The bomb blast killed one person.

Police captured Mrs. Meinhof and Baader in 1972, and charged them with murder. She hung herself before the trial ended. Another woman guerrilla, Gudrun Ensslin, was convicted in that trial and is in prison, although she has appealed the verdict.

The sound of "Amazing Grace" and Blessed Assurance"come thundering out of a tent revival at Quentin Road Bible Church in Palatine.

'Old' message revived in tent Bible meeting

It was like stepping back into religious history for more than 150 persons who attended an old-fashioned outdoor revival one night last week at the Quentin Road Bible Church in Palatine.

The huge green and gold tent, the piano and organ alongside a wooden pulpit, the rows of folding wooden chairs — all reminiscent of the days when outdoor Bible preaching and singing were as common in summer as picnics.

Even the usual August chill was not enough to keep the Bible-toting audience from turning the tent into a resounding outdoor chapel for 1½ hours.

SONGS INCLUDING "Amazing Grace," "Blessed Assurance" and "Saved, Saved" put the audience in the spirit for some more singing and a Bible message from the Rev. James Scudder.

It was the message that Christian churches have been preaching for nearly 2,000 years — that the Bible is the word of God and his son Jesus Christ is The Savior of the world. It is a nessage that is old, but never seems to grow old-fashioned.

"We just kind of wanted something that could really reach out to the people," Rev. Scudder said of the tent meetings. "We wanted something that would be seen."

The big tent has been a curiosity for passersby on Quentin Road since the six-day "Old Fashioned Tent Meetings," as Scudder calls them, began Tuesday.

REV. SCUDDER said he has envisioned holding tent meetings on a vacant lot next to the church, 721 S. Quentin Rd., since he started the church 3½ years ago.

He said he contacted the Rev. Robert E. Murphey of Palatine Bible Church, 312 Wood St., with his idea, and together they planned the tent meetings.

The two pastors spoke at the tent meetings on alternate nights.

"But the important thing is to preach the Gospel," Rev. Scudder said.

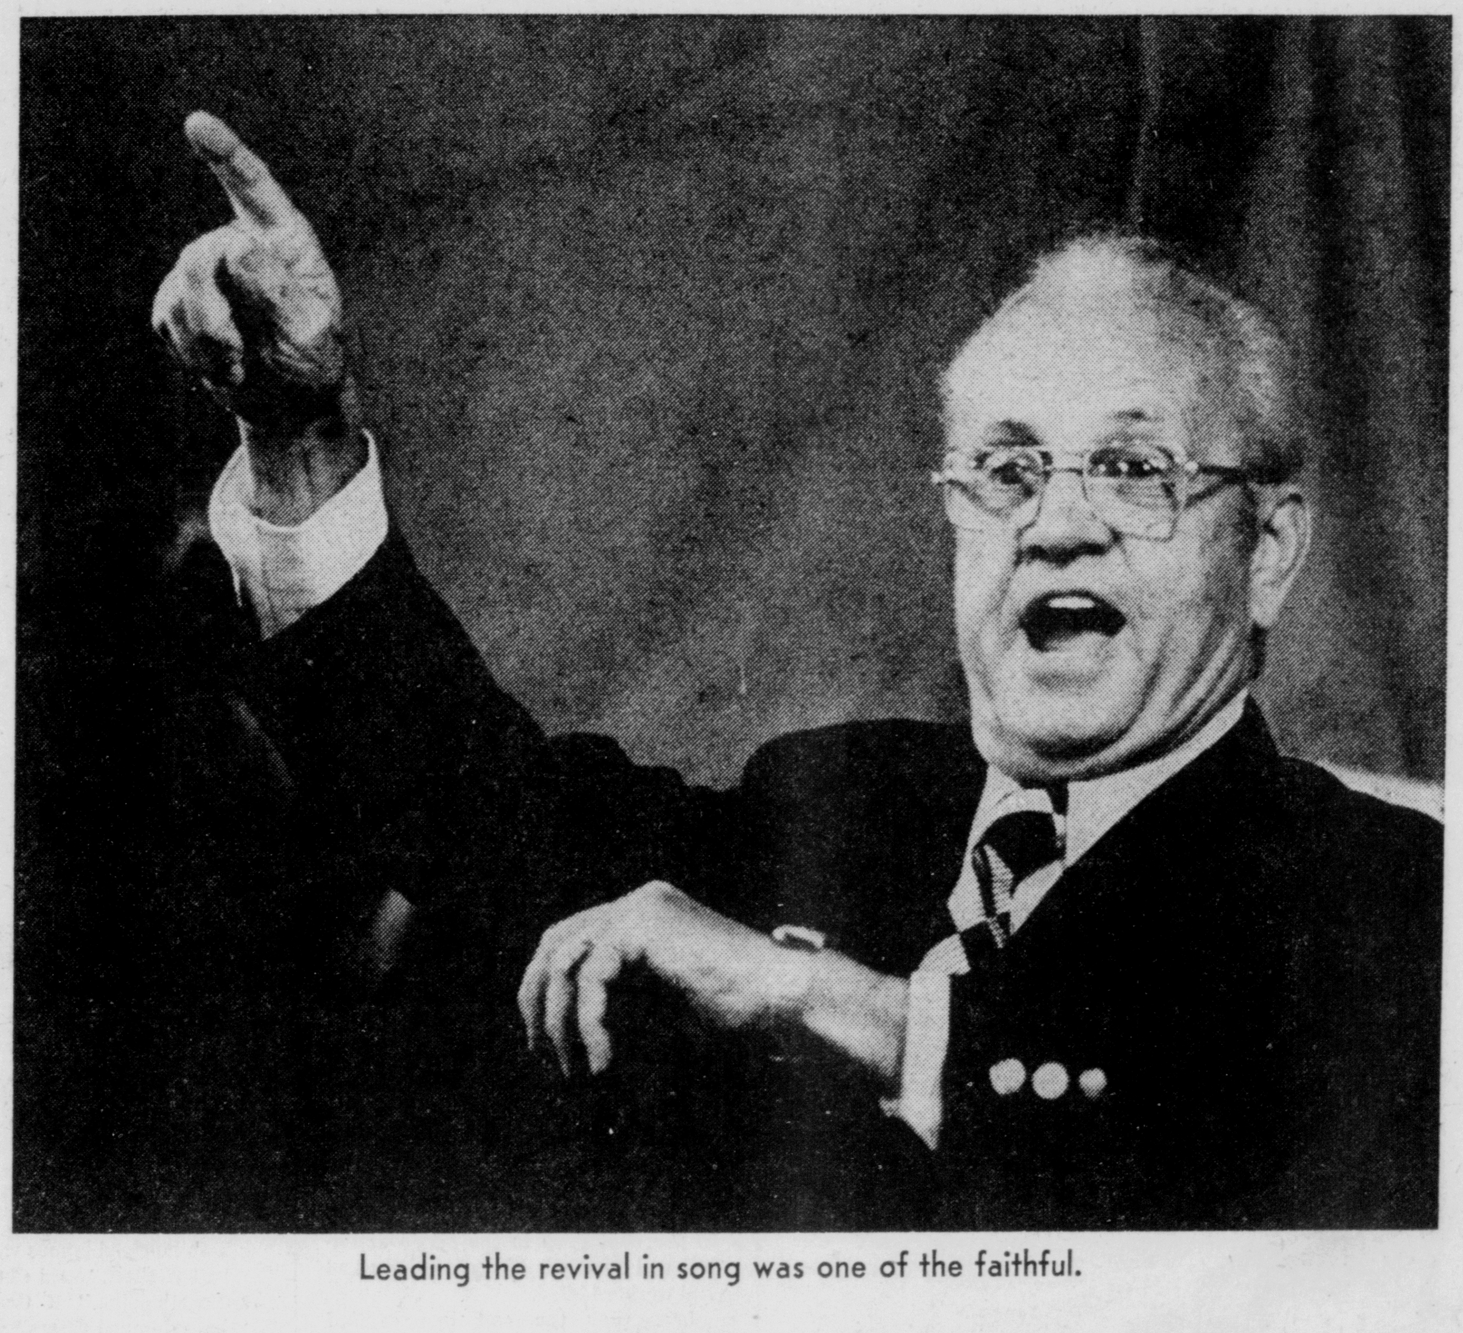

Wednesday evening persons from Palatine, Schaumburg, Rolling Meadows, Arlington Heights, Hoffman Estates, Barrington and even vacationers from New York were at the tent meeting, which ended Sunday.

"IT'S REAL good," was Palatine resident John Julian's reaction to the idea of tent meetings. "It makes it informal. People don't have to dress up, they can just stop in as they are. It's a real convenient way to tell people about Christ."

Mark White, 17, of Palatine, said he liked the old fashioned approach of preaching the Bible outdoors.

"There's no denominations, it's free to everyone, that's the way it was a thousand years ago," he said.

Bible churches are independent fundamentalist Christian churches that welcome visitors from all denominations.

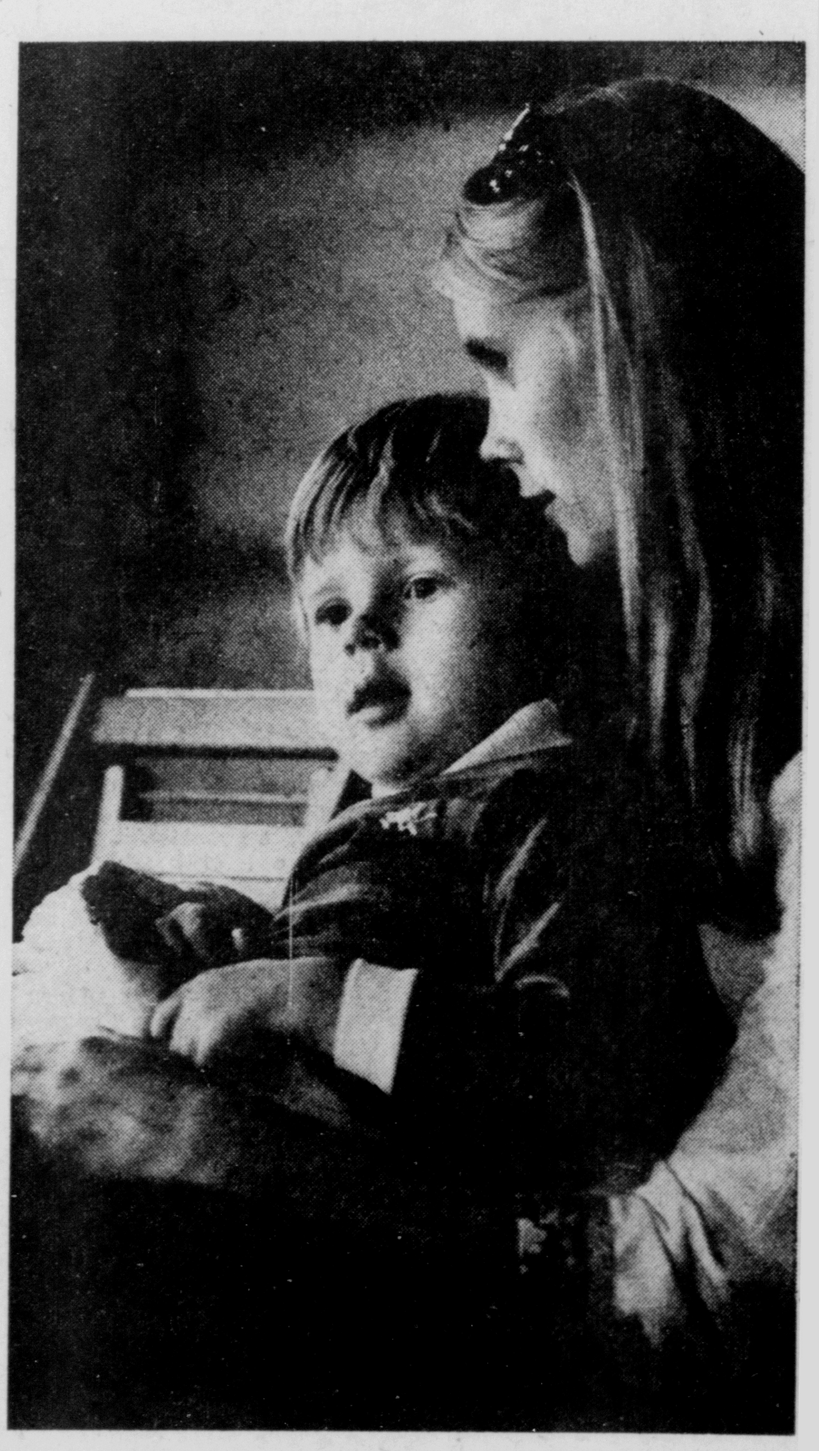

Leading the revival in song was one of the faithful.

The revival is an experience for the young, too.

CLUES TO A CHILD'S feelings can be found by psychotherapists who observe upset youngsters at play. A common counseling technique utilizes a favorite toy, the dollhouse, as a means for children like Venessa Clute, 6, to act out their anxieties through play.

Children learn to cope with emotional problems through play therapy

by BARBARA LADD

A first-grader, sitting in front of a large wooden dollhouse, looked at the neatly arranged toy furniture, reached in and scrambled the pieces into chaos.

Another time, a different child took great pains to reorganize the play furniture into neat, orderly groupings.

Both children were symbolically expressing their anxieties through play. One communicated an upsetting homelife; the other expressed a desire for more organization.

"A young child is not like an adult when it comes to counseling," said Marge Lysinski, director of the Salvation Army Community Counseling Center. "They don't usually sit down and tell you what's bothering them. But they can work out problems in play therapy."

FOR EXAMPLE, Jean Thurow, a Salvation Army social worker in Schaumburg Township, counseled a 9-year-old who "wanted to smash the whole world," she said. "He was playing with the dollhouse and little animals. He would take a toy dinosaur and play like it was smashing everything up."

After weeks of play therapy, the dinosaur began to help the other animals live peacefully.

Salvation Army has been counseling children, as well as other family and community members, since its Des Plaines office opened in 1965. In '75 the Army opened an office in Arlington Heights and last year added the Schaumburg branch. Each social worker sees 25 clients per week. Those seeking counseling pay on a sliding scale ranging from $1 to $40 for a 50-minute session.

SOCIAL WORKERS report that most of the children they counsel are over 5 years of age and are referred for psychotherapy after experiencing problems in school. They may show extreme hostility to classmates and teachers, or they may be totally withdrawn. Academic performances may have plummeted.

The purpose of therapy is to help those children — and often their entire families as well — before the problems become so severe a child must be put in an institution, said Mrs. Lysinski.

Dollhouse therapy, a technique used widely since the 1920s, is practiced with younger age groups.

Basically, the child and therapist begin by sharing activities and forming a relationship. Then the therapist observes the child as he or she plays with the figures in the toy house.

THE HOUSE'S ATTIC, they say, is one of the most interesting rooms to watch. "When the child is angry with someone or trying to punish someone, he puts that person in the attic," said Mrs. Lysinski.

"I worked with a child whose grandparent just died," said Bonnie Weiss, another Salvation Army social worker. "Half the time the grandparent figure was in the attic, the other half of the time with the rest of the family.

"The child was struggling with the loss of her grandmother," said Mrs. Weiss. "Where does the grandparent belong? Where did she go? As the highest room in the dollhouse, the attic could have represented heaven to the child. Or maybe the child was upset at being deserted."

IN A DIVORCE situation, children may feel guilty, thinking their own bad behavior was responsible for the father or mother leaving home, said Mrs. Lysinski "All the time as they are growing up they are disciplined with 'No,' or 'Stop that,' or 'Don't do that.' " In one such case, a child moved the figure representing himself into the attic.

Besides dollhouse therapy, other techniques may be utilized to counsel young children. The counselor may employ the Kinetic Family, for instance. In this technique, a child is asked to draw pictures of each family member doing something. The worker notes the size of each person in relation to the others and interaction or alienation.

"Sometimes, a child will draw all but one member together on one page and put the leftover one on the back. That tells you something about what's going on in that home," said Salvatin Army social worker Joan Menges.

"And I had a little girl who drew everybody in her family in little, separate compartments, each doing something alone. In that family, that was how it went — everybody off on his own," said Mrs. Weiss.

INSTEAD OF drawing family activities, the child may be asked to finish squiggles. Here the child draws a squiggle or meaningless line and incorporates it into a picture.

"One little girl who was confronting a trauma put her squiggles in her stomach — she was jumpy inside," said Mrs. Thurow.

The Salvation Army social workers stress that sessions with parents are important to the overall success of child therapy. "Parents are entitled to know what we're doing with their child," said Mrs. Menges.

They also may need help themselves in understanding that it takes time for a child to develop emotional problems and it therefore may take a long time to resolve them, said Mrs. Lysinski.

"And sometimes the parents want the child to be the problem. But they never want to take a look at themselves," she said.

Car pools require rules of the road

by MARION R. CARLSON

Car pools are a way of life for many suburban mothers. What makes the difference between a successful one and one where the mothers simply "grin and bear it"?

Following are some ideas from several mothers who have participated in a car pool for preschoolers for two years:

• Be punctual when you are the driver, and have your child ready on time when you are not driving.

• Lock all car doors after each child enters and don't drive off until all children are sitting forward and are quiet.

• Be sure each child has entered his house when you deliver them home again.

• If your child is reluctant to ride with another adult, reassure him by explaining who the driver will be each day and that all the mothers are taking turns driving. Continue whatever type of support is needed until the car pool is a way of life for your child. The driver that makes a point of being extra friendly to a reluctant passenger also will help to dissipate his fears.

• Make other arrangements well ahead of time if you are unable to drive on your day.

"ESTABLISHING a few rules with safety and cooperation in mind gave us a common basis of operation," one mother reports. Most of the above rules were obvious ones that parents practice regularly with their own children, but they took on new importance when there were other preschoolers in the car.

The preschoolers themselves were given a few rules to follow, which were important for maintaining a safe and cooperative car pool. They included:

• Each child must sit in his or her own place, without exchanging places or leaping over seats.

• Quiet conversation or singing is allowed, but not yelling, poking and gum chewing.

• Find ways to be polite to each other, such as taking turns getting in and out of the car.

• Everyone must stay together and be alert when leaving or entering the car in a parking lot or street. This final rule is essential to prevent enthusiastic preschoolers from darting out among cars like spilled marbles scattering in all directions.

EACH MOTHER handled problems in her own way when children misbehaved in the back seat. One of the most effective ways was to pull over to the side of the road and refuse to continue driving until peace was restored. Letting the children know that unruly behavior would not be tolerated was combined with encouranging a pleasant, congenial atmosphere.

In summary, the car-pool routine can be more than an endurance test necessary for the sake of saving time and gasoline. It can be one route to cooperative living when the participants mutually agree on and practice a few fundamental rules.

Scarves and shawls important fall accessories

An important accessory item this fall will be the shawl or scarf. It seems no garment is complete without one. You can wear one casually or for formal occasions — the fabric will dictate which it is to be.

Tartans or plaids are so popular and there are so many great selections iln marvelous colors, so why not plan a skirt with a shawl?

If you want a 54-inch shawl, you would purchase an extra 1½ yards of fabric, trim the square carefully, cutting all edges on a perfect grain line. Most shawls are finished by self fringing about an inch, or by contrasting your fabric with fringe that you make with yarn or a purchased fringe.

When complete, fold diagonally in half to form a triangle and casually wrap it around yourself. It's a perfect foil for those first cool days of fall.

(A note on self fringing. fabric. If it's difficult to fringe your fabric, clip into the wool the desired width of the finished fringe every four to six inches, then proceed to pull out these shorter length threads. The finished look will never reveal your secret).

Dear Eunice Farmer:

Some time ago, you explained how to apply fabric to walls instead of wallpaper. I followed your directions, and when I put the fabric on the walls, it looked slightly bubbly. However, you said the fabric would shrink as it dried and would be nice and tight when completely dry. My fabric has dried and the bubbles still are there. Any suggestions? — Mrs. B.K.

Dear Mrs. B. K.: Actually, I must admit I am no expert on hanging fabric on walls. However, I have done many of them in my own home for years, always with great success.

I can think of only one thing that might cause your trouble — did you pre-shrink your fabric? If you did, the fabric would not shrink a second time and when it dried it would remain the same size.

You might have to experiment with a little less paste and spend more time smoothing the fabric with a roller. Also, whenever I have papered with fabric, I've actually lapped the seams slightly at first. Then when the fabric is thoroughly dry, I pull it back on all the seams, trim it so the seams will just butt together, re-paste and it is perfect every time.

Sew simple

Dear Eunice Farmer: What is the easiest way (if any) to reduce the bust size from a 36 to 34 on a princess dress or jumper pattern? I am rather thick through the back and lower shoulder section, so I need all the room I can have in back. — Mrs. E.E.K.

Dear Mrs. E.E.K.: Place the section of your pattern called the "side front" on a table. Carefully draw a line from shoulder to hem on the straight grain, using the grain mark on your pattern as a guide. Fold the pattern on this line (you may have to experiment to see how much extra room there actually is). I would begin by making a 1/4-inch fold, which would take out 1/2 inch on each side or one inch in the front.

Your front shoulder seam now will be more narrow than the back. If the shoulder width was correct, you will have to slit the pattern from the shoulder down about three inches and separate to give you the extra width to match the back.

Usually, if you are very small across the front, the pattern also will be too wide at the shoulder in front. If this is the case, leave the shoulder narrow and make an extra fold to resemble a small dart at the back of the shoulder in pattern only, and the shoulder seams will match.

This week's winner of the gold blazer buttons is Mrs. Chris Brown, Box 214, Hickory, N.C. 28601. Her tip:

"When working with fake fur, put all the cut pieces in your clothes dryer (on air cycle to fluff). This gets rid of all that loose fur and saves time and tempers when cleaning around your sewing area. It also avoids excess lint getting into your sewing machine mechanism."

The doctor says

Plump face may be blessing in disguise

I am 20 pounds overweight. I am on a reasonable diet. The problem is my face. It is plump and often looks swollen. It has always been like that even before I became overweight. I have a brother that is like a toothpick but has very plump cheeks. I would like to know what exercise you could recommend to slim down by face.

Count your blessings. I know of large numbers of people who would love to keep their rounded face when they lose weight. Usually the fat leaves the face first and the waist last. If you are lucky enough to keep this characteristic through life you may always look younger and prettier because of it.

I remember one of my early tussles with Lyndon Johnson regarding his long struggle with his weight problems. I suggested he needed to lose some more weight, and his first reaction was, "What would I do about the photographers?" As a prominent politician he knew that if his face lost weight everyone would think he was ill despite the fact that he would have improved his health. Politicians can't afford to have people think they are sick.

Concentrate on losing your extra 20 pounds first. I'm sending you The Health Letter number 4-7, Weight Losing Diet to help you. Do some facial exercises to help you keep your face muscles strong and nature will do the rest for you. Others who want the diet program can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it.

I have read articles and have talked with many people who say that sassafras tea causes cancer and sometimes heart problems. I have always thought that it would be good for you because it thinned the blood in order to help protect against hardening of the arteries. I would like to know if you have any information on this subject.

Sassafras tea once was a favorite spring tonic. But like many such folk remedies it was never shown by any scientific test to provide any health benefits. But who worried about that compared to the notion that a hot cup of tasty tea would signal the end of a hard winter and the glories of a gentle spring.

Then in 1960 the Food and Drug Administration found out that the root of sassafras contained flavor oils that caused liver cancer in rats and it didn't take too much to do the job either. Lung tumors also were observed. I know of no study that links sassafras tea with heart disease or that show it to be beneficial in this regard either.

But science has triumphed in the long run. The root beer makers have found new flavoring agents that taste more like sassafras than the old sassafras and the candy manufacturers have used new preparations for that distinctive flavor for some candies. So you can still get the sassafras flavor without the cancer — and that is progress — even though you might not think so on an early spring day when you have a yen for a hot cup of sassafras tea and find out the FDA has banned it.

Seashells can be used in decorative projects

Dear Roberta: We brought back great quantities of shells from our seashore vacation. What can we do with them now? —Ellen Foss.

Depending upon your artistic talents, there are all sorts of decorative items you can make with them. Here are a couple of projects requiring zero talent.

The children can make charming collages on cork sheets you can find in various sizes at hardware stores. Or you might create your own wind chime or mobile using shells. The chime Ronald Pugsley made to suspend near his front door is very attractive. He found a straight-ish piece of driftwood, drilled holes to tie nine strands of fish line into it about one and one-half inches apart, and at intervals tied on shells with holes. The strands are of different lengths and the effect is lovely. If you don't have any driftwood, you can string lines from a piece of bamboo.

For Energy Savers: Many years before the energy shortage, my mother taught me this way to save my own energy while oroning. Flat items can be ironed simultaneously with others by ironing garments on top of them. This holls for large objects like sheets, as well as tea towels and pillow cases. Fold a sheet lengthwise and then once more. Now place the top of the four layers at the far edge of the ironing board. After you've ironed, say, a shirt, over it, move it up a section. If it's not flat enough through all thicknesses when you get to the bottom, furn it over, fold it in half, and continue ironing other things over the other side of the sheet. It's not only an energy-save, but a time-saver, too!

Debbie Barile-Paul Mellen

Standing beneath an arch of greenery and flowers, Debbie Barile and Paul Mellen became husband and wife July 23 in a 5 o'clock double ring ceremony in St. Peter Lutheran Church of Schaumburg.

Debbie is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Barile, Hoffman Estates, and Paul is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Melien, Elgin. The couple met three years ago while they were working at Kentucky Fried Chicken in Hoffman Estates.

The bride chose a rainbow color scheme for her wedding. Her maid of honor, her sister Susan, was gowned in blue, bridesmaids Debbi Beckley, Hoffman Estates, in yellow, and her cousin, Nancy Abitua, Elgin, in pink. Another cousin, Maureen O'Donnell of Chicago, was flower girl and wore green.

THE ADULT attendants' dresses were knit halter-style with matching sheer floral capelets. They wore hats to match their gowns, and their bouquets contained carnations dyed to match their dresses, along with baby's breath and white daisies. The flower girl's dress also was knit and she carried green carnations with baby's breath in a basket.

The bride's brother, Tony, was ring bearer.

As she approached the arch where her bridegroom stood, Debbie wore a polyester lace-trimmed gown, and a chapel-length mantilla veil attached to a Juliet cap. Her bouquet of rainbow-color carnations and baby's breath had a white orchid center.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Mellen

PAUL'S BEST man was his brother, Mark. Debbie's brother, Steve, and the groom's brother-in-law, Steve Moeck of Chicago, were groomsmen.

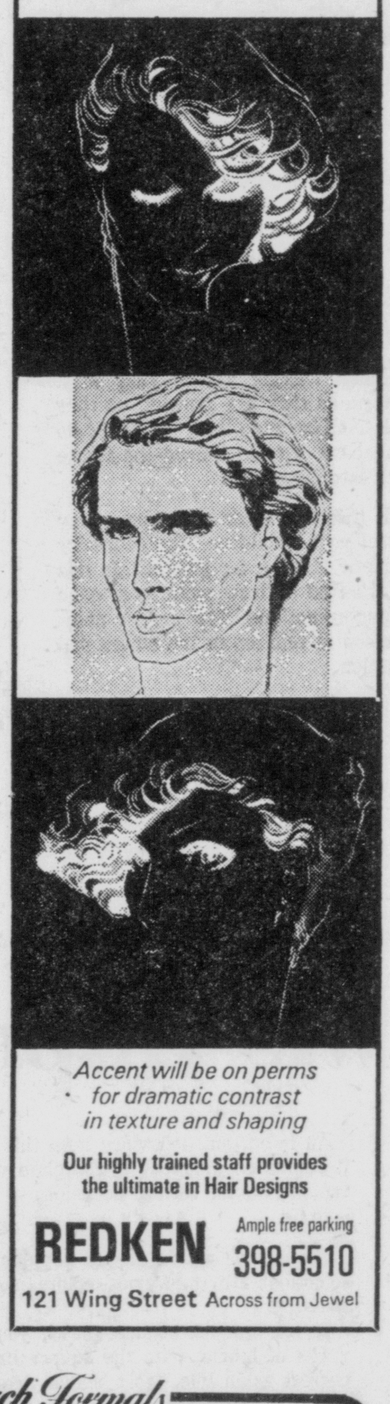

A reception held at the Elk Grove Village FVW Hall was attended by 140 guests.

The couple honeymooned for a week in Toronto, Canada, and then returned to their jobs, Debbie at Hollander Storage and Moving, Elk Grove, and Paul for the Southland Co., Elgin. The bride graduated in 1974 from Conant High School. Her bridegroom is an Elgin Community College graduate.

It's Saturday Night and here's Gilda

Gilda Radner, that frail, funny, little girl with the crop of frizzy hair who specializes in Baba Wawa and Emily Litella, is out to prove Andy Warhol wrong.

Warhol once said every human being would know 15 minutes of fame during his lifetime. Ms. Radner is going to enjoy fame longer.

She is one of the Not Ready for Prime Time players who was ready for prime time when Chevy Chase dropped out of the show a year ago and decided to go it alone in the business. She is a real pro. She writes and dreams up her own material and then carries her characterizations and improvisations to the screen.

SHE HAS become the shining star of "NBC's Saturday Night Live," a program that has revolutionized late-night, weekend television. Viewers of all ages are scheduling social activities around the comedy-variety series that airs live from New York beginning at 10:30 p.m.

Gilda Radner is not only funny in real life, she's pleasant. She's zany and blur of energy — thinking, moving and talking all the time. And she is pleased about her new-found popularity.

A current issue of "New Times" magazine calls the Midwest girl from Detroit America's new sweetheart. The vitality and creativity of a young Lucille Ball are hers now.

MS. RADNER, who seems smaller in stature than she appears on camera, said she would not be able to so successfully meet the ongoind demands of "saturday Night" if it weren't for her participation in Second City.

"I was with the Second City group in Toronto although we played in Chicago a lot. It was the best training I ever could have had for this kind of career. We did all sorts of spontaneous things and improvisations. It was great fun," she said during a recent visit to Chicago.

A Second City stint, and performing in "The National Lampoon Radio Hour" and later an off-Broadway stage version gave way to he theatrical production of "Godspell." And that gave way to "Saturday Night."

She's 20 pounds lighter now than when she first started on the NBC Saturday night experiment. During the past year, she has more tha filled the void left by Chevy Chase and has gathered an ardent following.

"THE SUCCESS OF 'Saturday Night' is hard to explain. We sort of snuck up on them. It's the kind of show where the audience has to come to us because we're not on prime time. They have to want to find us and watch us," she said.

And what price has she had to pay for success?

"I can't go anywhere without being recognized and that's serious," she said. "You have to have freedom to be an observer. People and life are the sources for a comic's work. I have to be able to watch people and what's going on."

The "Saturday Night" cast is determined to come up with a whole barrage of new characters for the new fall season. Only a few of the favorites like Baba Wawa will return, she said.

"I met Barbara Walters once at a reception after I had done the impersonation on the show and she was a very good sport about it," Ms. Radner said.

"NBCs SATURDAY Night Live" continues to belong to only a special segment of the American viewing public, Ms. Radner said, because the show is exempt from some of the prime time limitations on subject matter and dialog. "It's the most honest thing on television," she said.

GILDA RADNER

"Because it's a live show, there's an energy and an honesty. We can't sweeten up the show with a taped laugh track or show the audience the best of two takes. Whether we succeed or fail, they see it," Ms. Radner said.

"It's the same kind of live magic that made Sid Caesar and Imogene Coca great," she said. "It's like being a tight rope walker and working without a net."

As able and talented as she is, Ms. Radner is not one for working alone. She likes appearing in summer stock theater during the rerun season, and she loves her television "Saturday Night" family.

Is it the innovative show that made its cast stars or the star performers who made the show a hit?

"I believe our show is the result of the personalities. It provides a framework for our expression," she said.

COMING FROM the same town as Lily Tomlin, Gilda Radner, the daughter of a businessman, figures she couldn't be anything but a comedienne.

She is as uncontrived as her show and as breezy as the Deco 40s clothes she wears. The world and the street are her school of comedy. She's ready to tackle show business head on, she said.

Who knows just what faces she'll sport this fall when "Saturday Night" launches another season Sept. 24 with a contest that will allow some unknown soul to guest host the Christmas show.

At 31, Ms. Radner has a lot more faces and places to go. She can be as sweet as a girl Scout, then biting as Barbara Walters, or as fast as Video Vixen.

She insists, however, that there is a part of her in every character she portrays. In any case, Saturday nights are more special and a lot funnier because of Gilda Radner.

TV NOTES:

• "A.M. Chicago" and "Friday Night" host Steve Edwards says he hasn't made a decision about renewing his WLS-TV contract in December. Rumors have been flying that Edwards will be off to sunny California and a new job. "I frankly don't know what I'll be doing after the first of the year," Edwards said. "I'm perfectly happy here in Chicago." But . . .

All-pro Olsen to tackle scripts not quarterbacks

by VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Merlin Olsen, giant all-pro Los Angeles Rams footballer now tackling scripts instead of sacking quarterbacks, finds his new acting job as exciting as the gridiron.

Olsen is a new member of the "Little House on the Prairie" cast. At 6-feet-five, 250 pounds, he plays a Bunyanesque farmer-woodsman.

The former All-America, all-pro defensive tackle is not your ordinary jock-turned-entertainer. He was graduated summa cum laude and Phi Beta Kappa with a degree in finance from Utah State. He later earned a master's degree in economics from the same university.

He ranks among the most articulate athletes in the country, so much so that NBC has signed him to an exclusive contract to broadcast NFL games this season in addition to his "Little House" role.

BEARDED FOR the part of Johnathan Garvey, friend and neighbor of Pa Ingalls, (played by series' star Michael Landon) Olsen has lost 40 pounds from his top playing weight.

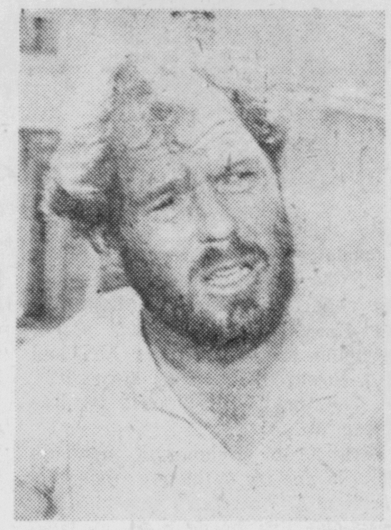

Asked how he felt about missing the start of a new football season for the first time in 22 years, going back to high school, the big man had a ready answer.

"That 22 years represents two-thirds of my life," he said. "I can't turn my back on the game and walk away easily. I loved football.

"But show business appeals to me because it operates at the same tempo I'm used to in football. There is the same preparation of performance level and variety in the work as it was the past 15 years with the Rams.

"IT WOULD be very difficult for me to do the same things every day with 8 to 5 o'clock responsibilities. So I looked for something to give me freedom of lifestyle and new challenges."

Olsen long ago established himself as a businessman. He owns a prosperous automobile agency in the San Fernando valley.

MERLIN OLSEN

He began moonlighting acting jobs 10 years ago with John Wayne and Rock Hudson in "The Undefeated." He said he was properly initiated into movies by a company of consumate professionals.

Olsen, who had no formal training as an actor, is that rare low key, self-confident man who appears at ease in any situation.

"My mother taught me how to speak in front of groups of people," he said. in a deep baritone. "I spoke in church (Later Day Saints) and appeared in school plays. I memorized a 15 minute speech in the fourth grade for the Armistice Day celebration."

FOR THE PAST 10 years Olsen has devoted himself to motivational speeches and has addressed countless persons at sports banquets.

He's also appeared in five movies and several television shows, acquiring enough acting technique to be considered a throughgoing professional.

"We've completed six of the nine episodes I'll be doing in the series," he said. "I'm getting more and more comfortable as an actor.

"My character is new to the show. Thty asked me to do what I wanted in putting him together. It helps that Garvey is an outdoorsman. I've spent a lot of time outdoors in Utah.

"IT'S A GREAT opportunity. If they'd made me an Irishman with a limp and a brogue I'd have been in trouble. These people really know what they're doing. It's like being drafted from college to a great pro team."

"I'm fortunate there are so many new challenges in each script. I have more new things to do than in all my previous acting combined. And they're not capitalizing on my physical size. They want an actor not a giant."

Olsen does not volunteer his feelings about leaving the carnage of football. He skipped the first Rams exhibition game this month to take his children to the opening of a new animal park in San Diego.

"I've had to be at the games so many years, I'm taking advantage of the time I have now to be with my family," he said.

"I'M BUSY enough that I don't think about missing football. I don't know how much I'll miss it because the season hasn't really started. Right now I have no pangs. But maybe there will be moments when I wish I were back out there on the field.

"Of course I'll root for the Rams. I'd like to see them win every game. I miss the people I cared about on the team. The camaraderie will be the hardest thing to replace."

Olsen didn't say so, but one suspects he won't miss the aches and pains of professional football. Not with his I.Q. anyway.

Straight-talking consultant attacks corporate ills of turnover, morale

by LEA TONKIN

Straight-talking John Patton, 65, says many managers don't understand what makes their employes tick.

"It's amazing, many executives believe that the lower the wages, the lower their costs. It's exactly the opposite," says Patton, president of Patton Consultants, Inc., 2200 E. Devon Ave., Des Plaines.

Increased pay, when included in an effective incentive program, will spark more initiative and productivity among employes, Patton said. He sees incentive programs as a cure for the additional corporate ills of high turnover and poor morale.

PATTON SPEAKS from more than 30 years' experience in unraveling industry problems.

Despite Patton's enthusiasm for wage incentive plans — which reward an employe for increased productivity, a recent survey by Patton Consultants and the American Institute of Industrial Engineers shows a decline in the number of U.S. industrial firms using the programs.

Wage incentive plans were scrapped by some U.S. companies because they were outdated, Patton said. Current surveys of an industry's operations and standards set for on-the-job performance are critical to the plan's success.

The whole incentive plan must be sold to management and labor groups if it's going to work. Patton said.

THE FRINGE benefits to workers are higher pay and improved morale, Patton says of a wage incentive plan. For the company, a substantial cost savings is often reported.

"Just by having yardsticks of measurement" for employes "right away can mean up to a 25 per cent increase in productivity," he said. "And yet 60 per cent of American industry has no work measurement standards."

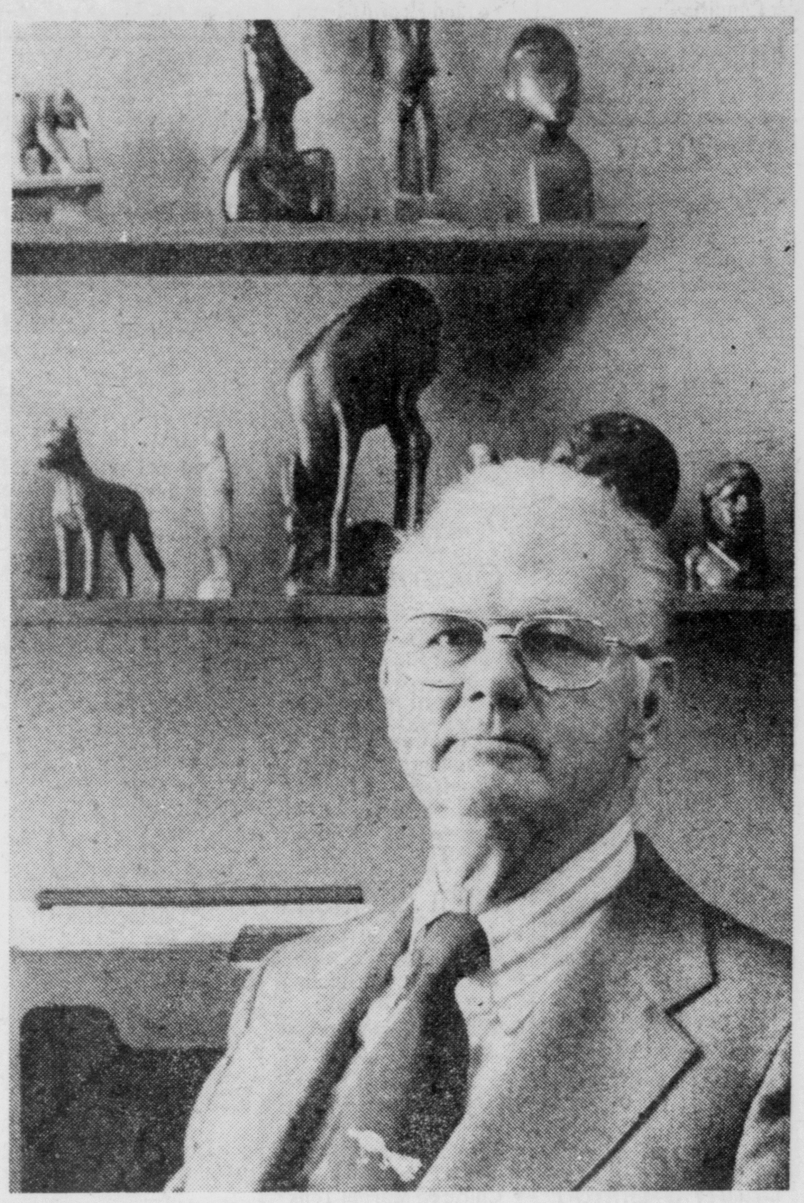

Patton says organized labor groups doe not take kindly to the industrial engineer or efficiency expert who tries to think of ways for increasing a worker's production.

"I have a few philosophies," Patton says. "If you face things head on, it works best." That is why he insists on a discussion of the proposed incentive plan with union leaders, before the plans are finalized.

Somewhere along the line, Patton said management consultants lost their credibility. "Recommending, advice-giving and manual writing — there's too much of it today," he said.

Patton says he tries to change this image by working with foremen and office supervisors "instead of being a bigshot." He describes the consulting field as "80 per cent working with people and 20 per cent technical. Some industrial engineers get it reversed," Patton said.

"The greatest term coming into being is accountability," Patton said. Employes, from the president right down to the janitor, want to know how they're doing on the job, Patton said, "And I say, tell them."

"FACE THINGS head on," says John Patton, president of Patton Consultants, Inc., based in Des Plaines.

Color duplicating machines increase chance of fraud

NEW YORK (UPI)—Color duplicating machines that make it easier to produce fraudulent copies of financial documents are giving headaches to firms handling stock and bond certificates.

Bankers Trust Co. in New York says printers of securities documents have resorted to several techniques to differentiate genuine certificates from the color-copied reproductions but the best defense against fakes is a well-trained securities clerk.

A fake document often has a background tint or "Halo" in the area of engraved figures and figures are not as well-defined as on originals, bankers trust notes. Original printing has a luster lost in reproductions.

Another tipoff, the bank says, is that a bluish green smudge appears when white paper is rubbed over the corporate name on a reproduction. The smudge is black on an original.

While there are few proven cases of fraudulent reproductions using color copiers, Bankers Trust says bankers and securities firms are stepping up training to detect fakes.

It says printers are using metallic inks, special paper bearing metallic flakes and colors with different density ranges to thwart the passing of reproductions.

Don't underestimate worth

Home insurance worth checking

Jane Bryant Quinn

Staying ahead

NEW YORK — The terrible fire in Santa Barbara, Calif., that destroyed more than 200 homes, should prod you into thinking about your own fire insurance coverage. Many of the victims of the Santa Barbara disaster were seriously underinsured. If anything happened to your home you might find yourself in the same spot.

Construction costs have risen more than 100 per cent during the past 10 years. A house that cost $20,000 to build in 1967 might run you $44,000 today. If your homeowners insurance hasn't been updated for 10 years, you're exposing yourself to considerable financial risk. The entire investment you've made in your house could be wiped out.

You're also at risk if your house suffers minor damage from fire, windstorm, vandalism or any other accident. This is because of little-known "80 per cent clause," contained in most insurance policies.

Generally speaking, policies pay damage claims in full only if the house is insured for at least 80 per cent of its replacement cost. If you're insured for less, the company reduces the amount payable on any claim.

FOR EXAMPLE, assume you have a house that would cost $40,000 to rebuild, but are carrying only $20,000 worth of insurance — 50 per cent coverage. If your house burned to the ground, you could collect no more than $20,000 — leaving you with a big loss. But what if you have a fire in the kitchen, for a damage claim of $2,000? You might expect to be fully covered, since your policy is for $20,000, but you're not. Payment will be reduced according to how close to 80 per cent you're insured and how old the house is.

On a 5-year-old house 50 per cent insured, with a $2,000 damage claim, you'd collect $1,333, according to the Continental Insurance Companies. On a house that's 20 years old, the amount would go down to $1,250. However, if you had been insured for at least $32,000 (80 per cent of $40,000), the full $2,000 would have been paid.

One warning: Some people insure their homes for 80 per cent of "market value," which is not the same thing as replacement cost. Market value is the price you'd get if the house were sold, and includes the value of the land. Replacement cost is simply the price of rebuilding the house itself.

To find out how much it would cost to replace your house today, ask a builder or appraiser to give you an estimate. The fee shouldn't run more than $30 to $50. If you don't know anyone in that line of business, just look in the Yellow Pages. Alternatively, you could ask your insurance agent for some guidelines.

IF YOU OWN a solidly built older house — of the kind they aren't building any more — you may find that the theoretical replacement cost is above market value, which calls for a higher level of coverage than you first expected.

More insurance, of course, means more money. But there are two ways to control the price increase:

- Ask one or two insurance agents to compare costs at several insurance companies for the particular policy you want. You may well find an insurer that charges less than the one you've been using.
- Consider increasing the "deductible," which is the amount of each repair bill that you pay out-of-pocket before the insurance company takes over the claim. In most states (except Texas, North Carolina, Washington, Hawaii and Washington, D.C.) you can get a deductible as high as $500, which lowers the policy's cost.

On the other hand, you may decide that the savings aren't really worth it. Raising the deductible to $500 from $100 may save only $40 to $60 a year.

Most insurance companies offer an inflation-adjustment clause, that automatically increases the value of your insurance every three months or every year. If you forget to review your insurance regularly — as most of us do — an inflation clause is not a bad idea.

Business briefs

U.S. leads nations in recession cure

Of the three big industrial powers of the free enterprise world, the United States has made the best recovery from the recession and has the best outlook, the University of Michigan's Economic Outlook USA said. Economists Philip H. Klein and Geoffrey H. Moore, authors of the study, said the United States had recovered all the 15 per cent gross economic loss of the 1973-75 recession by May, 1977. But West Germany and Japan have not done that well, recovering less than 80 per cent of their gross economic loss, they said. The unemployment rate in the United States has been cut nearly in half from the recession while the jobless rate in both West Germany and Japan remains unchanged from the recession peaks.

Energy grant hearing today

Gov. James R. Thompson has announced public hearings on Ilinois' $1.58 million federal weatherization grant will be at 10 a.m. today in Room D-1, State Office Building, Springfield.

Thompson said the funds will help low-income families conserve energy by providing insulating materials, storm windows and doors, and other materials to reduce heat loss.

National Savings assets up 16%

National Savings of Mount Prospect and Chicago has topped $36 million in assets, a more than 16 per cent increase during the last 12 months, David E. Czekala, association president said. Total assets reached $36.7 million on July 30, he said. National Savings opened its Mount Prospect office, 1700 S. Elmhurst Rd. in June 1975. National Savings is also located at 3350 W. Diversey Ave., Chicago.

Latin-owned bank 'discriminates'

The Treasury Dept. says Republic National Bank's hiring practices are discriminatory — only five of its 173 employes are white Americans.

The Miami Latin-owned Bank, the Nation's largest minority-owned lending institution, has 68 Latin employes, both white and black. The equal employment office of the treasruy suggests a "correct" ethnic composition of 50 per cent latins, 25 per cent American whites and 25 per cent American blacks.

Coal-gas test plant OKd

Four industrial and government participants recently signed an agreement to build and operate the Powerton coal-to-gas test facility during ceremonies in Gov. James R. Thompson's office. Construction of the facility at Commonwealth Edison's Powerton site near Pekin, Ill. is expected to begin in mid-1978, with operations to begin in 1980. The experimental project will use about 200,000 tons of Illinois high-sulfur coal to make gas, which will be used to generate electricity during the three-year operation. A total of $7.2 million in Illinois Coal Development Bond funds will make up the state's share of the project, which has a total estimated cost of $167 million. Under the agreement, the Federal Energy Research and Development Administration will provide $115.6 million; Electric Power Research Institute, $30 million; Commonwealth Edison, $14.2 million, and the Illinois Dept. of Business and Economic Development, $7.2 million.

Veterans may be entitled to unemployment compensation if they can not find a job immediately. Sometimes, they may have the right to return to their old jobs. Openings SERVICE OPTICAL, an optical firm whose personnel examine, prescribe and make glasses in designer frames, recently opened an office and laboratory at Northpoint Shopping Center in Arlington Heights. The 1,000 square foot store is a freestanding bulding at the center of the shopping mall on Rand Road.

It's the Canon NP-50. For low-to-medium copying requirements. It's engineered with rugged solid state technology. It's compact, produces clear, legible copies in statement, letter and legal size, on plain paper that can be written on immediately. And copy onto transparencies, labeled stock and colored paper.

It will replace copiers like the Xerox 660 and old fashioned electrofax copiers that use coated paper to produce copies that are tough to write on and read.

The Canon NP-50 is so reliable it greatly reduces your operating costs. And our suggested retail price of $2975 includes a handsome rollaway stand. Another savings.

Find out more about a whole new generation in copiers, call or write us today.

For $2,975,* it's the biggest bargain in plain paper copier history.

HELP — HURRY — HELP

We have set up the most beautiful Music Center in Chicagoland and vacated 75% of our former space. In the wake are large and small desks, much used chairs, extra piano and organ benches — (NEW and slightly used) AND JUST THINGS — Like a flea market.

Must be cash and carry. No checks, no credit cards, no refunds. We're not asking much so you better hurry to the new entrance on the southside of our building and ask for Huckster Ed or Carl. Phone calls will get you nowhere.

BRAINS AT WORK. The Cub board of strategy wasn't exactly overtaxing itself Sunday at Wrigley Field. Renko hurls Sox to split

by BOB GALLAS

MILWAUKEE—White Sox catcher Brian Downing had a hunch after his team had lost the first game of a doubleheader here Sunday that a split was imminent. You could say it was a premonition that almost hit Downing directly between the eyes, while he warmed up the second-game starter, ex-Cub Steve Renko.

"The first pitch he (Renko) threw in the bullpen almost nailed me right here," said Downing, pointing to the bridge of his nose. "I saw the ball come out of his hand real slow, then it just exploded. I remember thinking, 'here's a guy who can help us.' "

Renko did help the Sox, throwing seven innings of the nightcap in his first appearance with the Sox to get his first American League win, a 6-3 decision after the Sox dropped the opening game 7-1. Downing helped insure his vision would come true with a two-run homer and a bad-hop single that drove in two more.

"THAT'S THE fifth time this year I've pitched the second game of a double-header," said Renko, who has only started eight times. "Everybody smiles and says it's because they save the best for last."

Renko, who fanned eight and walked two during his stint, gave the Sox a much needed lift after they had suffered through a three-hitter administered by 21-year-old rookie Bryan "Moose" Haas in the opener.

Ken Kravec started the opener but yielded six runs in three innings as he departed early for the fourth straight outing. However, Renko's exhibition, which needed relief help from Lerrin LaGrow, who notched his 19th save, snapped a two-game Sox losing streak to the Brewers.

While the Sox were never in the opener they fought back three times before taking the lead for good in the second game, 4-3 on Downing's homer in the seventh.

"IT WAS THE same pitch he (plate umpire Joe Brinkman) had called me out on the time before," said Downing, who deposited an "eye-level forkball" from starter Bill Travers into the left field seats, despite a driving rain that threatened to delay the game.

The Brewers had taken a 1-0 lead when Von Joshua hit a 3-2 Renko pitch for a home run to lead off the game, but Chet Lemon's RBI single knotted the score in the fourth. The Brewers came back with a run in the bottom of the frame, however Lamar Johnson tied it again with a solo home run, his 16th, in the sixth.

The Brewers got a run in the bottom of the sixth when Sal Bando slid into shortstop Alan Bannister, causing Bannister's relay on a potential inning double play to sail into the Milwaukee dugout.

The win enabled the South Side Hitmen to stay close in the A.L. West title chase. The Sox were in a tie with Texas one game behind Kansas City, pending the outcome of the Rangers-Yankees game Sunday night. Fourth-place Minnesota is also a game behind the Royals but are in fourth by percentage points as the race tightens.

THE SOX ADDED two insurance runs in the eighth Sunday when they loaded the bases on a walk and two infield hits. That set the stage for Downing's rip which took a funny bounce in front of third baseman Sal Bando, ripping Bando's cap off as it

Rhoden's arm and bat beat Cubs

Dodgers spoil Lamp's debut, 5-1

by ART MUGALIAN

It was a day of firsts for Cub rookie Dennis Lamp, whose anonymity spread to the mound Sunday at Wrigley Field.

The 6-foot-3 righthanded hurler, just called up from Wichita where he posted a 10-4 mark, made his major league debut against the Los Angeles Dodgers, the team some people call the best in baseball.

Young Lamp, 24, recorded his first strike (on his first pitch), his first strikeout (an inning later), his first balk (on his initial throw to first base), and even his very own base hit, his first time up.

LAMP ALSO tasted his first major league defeat, a 5-1 initiation at the anxious hands of the Dodgers, the Western Division leaders who are trying to dispel talk of collapse.

"Naturally, we needed that win," said Dodger manager Tom Lasorda, whose team has seen its lead over Cincinnati dwindle from 14 to 9½ games. "The big thing is you've got to win. If you win, you can't lose anything in the standings.

Lasorda finally got a strong pitching effort from one of his fabled stable of pitchers, righthander Rick Rhoden, who demonstrated a perfect example of spreading 10 hits throughout a nine-inning game. The Cubs registered singles in every inning, plus two in the ninth, before Lasorda called on reliever Lance Rautzhan.

Rautzhan, like Rhoden before him, relied on his double-play pitch to get out of trouble. Pinch-hitter Larry Biittner bounced into a Teddy Martinez to Steve Garvey twin-killing to send 26,789 fans home unhappy.

THE DODGERS turned five double plays, including three with Cub runners at scoring position. In all, the Cubs left eight men on base.

"I was lucky to get away with a win with the stuff I had today," said Rhoden, now 14-8. "I really needed the double plays. My fast ball wasn't very good and I was wild. But the guys made good plays in the infield."

Martinez was playing in place of Davey Lopes, who was sitting it out after getting smacked in the head with a Bill Bonham fastball on Saturday. The utility infielder contributed two singles and took part in all five double plays.

"The big thing is we scored some runs for a change today," said Lasorda.

THE DODGERS struck early against Lamp, ripping him for two runs in the first inning on doubles by Bill Russell and Ron Cey and a single by Reggie Smith. Lamp's first big league balk put Smith in scoring position for Cey.

Then, in the second inning, after Lamp got Johnny Oates for his first strikeout, the Cub rookie surrendered his first home run — to Rhoden, the pitcher.

After the homer, Rhoden's third of the year and the first of three hits for the LA hurler, Lamp settled down and pitched three shutout innings on a yield of just one hit. But in the sixth, singles by Cey and Garvey and a bunt by Rick Monday sent up Oates' sacrifice fly before Rhoden's RBI single kayoed the rookie.

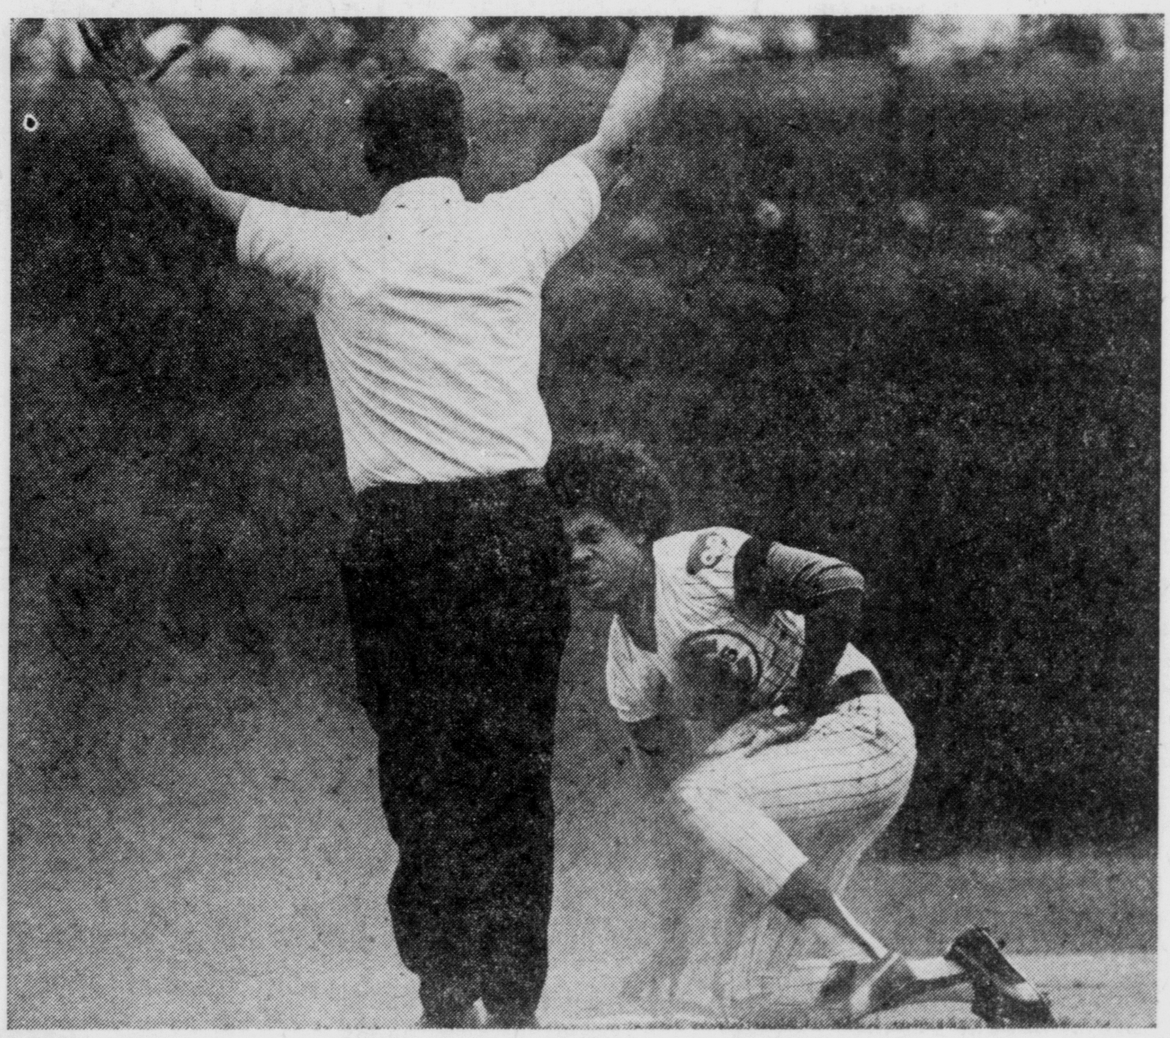

"The kid pitched good," said Cub manager Herman Franks, who started Lamp so Rick Reuschel could have an extra day of rest. "I don't know if he was nervous in the first inning or not, but we just didn't get any runs — it's that simple.

"EVERY TIME WE got somebody on base we'd hit into a double play," Franks moaned.

In the first inning, Jose Cardenal singled and stole second and Bill Buckner drew a walk, the first of four issued by Rhoden. But Jerry Morales hit into an easy DP to end the threat.

Rhoden gave up leadoff singles to Murcer in the second, to Lamp in the third, and to Lamp again in the fifth. Twice double plays wiped out opportunity and a third time Buckner's deep drive was caught at the warning track in right field.

Only an unearned run in the fourth ruined Rhoden's bid for a shutout. With two out, Steve Ontiveros walked and went to third on a single by Manny Trillo. When Trillo stole second, Oates' throw got away and Ontiveros scored. But George Mitterwald became one of Rhoden's three strikeout victims to end that uprising with Trillo on third.

A HURT LOOK on Jose Cardenal's face is no indication of how things are going, especially in the first inning after he stole second base against the Dodgers Sunday. Umpire Ed Vargo tells Jose what he already knows. Later, Cardenal and the Cubs were grimacing with a 5-1 defeat. (Photo by Anne Cusack)

Carlton, Phils defeat Astros

PHILADELPHIA (UPI—Steve Carlton put on a dazzling display of power pitching and hitting Sunday night to become the major leagues' first 18-game winner in hurling the Philadelphia Phillies to a 7-3 victory over the Houston Astros.

Carlton struck out 14 and extended his personal hitting streak to six games with a solo homer in the sixth inning after batterymate Tim McCarver put the Phillies in control with a three-run homer in the fourth.

Kessinger gives Sox added depth

by BOB GALLAS

MILWAUKEE — Former Cub shortstop Don Kessinger said he was happy to be back in a Chicago uniform, even if it is on the other side of town. Tim Nordbrook, on the other hand, was not as happy.

Kessinger returned to Chicago as the newest member of the White Sox Sunday, after a Saturday deal brought him over from the Cardinals for two players to be named later. To make room for Kessinger on the roster, the Sox cut utilityman Nordbrook loose by putting him in the "designated for reassignment" category.

The 35-year-old Kessinger, who starred for more than a decade with the Cubs, is expected to shore up the Sox defense, providing late-inning relief help for Alan Bannister and filling in at second and third base.

NORDBROOK, 28, who came to the Sox over the winter in the free agent reentry draft, had played little this season, but had a clause in his two-year contract that prevented his being sent to the minors. The Sox have 10 days to deal him to another club or they can bring him back to the active list, since roster restrictions will be lifted in 10 days, Sept. 1.

"I was surprised to be traded yet I wasn't surprised," said Kessinger, who joined the team in Milwaukee Sunday and was assigned uniform No. 30, Bucky Dent's old number. "I didn't expect to go, but if I was to be traded, this is the time I expected to go, late in the season to someone looking for help in a stretch drive."

Kessinger had played sparingly at St. Louis, hitting .239 in only 59 games behind shortstop Gary Templeton and second baseman Mike Tyson.

The departure of Nordbrook, though not final, is another chapter in the continuing strange saga. Signed as a free agent to a two-year contract over the winter, Nordbrook went two months without getting in a game, outside of a pinch-running assignment, at one point this season. When he finally did get a shot at playing, a three-game series in Kansas City recently, he committed five errors in three days.

THE SOX TRIED to get his permission earlier in the year to release them from the contract clause that will keep him in the majors through the end of next season. But Nordbrook, who will have four years of major league service at the end of the contract and thereby qualify for a pension, understandably refused a demotion.

Nordbrook still will be listed as on a major league roster and draw full pay while the Sox try to deal him to another club.

"I guess they just didn't have any confidence in me after the Kansas City thing," said Nordbrook, who returned to Chicago Sunday to sit tight and wait. "The way Roland (Hemond), Sox vice-president, was talking, Kansas City was a test and I failed."

Nordbrook, who hit .250 in only 15 games, was disappointed, but not bitter over his situation.

"Roland and Bill (Veeck) are established and knowledgeable baseball people who are trying to strengthen their club," he said. "But I love these guys here and hate to leave now. Who knows, I could be back September first."

What's one more disaster in New York?

Jim Murray

You may have noticed in the papers where some professor spoilsport from Penn State has said that it would be a "disaster" for the 1984 Olympic Games to be held in New York. Well, that might be one reason to hold them there. I mean, what's one more disaster to New York City?

I'm not so sure Dr. John Lucas is right, anyway. I mean, there's been a kind of quaint unreality to Olympic events for some time now. They have degenerated into a Congress of Anachronisms, unfunctional competitions with outmoded artifacts. I guess the discus had some practical application to the ancient Greeks but it's no good in a gang war. And, what practicality does the javelin have nowadays? You can't defend yourself in the subway with one.

No, I think it's time to bring the Olympic Games in for an overhaul, bring them more in tune with the times. And what better place than New York?

You see, a host country or city always gets to add a sport or two more in keeping with its culture, more generic to its part of the world. New York is in a unique position to do this for the whole fabric of the Games.

FOR INSTANCE, the javelin is out. Switchblade knives are in. And, we don't throw them for form and distance. We cut purses with them. Or get graded on how many heart attacks we can cause holding them at the throat of elderly pedestrians or cab drivers.

The shotput stays. With this exception: It is not thrown for distance anymore, it is now thrown through a furniture store window to start the competition. Then, each contestant has to get in and steal a 12-foot divan or a sectional, or a lamp, or a king-sized bed, or all of them. He is then given 12 seconds before a squad of guys armed with riot clubs and bubble helmets are turned loose. If he can get the merchandise three blocks away and up three flights of stairs and rip the labels off before the pursuit can get him, he wins his heat and goes to the finals. In the finals, he has to put the shot at least 60 feet through the window and steal a refrigerator. If he can also steal a case of beer on his way home and have it iced before the pursuit gets to him, he wins the gold.

The 100-meter dash stays. Only it is now run by eight guys carrying 21-inch color TV sets. In the relay, they will pass not batons, but cases of whiskey.

Greco-Roman wrestling is a kind of dull, decadent, two-man tug-of-war which is not very exciting to watch. Throw it out and substitute uniquely American sport, mugging. Holds not only below the waist but around the throat will be legal. To inspire our team, hold it in Central Park and let the players keep the money and wristwatches.

The decathlon should consist of a medley of events from everyday life in New York, ranging from stealing hub caps to snatching purses to rolling drunks to aggravated assaults on policemen.

Arson could be an Olympic sport too. Instead of lighting the Olympic torch, we could light the Empire State Building. Or the South Bronx. We could have two levels of competition, the street gangs who light the fires for warmth — in July. Or the professionals who light fires for insurance all year long. We could let the mayor throw out the first match.

SHOOTING IN the Olympics is a kind of a drag. I mean, small bore rifle, prone, at 50 meters? Bah! Let's have the Saturday Night Specials at point-blank range. Preferably through a car window at strangers or a guy running for his life. Or pleading for it.

Weight lifting is OK. But, why freight-car wheels? Why not have the athletes lift deep freezes? Grand pianos? Or clean and jerk a console stereo or two? A Volkswagen. If they get to keep the merchandise, you'll see some bench presses no Russki can ever come close to.

Hot-wiring cars, selling hot watches to guys named Loudermilk, pocket-picking for form and substance, two positions — all these might well be incorporated in the New York Games.

The nice thing about it is, it'll be far less expensive than the last three Olympics. Because they'll save money holding it under a blackout.

Fillies grab spotlight on Arlington's schedule

Juvenile and sophomore gals dominate the stakes' spotlight this week as Arlington Park presents the Gabby Abby Stakes Wednesday and the Laurence Armour Handicap on Saturday, Aug. 27.

Two-year-old fillies (Illinois-bred/foaled) will contest the Gabby Abby, a $20,000 added affair slated for six furlongs. Among the nominees are Robert Ballis' Ruler's Fighter, E. C. Cashman's Epinour, L. Hooker's Troy's Nurse, J. C. Schuh's Little Miss Right, G. B. Stafford's Uncomfortable, and Estate of Al Rossi's Eyes On Iodine.

A daughter of Alley Fighter, Ruler's Fighter made every pole a winning pole July 18 when she rolled to a three-length triumph in a five-furlong dash. Breaking well in the sloppy going, Ruler's Fighter opened her advantage to six lengths in mid-stretch and eventually hit the wire in 1:01-1. Little Miss Right and Troy's Nurse were among Ruler's Fighter's victims that day.

The Laurance Armour is a nine-furlong, $25,000 added battle that has drawn the likes of D. M. McKellar's Sans Supplement, Karil Vangeloff's Unreality, Dazoc Stable's Work Sheet and Mrs. E. H. Cocks' Ludova.

North much richer after Westchester

HARRISON, N.Y. — Andy North survived some late problems, cruised to an even-par 71 and ended a 10-year "jinx" Sunday by scoring a front-running, two-stroke victory in the $300,000 Westchester Golf Classic. It was the first time in the history of this tournament, once the premier big-money event on the PGA tour, the winner was a player who had not previously won as a professional.

And the 27-year-old North, a veteran of five years on tour, did it with ease although he gave himself a couple of anxious moments near the end after beginning th day with a three-stroke lead. At the finish, his 72-hole total, 272, was 12 under par for four trips around the Westchester Country Club course, 6,600 hilly, tree-lined yards that rank with the easiest on the tour.

Second place went to George Archer, who shot 67 for a 274 total. Tom Weiskopf finished third at 73-276 and virtually assured himself a spot in the field for the rich World Series of Golf Labor Day weekend.

Orioles' Robinson calls it quits

BALTIMORE — The playing career of Brooks Robinson, one of the finest third basemen in major league baseball history, came to an end today. Hank Peters, general manager of the Baltimore Orioles, announced that Robinson, the most popular player ever to wear an Oriole uniform, is being placed on the voluntarily retired list so that catcher Rick Dempsey can return to the roster.

Peters said the move was made "at the suggestion of and with the consent" of the 23-year veteran who will remain with the team as a coach until the end of this season and then retire completely from baseball. The 40-year-old Robinson, a virtual certainty to eventually be inducted into the Baseball Hall of Fame, appeared in 2,896 major league games — all of them in an Oriole uniform. Only Ty Cobb with 3,033 games appeared in more games as an American leaguer.

Cosmos take semifinal series lead

ROCHESTER, N.Y. — The New York Cosmos held on to defeat the Rochester Lancers 2-1 Sunday to take a one-game advantage in the two-game North American Soccer League semifinal playoff series. Steve Hunt, aided by a mixup in the Rochester defense, scored the winning goal late in the first half to give the Cosmos the victory.

Mike Stojanovic headed in the Rochester goal from six yards out to give the Lancers a lead at 16:56. Pele assisted in a goal by Giorgio Chinaglia that tied the score at 1-1. Rochester outshot New York 16-7 and repeatedly attacked the visitor's goal.

Stennett lost to Pirates for season

PITTSBURGH — Pittsburgh Pirates second baseman Rennie Stennett, second leading hitter in the National League, fractured a bone and dislocated an ankle Sunday while sliding into second base in a game with the San Francisco Giants and will be out for the remainder of the season. Dr. Joseph Finegold, Pirates team physician, said the fracture was in the fibula — the long, outer bone between knee and ankle — of the right leg. The leg will be in a cast for several weeks, he said.

Prior to the game Stennett was batting .336, second best in the NL. Pirates outfielder Dave Parker led the league with a .349 average. Stennett singled in the eighth inning and slid into second base when catcher Ed Ott grounded out to first. Stennett's spikes caught in the dirt, twisting his right ankle. Finegold popped the ankle back in place and sent Stennett to Prebyterian Hospital where the fracture was discovered.

Austin scores another LPGA win

WHEELING, W. Va. — Debbie Austin scored her second straight triumph and fifth of the year Sunday with a one-stroke victory over Hollis Stacy in the $50,000 Wheeling LPGA Classic. Austin, winless in eight previous years on the pro tour, withstood Stacy's seven-birdie charge by firing a 2-under-par 70 for a 54-hole total of 209 and first-place winnings of $7,500.

Stacy birdied the 18th hole with a 15-foot putt from the fringe and a 67 and 210. Then she stood by and watched as Austin birdied the hole for the victory a few minutes later. Laura Baugh and Jan Stephenson were the only others who took a run at Austin but both faltered in the stretch. Baugh took third with a 72-213 and Stephenson fourth with a 72-215. M. J. Smith turned in a 70-216 for fifth place.

Minnesota keeps pace

Royals retain AL lead, 6-4

From Herald Wire Services

Boston relief ace Bill Campbell walked pinch-hitter Joe Lahoud with the bases loaded in the eighth inning Sunday and Tom Poquette followed with an infield single to score two more runs in giving Kansas City a 6-4 victory over the Red Sox for the Royals' fifth straight triumph.

In other American League play Sunday afternoon, Minnesota pounded Baltimore 9-5, Detroit edged Seattle 5-4, Cleveland defeated Oakland 4-1 and California beat Toronto 3-2. The Yankees and Texas were scheduled to play Sunday night.

Al Cowens and Darrell Porter singled before Campbell, 12-8, issued walks to Amos Otis and Lahoud to make it 4-3. Poquette then bounced a ground ball to Boston first baseman George Scott, who was indecsive and threw late to Campbell, covering first, allowing Porter and Otis to score.

Doug Bird, the fourth Royals' pitcher, went two innings in raising his record to 9-4.

LYMAN BOSTOCK homered and drove in three runs and Roy Smalley capped a four-run sixth inning with an RBI single to spark a 9-5 victory by the Minnesota Twins over the Baltimore Orioles.

Trailing 5-4, Minnesota bunched singles by Larry Hisle, Butch Wynegar, Bostock and Smalley to rout Baltimore starter and loser Rudy May in the sixth. Bostock, who was 2-for-3 hit his 11th homer in the eighth inning for the ninth Minnesota run.

Ron Schueler, who hurled 1-1/3 innings of shutout relief gained his sixth victory. Andres Mora's two-run homer in the fifth had given the Orioles a 5-4 lead.

BEN OGILVIE'S three-run homer and solo blasts by Steve Kemp and Jason Thompson powered the Detroit Tigers to a 5-4 triumph over the Seattle Mariners.

Kemp walked and Thompson singled ahead of Ogilvie's 16th homer that put the Tigers ahead 3-0 in the fourth. Kemp's 17th homer and Thompson's 24th were back-to-back shots in the sixth.

Seattle's Larry Milbourne homered after Steve Braun's single in the fifth for the first two Mariner runs. Julio Cruz then walked and scored from first base on Bill Stein's double to temporarily tie the score 3-3.

Jim Crawford, the second of four Detroit pitchers, earned his fifth victory in 10 decisions. Losing starter Paul Mitchell is now 1-5.

DENNIS ECKERSLEY hurled a three-hitter to earn his 12th win while batterymate Fred Kendall broke a 1-1 tie with a seventh-inning sacrifice fly Sunday in a 4-1 victory by the Cleveland Indians over the Oakland A's.

Eckersley, who had lost two previous starts this season to the A's, walked two, hit a batter and struck out four in lifting his record to 12-10.

In the seventh, Jim Norris singled, stole second and took third on Ron Pruitt's single before Kendall drove in the go-ahead run with a flyout to left. The Indians scored a pair of insurance runs in the ninth on a double by Rico Carty and a single by Pruitt.

The Indians' first run came in the third on Duane Kuiper's RBI groundout and Rico Carty doubled in an insurance run in the ninth.

Jerry Remy's third single of the game drove in Terry Humphrey from second base with the go-ahead run in the seventh inning to provide Frank Tanana with his 15th victory in a 3-2 decision by the California Angels over the Toronto Blue Jays.

With the score tied 2-2, Humphrey began the winning rally with a one-out double, the first hit off loser Jeff Byrd, 2-7, since the second. After a groundout, Remy looped a single over shortstop for his 18th hit in the last 14 games.

Renko sharp, Sox split

Kravec's demise in game one was a wild Brewers' fourth inning when they scored six runs to take a 7-0 lead. A walk and three consecutive hits, the last of which was a two-run homer by Ken McMuellen, led to Kravec's exit.

"I didn't have a thing," admitted the young lefthander, now 7-6, who has lost four straight.

Kravec's problems were not entirely ordinary. With a run in and a runner at second, Cecil Cooper hit a high fly to right that bounced off the wall. Sal Bando, the runner at second, had to hold up to see if the ball would be caught and made it only to third on the double, but Richie Zisk, the right fielder, argued a fan had interfered on the play.

THE APPEAL WAS denied and the Brewers quickly got another run as Kravec dropped the ball while standing on the pitching rubber for a balk which brought in the third run.

"I spin the ball around in my hand to get a good feel of it and that one got away," Kravec said.

Two pitches later — a single and the home run — Kravec gave way to Jack Kucek, who came in trailing 6-0, and gave up another run before settling down to hurl five impressive innings of relief.

"I needed something like this to get Texas off my mind," said Kucek, who blew a six-run lead against the Rangers last time out. The young righthander gave up a run on just four hits, striking out four and walking nobody.

The Sox, who have not been shut out this year, were in danger of losing that streak when Chet Lemon provided the only run of the game off Haas, a solo homer in the eighth inning.

SOX SHORTS: The Sox have not been shut out all season but are a long way from the major league record, 308 games, set over two seasons by the Yankees of the early '30s . . . WHITE SOX CATCHER Jim Essian is on the ground after diving to catch a relay in fourth inning of opener Sunday in Milwaukee. Richie Zisk's throw was wide to the plate as Brewers' Charlie Moore scored. The Sox gained a split on the doubleheader.

Seaver throttles Mets on six hits

From Herald Wire Services

Tom Seaver, pitching at Shea Stadium for the first time since being traded by New York on June 15, stopped his exteammates on six hits and scored two runs Sunday to lead the Cincinnati Reds to a 5-1 victory over the Mets.

In other National League play Sunday afternoon, San Francisco rallied past Pittsburgh 5-4, San Diego blanked St. Louis 7-0 and Montreal whipped Atlanta 10-4. Philadelphia and Houston were scheduled to play Sunday night.

Seaver, who received a standing ovation from the crowd of 46,265 when he ran to the mound in the eighth inning, struck out 11 and gave up only five singles — two of the scratch variety — while posting his 14th victory against five losses. The 31-year-old righthander is 7-2 since joining the Reds.

Steve Henderson, the key player obtained by the Mets from Cincinnati in the controversial deal for Seaver, had two hits and his scratch single in the sixth set up New York's lone run which was scored by Bud Harrelson on Ed Kranepool's sacrifice fly.

DARRELL EVANS slammed a two-run eighth inning to lift the San Francisco Giants to a 5-4 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

With the score tied at 3-3, reliever Rich Gossage issued a two-out walk to Rob Andrews and Evans — who had four hits — rapped his 13th homer over the right field wall.

Gary Lavelle picked up his seventh win in 14 decisions with two innings of scoreless relief as the Giants beat the Pirates for the ninth time in 10 meetings.

Evans' first-inning single scored Jack Clark, who had singled, but the Pirates tied it in their half when Phil Garner singled, stole second and third and scored when catcher Gary Alexander threw wildly to third.

DAVE KINGMAN clubbed a towering grand slam home run in the first inning to back the eight-hit pitching of rookie left-hander Bob Owchinko and stake the San Diego Padres to a 7-0 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals.

Bill Almon started the game with a single for the Padres and losing pitcher Tom Underwood then walked Gene Tenace. A double steal moved the runners to second and third, with Almon scoring when George Hendrick reached first on shortstop Garry Templeton's error.

Dave Winfield beat out an infield grounder to load the bases before Kingman sent his sixth career grand slam, and second this month, into the bleachers in left.

DEL UNSER singled, doubled and homered to knock in four runs and Chris Speier and Dave Cash had two RBI apiece to lead the Montreal Expos to a 10-4 victory over the Atlanta Braves.

Unser drove in one run with a first-inning single, hit a RBI double in the fourth and a two-run homer in the sixth, while Speier hit a bases-loaded single in the fourth. Cash doubled home runners in the fourth and seventh innings.

Atlanta starter Dick Ruthven, 4-10, gave up nine of the 10 Montreal runs. reliever Don Stanhouse, 9-9, pitched one-hit ball for 5 1/3 innings for the Expos. Stanhouse came in when Expos' starter Stan Bahnsen suffered a slight muscle pull in his left leg.

For Atlanta, Jeff Burroughs cracked a three-run homer in the first inning, his 32nd of the season.

Bears win No. 3 with late surge

HOUSTON (UPI) — Bo Rather caught a 40-yard pass and Roland Harper ran one yard for a touchdown four plays later Saturday night to give the Bears a 14-10 preseason comeback victory over the Houston Oilers.

Harper's one-yard plunge with 14:04 left in the game came on fourth down after Rather's catch moved the Bears to Houston's five-yard line.

Houston rookie tight end Jimmy Giles took a 22-yard screen pass into the end zone midway through the third quarter and lifted the Oilers to a 10-7 lead.

THE BEARS, 3-1 this exhibition season, scored in the second period on Mike Phipps' two-yard pass to Johnny Musso, and the Oilers countered with Skip Butler's 30-yard field goal before halftime.

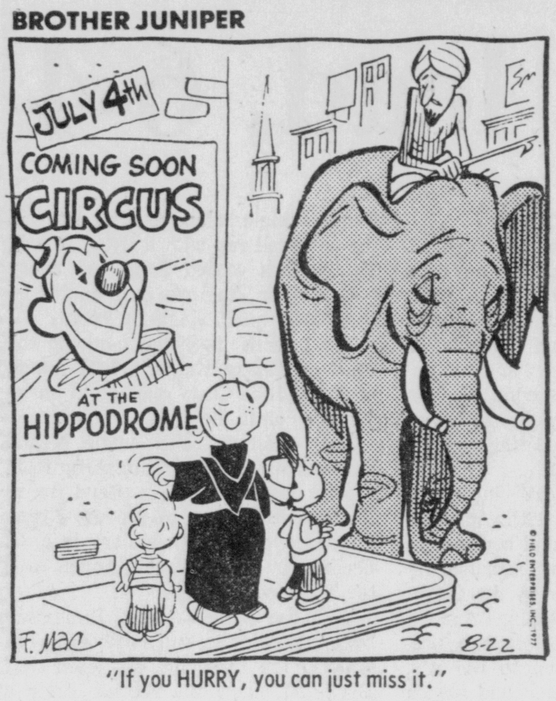

The Oilers' offense, thwarted most of the night, made two last-minute efforts to pull out its first victory in three preseason games. Houston first had a first down at the Chicago 17, and Butler's 37-yard field goal try with 4:04 remaining sailed wide. With time running out, John Hadl moved the Oilers inside the 20, but threw four straight incomplete passes.

Phipps played the first half and completed nine of 13 passes. His only intercepted pass, however, ended a first-quarter drive at Houston's 13-yard line.

A GREGG Bingham interception of Bob Avellini's sidearm pass on the Bear's first possession of the second half gave the Oilers the ball at Chicago's 34. But Mike Spivey's interception of a Dan Pastorini pass at the two-yard line protected Chicago's slim lead for a short period.

When to play trumps out

Oswald: "Declarer in a suit contract must decide what to do with his trumps as a starter. Can he afford to draw all the enemy trumps? Can he afford one trump lead? Must he leave the trumps alone and play a side suit?"

Jim: "In general he should play as many trumps as he can afford, but no more."

Oswald: "South might well have bid three notrump, but he wanted the 150-point honor bonus. If West had opened a trump, South would have wished that he had settled for the nine-trick game, but West had a normal club lead and made it."

Jim: "South wasn't sure of his contract but he was sure of one thing. He could not afford the luxury of even one trump lead so at trick two he led his deuce of diamonds."

Oswald: The play went fast from then on. East won and led a trump. South won and led a second diamond. East won and led a second trump whereupon South led a third diamond."

Jim: "West won, but didn't have a trump to lead, so eventually South got to trump his last diamond and make the spade game."

Ask Andy

Where breezes blow, sailors, ships will go

Andy sends the Encyclopaedia Britannica's 1977 Yearbook of Science and the Future to Patrick Mark, 10, of Mississauga, Ont., Canada, for his question:

HOW DOES A SAILBOAT MOVE AGAINST THE WIND?

For a boat to sail in other directions than just the way in which the wind is blowing, a boat must be designed and rigged to use the force of the wind.

Without control, a boat only would travel downwind. But add a rudder and you've taken the first step to direct your course. Next add either a keel, centerboard, bilgeboard or leeboard. The rudder will be used for steering and the centerboard will prevent sideward movement.

There are three basic maneuvers in sailing. First is sailing into the wind. You can't go directly into the wind, as you can imagine, since the sail only would flap wildly. What you must do is tack, or follow a zig-zag course. Your boat can head to within 45 degrees of the direction from which the wind is blowing before you lose a driving force. The keel will keep you from moving sideways, although great skill is required. After a certain distance upwind, a sailor must know when to tack again and set his next zig-zag course.

Second of the basic maneuvers is sailing across the wind. With this method you'll move faster than sailing in any other direction. This sailing maneuver also is called reaching or sailing with the wind abeam.

Third type of sailing is going with the wind. This is also called sailing before the wind or running. Strangely, running is not so fast as sailing across the wind. While the sail is taking the full blast of the wind, it is also making its own resistance at the same time.

Trimming and tacking are two of the skills a sailor must learn. Trimming means adjusting the sails to obtain the full advantage of the wind. When a boat is running before the wind, the mainsail must be at right angles to the boat's direction. When moving across the wind, the mainsail extends about half-way out from the boat at a 45 degree angle; and when moving into the wind, the sail should be trimmed as parallel as possible to the boat's direction.

Small boats can capsize easily if they are not handled properly. Sailors must learn how to place their weight and how to relieve dangerous pressures of the wind in the sails so the boat does not tip too far. This is done by slacking off, or letting the sails out, so some of the wind can spill out.

All sailors in small boats should wear life jackets at all times.

Andy sends the book 200 Illustrated Science Experiments to Jennifer Wirth, 10, of Wilton, Conn., for her question:

WHAT CAUSES PEOPLE TO PERSPIRE?

Sweat glands cover the entire surface of the body with larger glands concentrated in such areas as the armpits, on the palms of the hands and on the soles of the feet. The main job of the sweat glands is not to rid the body of waste materials, but rather to help the body lose heat. Sweating doesn't actually reduce body heat, but when the perspiration evaporates it has a cooling effect.

People perspire in both hot and cool weather. When it's cool, the small amount of sweat produced evaporates almost as soon as it is formed. This is called insensible perspiration. During hot weather or when a person is exercising, sweat glands increase their production and drops of water often form on the skin. This is called sensible perspiration.
